Reagan, Wallace hurt by results

Ford, Carter win in Florida primary

MIAMI (AP) — President Ford is rapidly deflating Ronald Reagan's Republican presidential bid, leaving his challenger in dire need of a comeback to pump it up again.

And Georgia's Jimmy Carter has climbed back atop the Democratic field with a victory that made a shambles of Gov. George C. Wallace's campaign.

So read Chapter Four, Florida's installment in the presidential primary election story. Now the test is in Illinois, next Tuesday.

Republican Reagan is far from finished, but he can't go on meeting Ford like this and losing, as he did in Florida Tuesday.

Yet he already is saying that he never considered Illinois one of his stronger states. The former California governor had better get to one soon if he is going to dislodge Ford.

Reagan insisted he is in the race to stay, until the day the delegate numbers guarantee Ford the GOP nomination. He said he does not think that will happen during the primary season and forecast a showdown at the Republican National Convention next August.

After all, Reagan said in Rock Island, Ill., Tuesday night, he has gained almost half the Republican vote in each of his two direct primary tests with Ford.

But almost half is losing, and he needs a win. Reagan can keep running by coming close, but if that becomes the pattern, his campaign will become a hollow exercise.

The Ford camp was talking about bandwagons and trains pulling out, the traditional language of winners trying to convince GOP politicians to climb aboard now because there might not be room later.

Alabama's Wallace was the big loser on the Democratic side. Four years ago, Florida was the scene of a major Wallace triumph, a 42 per cent presidential primary victory over the whole Democratic field.

This time Florida belonged to Carter, and that undercut Wallace's Southern political base. And it could be the beginning of the undoing of Wallace as a force in national Democratic politics.

Florida was Carter's third presidential primary win, with New Hampshire and Vermont. "I don't see anybody ahead of me now, but we still have 30 or 40 states left to go," the former Georgia governor said. He was heading for Chicago today, to campaign for next week's match against Wallace, former Oklahoma Sen. Fred R. Harris and Sargent Shriver.

Carter said he doesn't consider the Wallace campaign finished by Florida. But he also said that he doubts the Alabama governor will be a real factor in Democratic politics now.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington ran third among the Democrats, his Florida gamble a failure. He did, as he noted, gain about a quarter of the state's national convention delegates. But he failed in what clearly was an effort to block Carter's climb.

Nonetheless, Jackson claimed a good omen in his Miami area plurality, saying that is the kind of populous territory a Democrat must capture to win nomination and the White House. He called Florida no more than a way station and challenged Carter to the test of New York's April 6 primary.

"No one will win the Democratic nomination unless he can carry the big city, industrial areas of the country, and that's what I can do," said Jackson, who won last week in Massachusetts with 23 per cent of the vote. Carter ran fourth there.

With the Florida vote counted completed, this was the outcome:

Ford 318,844 or 33 per cent.

Reagan 282,618 or 47 per cent.

That translated to 43 national convention delegates for Ford, 23 for Reagan.

And among the Democrats:

Carter 439,870 or 34 per cent.

Wallace 392,105 or 31 per cent.

Jackson 306,120 or 24 per cent.

Three per cent of the vote was cast in favor of sending uncommitted delegates to the Democratic convention, and that was more than any of the other nine candidates got.

Delegates were apportioned this way on the basis of statewide and congressional district showings:

Carter 34, Wallace 26, Jackson 21.

SELLING OHIO AGRICULTURE — Two top Ohio agriculture leaders pause with Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes before leaving on a two-week European trade mission. Hugh Wilson, left, 719 Fairway Drive, president of the Ohio Soybean Association, and Wallace Hirschfeld, right, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, are making the trip with the governor and 30 other businessmen and industrialists. The two farm leaders are interested in promoting grain sales with the Europeans. They will visit importers in Belgium, West Germany, England, France, Sweden, the Netherlands and Italy before returning to Ohio on March 20. (See related story on page 13 of today's edition.)

Candidacy petitions filed

Dumford seeking seat on county commission

Laurence A. (Bucky) Dumford, a former three-term Fayette County commissioner, has announced his candidacy for a seat on the Fayette County Board of Commissioners, subject to the Democratic primary election June 8.

Dumford, who served 12 years as a county commissioner, Tuesday filed petitions with the Fayette County Board of Elections seeking the seat presently held by incumbent Republican J. Herbert Perrill. The term being sought by Dumford commences Jan. 3, 1977.

The 46-year-old Dumford, who resides at 635 Warren Ave., served as chairman of the Fayette County Board of Commissioners four different times (the last in 1971) during his 12-year tenure on the board. He was defeated in his bid for a fourth straight term on the board of commissioners in 1972 by incumbent Ray D. Warner.

He is a past president of the Ohio County Commissioners Association, serving in that capacity in 1969, served as chairman of both the taxation and legislative committees of the Ohio County Commissioners Association and is a charter member of the Fayette County Democrat Club. He is presently a member of the Fayette County Regional Planning Commission.

Dumford, owner and operator of the Roller Haven skating rink, CCC Highway-W, for the past 19 years, worked with the Ohio Legislature in formulating legislation pertaining to the financing and strengthening of local government. He served on a local government task force, appointed by former Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan. The task force completed a two-year study of local government operations and recommended ways of making it more responsive to the needs of Ohio residents.

LAURENCE A. DUMFORD

A native of Clermont County, Dumford has been a resident of Fayette County for the past 38 years. He is a 1947 graduate of Bloomingburg High School and received a bachelor of science degree in education from Ohio State University in 1952.

Dumford is a past president of the Bloomingburg Lions Club, past president and member of the Washington C.H. Roary Club, past director of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce, a charter member of the Fayette County Community Action Commission board, a member of the Washington C.H. Elks

Voters face energy amendment

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A proposed constitutional amendment allowing state and local governments to issue bonds to finance energy projects will face Ohio voters on June 8.

Legislators have given final approval to the proposed amendment granting the bonding authority. Both the House and Senate approved it Tuesday.

Their approval came just before a deadline of midnight tonight for qualifying issues for the June ballot.

One more proposed amendment, allowing state and local governments to help underwrite branch line operations of the government-created railroads, such as Amtrak and Con Rail, is expected to gain approval in the legislature today.

The energy bond proposal was first approved March 1 by the Senate. But after gaining approval in the House Tuesday, it was sent back for Senate concurrence with a lone House amendment.

It received approval 31-0 in the Senate, sending it to the secretary of state for filing and a spot on the ballot.

Rep. Thomas J. Carney, D-71 Boardman, House sponsor, said the last minute tinkering was unusual, but was necessary to correct what lawyers saw as a flaw in the technical language which had the potential of leaving the energy bonds unmarketable.

Carney said the flaw, discovered by lawyers last week, deals with a prohibition of state aid to public utilities.

The provision has major implications for industry self-help drilling programs, the purpose of the bill, since the gas usually is transported to industry plants through utility company pipelines.

The pipeline company is permitted to keep 25 per cent of the gas transmitted, and that might be enough of a benefit to make the bonding arrangement unconstitutional, Carney said.

The amendment by the House Tuesday removes that problem, he said.

The resolution, if approved by the people, will permit the state and its subdivisions, particularly the Ohio Energy and Resource Development Agency, to issue revenue bonds or made make loans to "develop, produce, recover, store, transport, utilize or conserve energy or energy resources."

The bonding power would be limited to industrial, commercial, distribution and research purposes. Residential energy conservation improvements would not qualify for state aid.

The only vote against the proposal in the House was cast by Rep. Dennis L. Wojtanowski, D-74 Willoughby Hills.

Bicentennial sales under attack

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "Over-commercialization" has partly obscured the true meaning of the Bicentennial celebration, a spokesman for an Ohio advisory group says.

Rep. Alan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville, urged citizens who are offended by the proliferation of "B-U-Y centennial items" to boycott the products.

"You are undoubtedly aware that the significance of the Bicentennial has been obscured, at times, by those who are foisting all sorts of trinkets and baubles on the American public," Norris said at a news conference Tuesday.

"These doo-dads and knickknacks," he predicted, "will undoubtedly show up in the garage sales of 1977."

Norris, chairman of the Ohio American Revolution Bicentennial Advisory Commission, outlined activities, exhibits and publications planned as "meaningful and tasteful observance of our country's first 200 years of independence."

"We are not Valley Forge blizzard ice cream, stars and stripes cupcakes, Bicentennial litterbags, or plastic music boxes playing off-key renditions of 'Under the Double Eagle,'" he emphasized. "Nor are we star-spangled caskets."

Norris announced grants of $71,000 from the federal government and $43,000 from Batelle Memorial Institute had funded a series of exhibits on the revolution which will be on display at the Ohio Historical Center in Columbus.

A multimedia component will be circulated through the state, he added, and an American Revolution publication will be made available for classroom teachers as well as a new textbook on Ohio history.

Over 2,400 persons attend three performances

Lions Club variety show tops attendance, profit marks

MR. BANJO — Bob Woodmansee provided plenty of entertainment for the record crowds attending this year's variety show with a banjo music medley.

The annual variety show presented Sunday, Monday and Tuesday by the Washington C.H. Lions Club surpassed all previous attendance records and indications are that profits will be far more than in past years.

A near capacity crowd of more than 1,000 persons packed the Washington C.H. Middle School auditorium Tuesday night for the third and final performance of the Lions Club's 1976 musical-comedy program, entitled, "Happy Birthday U.S.A."

A record total of 2,450 Washington C.H. area residents attended the three performances of the variety show which traced some of the highlights of America's history during the past 200 years. The total three-performance attendance exceeded last year's record (1,844 persons) by 606 persons.

The audience at Tuesday night's performance was one of the most receptive ever to attend a Lions Club show. The club members received a standing ovation from the more than 1,000 persons during the patriotic finale.

An estimated 650 persons were on hand for the opening performance Sunday afternoon, and more than 800 showgoers attended Monday night's presentation.

At Tuesday night's finale, the downstairs section of the auditorium was completely filled and the crowd also took every available seat in the lower section of the balcony. Approximately 50 persons were seated in the upper section of the balcony.

Although no accurate figures have been compiled on expenses, several of those persons who have handled the business in the past said that without a doubt this year's event will be the most successful ever staged by the Lions Club in its 42-year history in Washington C.H.

Richard Patton, ticket chairman, said today proceeds will be "well over last year's."

The proceeds will far surpass last year's record-breaking profit of $2,000, Lions Club officials said.

All proceeds from the show are used almost exclusively in the Lions Club's sight-saving program which finances eye glasses and examinations for needy Fayette County residents. During the past year the Lions Club spent $3,089.41 in the sight-saving program. Over the past six years, the club has spent approximately $16,000 for eye glasses, examinations and repairs.

This year's home talent entertainment production was considered by many as the best program ever staged by the club through the years. The bicentennial-flavored production featured a number of outstanding soloists, chorus numbers, specialty acts, comedy skits and dance routines.

The foundation of the production with the unique format or more thought-provoking segments than before was the chorus of approximately 100 Lions and Lioness club members under the direction of Mrs. Cinda Stinson.

A cast party was held at the Mahan Building on the Fayette County Fairgrounds following Tuesday night's finale and the event served as a birthday celebration for Mrs. Donald Schwaigert who has provided piano accompaniment for the chorus and other musical routines for several years.

Paul Johnson and Larry Lehman were the co-producers of this year's show.

PAUL JOHNSON is teased by Gypsy Rose (Jim Polk) as he sings "Sweet Gypsy Rose." The skit was one of the most popular in this year's Lions Club show.

Deaths, Funerals

DAYTON — Funeral services for Dr. Stanley L. Jordan, 83, of Dayton, were held at 2 p.m. Monday in the Routsong Funeral Home, Dayton. Burial was made in Woodlawn Cemetery. Dr. Jordan died Friday in Grandview Hospital, Dayton. Surviving is his wife, Betty; a son, Dr. Charles A. Jordan of Dayton; three grandchildren; and three brothers, Dr. John G. Jordan, 170 Carolyn Road, Washington C.H., Dr. Glen M. Jordan of Dayton, and C. Walter Jordan of Mesa, Okla.; a niece, Mrs. Frank E. Creamer, Washington-Waterloo Road, and a nephew, Dr. John T. J. Jordan, Ohio 753-S.

MRS. RUSSELL BEATTY — Services for Mrs. Hazel E. Beatty, 67, wife of Russell Beatty, 420 Rawlings St., were held at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home, Washington C.H., with the Rev. Clair Emerick, pastor of the Greenfield Presbyterian Church, officiating. Mrs. Beatty, a former secretary at the Fayette County Extension office, died Friday.

Pallbearers for the burial in Greenfield Cemetery were Harry Richardson, Roger Stockwell, Edwin Lovett, Carl Elberfeld, William Johnson and Dr. Ned Abbott.

15 workers dead in mine explosion

OVEN FORK, Ky. (AP) — A massive, eleven-hour effort to rescue 15 miners trapped four miles deep in a Southeast Kentucky mine ended about midnight Tuesday, when rescuers found the bodies of all 15.

Nine of the men had apparently been killed instantly in a methane gas explosion, rescuers said.

The other six had tried to build an air-tight barricade to keep out deadly gas, but apparently suffocated, officials said.

The explosion occurred at the Scotia Coal Co.'s No. 1 Black Mountain mine at 1:15 Tuesday afternoon. Company officials said 108 men were working underground at the time, but all the others escaped safely.

Rescue efforts began immediately, and continued through the day. At least

Maloney against state rail plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Senate Minority Leader Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, called today for the defeat of a June 8 ballot proposal to let Ohio subsidize ConRail, Amtrak, or other railroads created by the government.

"The state doesn't have now and never will have enough money to get into the railroad business," said Maloney, referring to the proposed constitutional amendment as it headed for a Senate floor vote.

Maloney said his position is not a Republican policy stance, and indicated he expects approval prior to tonight's midnight deadline for legislative action on June 8 ballot proposals.

The rail amendment, along with a resolution that would allow the new Energy Resource and Development Agency to issue revenue bonds for energy conservation purposes, headed for the primary ballot along with five other amendments described as being housekeeping in nature.

Maloney's opposition emerged at the 11th house of legislative deliberations after the amendment by Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, had sailed through the House and won approval of the Senate Transportation and Local Government Committee after one five-minute hearing.

However, he pointed out that he opposed a similar resolution that was turned down by voters last fall, and also voted against a bill that prematurely created the new Ohio Rail Transportation Authority. The bill that created the authority became effective last Oct. 10, almost a month before voters rejected the proposal giving it statutory responsibilities. Wilkowski's amendment delivers "dangerous, unprecedented powers" to the authority, Maloney asserted.

Wilkowski, who claims his earlier proposal went down the drain because it accompanied Gov. James A. Rhodes' ill-fated economic package on last November's ballot, pointed out that Ohio must change its constitution now to get in on federal railroad subsidies currently in the works and limited to maintenance and operation of ConRail and Amtrak branch lines.

ConRail, set up by the federal government to salvage a network of bankrupt rail operations in the east and midwest, goes into operation April 1. The Toledo lawmaker said Ohio's Constitution must be changed in June to permit Ohio to qualify for the federal subsidies.

At stake in particular, Wilkowski said, are hundreds of small Ohio business operations that rely on existing rail lines to receive raw materials and ship products. He said the lines face certain abandonment unless his amendment is approved, and the economic effects will include thousands of lost jobs.

Maloney's objections were centered around his claim that "whatever economic gains it might bring, the cost is likely to be so great as to outweigh those gains by far."

He opposes provisions that permit the state and its local subdivisions to offer their full faith and credit to subsidize railroads, and go on to provide that the state may reimburse local governments for any amounts they spend. "All these railroads will be ones that are in trouble, no railroad on its uppers is going to be coming in and asking the state to bail them out," he said.

The veteran Hamilton County lawmaker described as dangerous other portions of the amendment that exempt the subsidized carriers from existing sections of the Ohio Constitution with regard to debt and taxation. There are 11 such exemptions, he said.

Among them are those that require taxation at a uniform rate, and prohibit property taxes to be levied at a rate that exceeds 10 mills ($10 per $1,000 of assessed value) without a vote of the people. He also said the rail authority conceivably could issue bonds or incur debt on its own and without saying how the bonds or debt will be paid.

Maloney conceded that the use of such powers would have to be preceded by implementing acts of the General Assembly. But he said "it opens the door for a lot of pressure to be brought on the legislature."

Ford, Carter

Reagan claimed to have been delighted that he came close. But that was hard to sell in view of the optimistic forecasts once posted by his campaign manager, L.E. Thomas. "Two-thirds of the Republicans in Florida want Reagan," he had said early in the campaign. "I guess a campaign chairman shouldn't really be predicting such fantastic odds, but it's true."

If his figures were not prophetic, his comment about the risk of such a prediction was. Thomas toned it down later, and Reagan disavowed it altogether. But it was on the record, to be measured against Reagan's election night statement:

"I have to tell you that we are all delighted on our side.... President Ford in these first couple of primaries has thrown the whole load at us, he has shot all the big artillery there is, used everything in the incumbency that he can, and we're still possessing almost half the Republican vote."

Ford said simply that he was overjoyed — and that it was not the time to answer questions about the possibility that Reagan might be forced from the race.

Among the other assessments and portents of Florida:

—Wallace, in Oak Park, Ill., said that while he would rather have won, he felt good about the outcome. "Florida is not exactly a so-called Southern state," he said. "It's a fine state, it's a cosmopolitan state." He didn't talk about geography when he won it in the last campaign.

—Carter said the outcome left him, Jackson and Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona as the contenders for the Democratic nomination.

—Udall, vacationing in Tucson, Ariz., said he looks forward to competing with Carter in Wisconsin and New York on April 6. He said the Florida vote demonstrates "the burning need for progressive forces" to coalesce behind one candidate — him.

Stock list turns mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, regrouping after its unsuccessful effort to hold above 1,000 in the Dow Jones industrial average Tuesday.

The Dow average of 30 blue chips was off a fraction in the early going. Gainers and losers ran about even in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts attributed the market's hesitancy to uncertainty over whether the Dow could mount another run at 1,000 soon.

Today's early prices included AMP, up 1/4 at 29; Melville Shoe, 1/4 higher at 23 1/4; Continental Oil, down 1/4 at 62; and Springs Mills, off 1/4 at 13 1/4.

On Tuesday, after breaking through 1,000 at mid-morning and again in the early afternoon, the Dow Jones industrial average had to settle for a 4.96 gain at 993.70.

Nixon denies wiretap role

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon reportedly claims he did not personally select persons who were the objects of wiretaps early in his presidency, a statement that apparently contradicts the views of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

According to published reports, the former president says in a deposition that he approved an over-all wiretap program in 1969 but left the specific targets to Kissinger, then Nixon's security adviser. The deposition was to be filed in court today.

Nixon's position would appear to conflict with Kissinger's sworn statement that "while his (Nixon's) authorization was in general terms and not limited to specific individuals, my understanding was that he then directed surveillance of Morton Halperin and certain others."

Halperin, a one-time national security aide who was one of 17 persons wiretapped, is suing the former president, Kissinger and others for damages that could exceed $3 million.

Nixon gave the deposition — a question and answer session under oath — at his home in San Clemente, Calif., on Jan. 16 in connection with the Halperin suit. Nixon had sought to avoid giving the deposition but was ordered to participate by U.S. District Judge John Lewis Smith Jr.

Rhodes woos Volkswagen

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP) — Gov. James Rhodes of Ohio, who hopes to persuade Volkswagen to establish an assembly plant in his state, said today that foreign subsidiaries increase profits and jobs at home.

In a speech prepared for delivery to a gathering of American and German businessmen at Duesseldorf's Industry Club, Rhodes declared:

"Many U.S. businessmen have found they can increase profits and create more jobs for American workers by establishing operation outside the United States. Likewise, many European firms are discovering they can protect and enhance jobs of European workers by establishing additional operations in other parts of the world."

Bulletin

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A gunman who held two hostages for 29 hours at a Frankfurt courthouse and demanded release of an accused robber was seized by police today, authorities reported.

The two hostages, court clerk Dieter Hoss, 32, and Gottfried Schaffrath, 59-year-old salesman, were released unharmed, authorities said.

Details of the arrest were not immediately given or the gunman's identity disclosed.

Housing insulation measures approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Low-income families could receive federal funds and even free labor to insulate their homes under bills passed by the House and Senate.

A conference committee is expected to be named to iron out differences between the Senate bill passed Tuesday and the House version of the measure, which was approved last year.

Both bills would provide $55 million annually for three years for the home insulation program, billed as an energy conservation effort.

The House bill would have the Federal Energy Administration administer the program. The Senate bill would channel the money to local community action agencies.

Local programs would recruit volunteers to install the insulation, at a cost to the government of from $250 to $350 per home.

Backers of the proposal said homeowners could save about 25 per cent on their home heating bills as a result. They said as many as 900,000 residences would be eligible.

To qualify under the Senate bill, a family or individual could earn no more than half of the average income of the region in which they live.

The Senate version also would impose government sanctions on states and communities that do not comply with new energy conservation standards for buildings and homes. The Department of Housing and Urban Development would develop the standards over a three-year period.

The House bill contains no such provision, and some lawmakers feel this section will be the biggest hang-up in the conference committee.

After HUD announces its standards, states and communities would have to adopt new building codes. Failure to comply, under the Senate measure, would bring denial of federal assistance for new construction in the area.

trance to the mine, and about 1,600 feet below ground.

The explosion blew out concrete block walls that guide air through the tunnel, according to state police spokesman Steve Owen. The air helps keep methane gas found in deep coal seams from collecting in large quantities.

Carl Smithers, retired district superintendent for the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, said the explosion apparently occurred at the company's "A" coal seam.

Smoking still on the rise

Year after year, at the behest of Congress, the United States surgeon general issues a report on smoking and health. For more than a decade these annual reports have played variations on the theme that smoking sharply increases the likelihood of contracting lung cancer and other grave diseases.

One might suppose that such a weight of evidence and exhortation would greatly reduce cigaret consumption. The contrary fact is that last year Americans smoked one per cent more than the 600 billion cigarets consumed in 1974.

The reasons for this seem fairly complex, but one thing is evident: the inducements to take up or continue smoking outweigh the warnings. If our society really wants to curb what has become established as a serious threat to public health, a much more intensive educational effort will have to be mounted.

A WORD EDGEWISE...By John P. Roche

The voters scoop the pundits

The morning after the Massachusetts Democratic primary, the feature stories emphasized how much the Commonwealth had changed since its lonely support of George McGovern, 1972. The high theorists really worked themselves up into an almost evangelical passion over our desertion of "liberalism," our swing to the "right," and other outrageous crimes. Of course, the problem is these analysts painted themselves into a corner in the first place when they announced our electorate was a body of liberal firebrands. Actually the Massachusetts voters haven't changed - the commentators simply got the whole 1972 bit wrong.

Forgive me if I blow my own horn, but just about a month ago I wrote a column on "The Massachusetts Syndrome," trying to forestall all this nonsense. The last paragraph put the case summarily: "To conclude, my Democratic friends, come and by all means spend, spend, spend - our economy needs it - but if you have a battle-plan based on our 'liberalism,' throw it away." This insight didn't come to me in a vision: I have studied the eccentric ways of my fellow citizens at close range, rather than lurching regularly with other pundits.

To be precise, after the 1972 presidential election I prepared a detailed statistical study of the returns for the Boston Herald Advertiser which, to make a substantial article brief, indicated that without the student vote, Nixon and McGovern were in a dead heat. There were two indications that the students provided McGovern his famous victory: First, the fall-off from the presidential vote to the rest of the ticket based on one-shot ballots (persons who have not officially gained residence in Massachusetts can obtain ballots to vote only for President).

Second, McGovern picked up enormous margins in congressional districts with large student populations. Indeed, the results of my investigation worried me because things slotted so neatly. The McGovern margin was almost the same as the decreased vote; that is, the drop between the number who voted for President and those who voted in the senatorial election. If being anti-war is the definition of "liberalism," Massachusetts might qualify, but again you have to understand the source of anti-war sentiment. Among the students in 1972 it was the dominant orthodoxy: Anyone who opposed peace would be lynched on the spot.

But among the permanent party Democrats, primarily middle class and blue collar, anti-war sentiment was based on what I term "continental patriotism." I never knew a college student who got drafted and shipped to Vietnam (though I'm sure there were some); most of the men who went out there and fought came from the other segment of society. When the coffins started coming home, the continental patriots began to sign off, not because they thought Vietnam was "immoral and obscene," but because it seemed endless and pointless. They would slug anyone who unratified on "Old Glory."

In short, McGovern's 1972 Massachusetts victory was not a triumph for a fancy brand of ideology - it was like a plane ticket good for one flight and one destination. What is far more indicative of the general mind-set of our electorate is that in both 1952 and 1956 it gave the nod to Ike, and Jack Kennedy always came across as a hard-liner. Thus it should hardly be a surprise that over half the Democrats on March 2 fell in a range between Carter the mush moderate and Wallace's anti-busing punch - with Scoop Jackson, the quintessential John Kennedy liberal, taking a solid lead from a position between them.

Of the rest of the candidates, the only one with a survival capacity is Mo Udall. This doesn't mean they will all drop out - the rules and that Federal money are incentives to hang around and try another round of leapfrog. Since Wallace's only role is to be the spoiler - he can't get nominated - and I suspect he will dispose of Carter in Florida and Georgia, the name of the game now becomes "Stop Jackson!" Perhaps if all the left-wing candidates could unite behind Udall, something could be done, but this would be a token of the Second Coming. Or, to put it in secular terms, don't stand on one foot awaiting a coalition: In any group of five left-liberals there will be eight opinions, and discussion as a substitute for decision.

Pet rock vet shop set

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)—Michelle Wright is starting out on the ground floor of what could be the start of a whole new business. She's opening up a pet rock vet shop.

The 11-year-old Middletown girl recently wrote Middletown Police Chief Russell Dwyer for permission to start her business.

"I would like you to sign this paper, so I can go into business," she wrote the police chief. "What I want to do is this: open a pet rock vet house. I can teach them in attack training, and also tricks. If they are sick, I will take care of them. If the parents of this pet rock go on a trip, I will keep them at my boarding house. So please sign my paper."

"Send back as soon as possible. I am sending this to you so I can not get sued for malpractice. This is not a joke."

The girl explained that she got the idea from her grandfather.

"I sent the letter because I didn't want to get in any trouble with anyone. I've been hoping for an answer. I plan to make a little stand out in the front yard and see if I can get any business."

Death row inmate talks about life

LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP) — "I visualize the day I sit down in the chair, being strapped in," says the first inmate on Ohio's death row. "And of all these visions I've had about death and the chair, I was never the one to 'go' in it."

"I dreamed one day that I was strapped down into the chair and the man who pushed the button, he died." Carl Lamont Bayless, 19, of Akron has lived with the death sentence since May 29, 1974. He was convicted in the execution style murders of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Anthony of Wadsworth in February 1974.

He was the first Ohioan to reside on death row since the state's old death penalty law was struck down by the U.S. Supreme Court. When the Ohio Supreme Court rules on the constitutionality of Ohio's new law, the decision will be known by his name—State vs. Bayless.

Until that decision is made, Bayless remains in the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility, waiting to die. Bayless said he expects the death law to be upheld.

"I'm not hoping it will be...but the government has been trying to bring this back for the longest time, and society's not been going for it," he said. "But now crimes are being committed against society. Society is tired of these crimes, and they're looking for an answer."

"Most of the boys don't believe it'll be reinstated," he said. "I tell them 'I believe the best thing for you to do is to start looking forward to it, and that way when they (bring it back), it won't be a big surprise. And if they don't, it'll be a great joy for you.'"

Bayless said if he gets out of prison, he would like to become an evangelist. He has written three religious tracts which have been published.

"I believe God is my whole life," he said. "Without Him every day, I could not exist. I believe in miracles, and what He wants to be done will be done, and how He gets me out of here, through the courts or whatever, is His business."

Bayless said he does not think God's purpose is for him to die in the electric chair.

"This question has come to me many times," Bayless said. "I've thought, might you not die in that chair? That's very possible."

"But if that were so, then why the night (I tried to commit suicide) didn't I die then? Why, why am I still alive now? Why am I going through what I'm going through right now?"

"There's a purpose for everything, and there must be a purpose for this," Bayless said. "And if that purpose leads me to the electric chair...well, I'll tell you this, I don't believe I'm going to die in the electric chair this time."

Bayless was interviewed by news director Dave Lieberth of Radio Station WHLO in Akron.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, March 10, the 70th day of 1976. There are 296 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1876, the first clear telephone call was made when Alexander Graham Bell summoned his assistant from another room in Bell's house in Boston, saying: "Come here, Watson. I want you."

On this date:
In 1785, Thomas Jefferson was named the U.S. Minister to France, succeeding Benjamin Franklin.

In 1848, the U.S. Senate ratified a treaty ending the Mexican War.

In 1864, Ulysses Grant was made Commander in Chief of Union forces in the Civil War.

In 1941, President Franklin Roosevelt signed the Lend Lease act, providing for transfer of military equipment to the Allies in World War II.

In 1945, U.S. B-29 bombers began their first incendiary raids on Japan, setting fire to a vast area of Tokyo.

In 1969, in Memphis, Tennessee, James Earl Ray pleaded guilty to the assassination of the civil rights leader, Martin Luther King.

Ten years ago: Crown Princess Beatrix of the Netherlands married a German diplomat, Claus von Amsberg.

Five years ago: South Vietnam claimed that a military drive into southern Laos to cut Communist supply lines had left 7,000 enemy troops dead.

One year ago: Carla Anderson Hills became the third woman to serve in the U.S. Cabinet when she was sworn in as Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

Today's birthday: Queen Elizabeth's fourth child, Prince Edward, is 12.

Thought for today: A voter without a ballot is like a soldier without a bullet — President Dwight Eisenhower, 1890-1969.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Rouse and daughters Jessica and Julia, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Shepherd and children,

Surprise party given for Miss Oliver

Miss Martha Oliver was feted with a surprise birthday party, Sunday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maust, Lakewood Hills, in celebration of her 14th birthday.

Following refreshments of ice cream and birthday cake, she opened several lovely gifts.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Maust, Jeri and Brad, Mrs. Coyt Stookey and daughters, Rhonda and Sandy, and Miss Oliver. Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Andrews of Delaware.

Marguerite Class discusses banquet

The Marguerite Class held their meeting in the parlor at First Presbyterian Church, when Mrs. Leonard Dellinger opened the meeting with a reading, "The Way to God" by Helen Steiner Rice.

Mrs. Kenneth Craig gave devotions "Reliance on God," also the Lenten Covenant with members responding with sentences after the prologue.

Reports were presented, and a discussion of the May Banquet took place. It was agreed that the committee will make arrangements for the event.

Mrs. Dellinger read the "Legend of the Shamrock" before the Mizpah benediction.

An auction of 'white elephant' items was the highlight of the evening. Mrs. Jenkins was the auctioneer.

A dessert course was served by Mrs. Luke Musser and Miss Lorie Robison. A large bowl of jonquils and forsythia centered the table.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Johnson

Open house attracts many

Approximately 50 persons were present to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. James E. Johnson of Bloomingburg, when Open House was held for them in honor of their golden wedding anniversary.

The 'Open House' took place in the home of their son-in-law and daughter Mr. and Mrs. Chester Estep, 902 Pearl St., with their other children as hosts. Assisting in the hospitalities were Mrs.

Gene Fout, Robert L. and Richard D. Johnson, and granddaughters, Mrs. Charles Snyder, Mrs. Gary Mount and Mrs. Richard Gardner.

Mrs. Johnson was presented a corsage by the family, and a centerpiece of yellow and gold mums centered the table. Decorated individual cakes, punch and mints were served to the guests.

Mrs. Hawley honor guest at layette shower

Mrs. Danny Seymour and Mrs. Don Sever combined hospitalities at a layette shower given for Mrs. Wayne C. Hawley (Diane Mossbarger) of Columbus, in the home of Mrs. Seymour.

Games were enjoyed and prizes were awarded to Miss Mel Sever, Miss Linda Starr and Mrs. Tom Starr. Refreshments of ice cream and angel food cake were served.

Invited were Mrs. Lucille Yerian and Mrs. Nick Sexton of Good Hope, Mrs. Dane Mossbarger, mother of the honor guest, Mrs. Forrest Miller, Mrs. Edith

Clark, Mrs. David Mossbarger and Mrs. John Sever and Merl, all of Frankfort;

Mrs. Roy E. Gilmerr, Miss Alicia Seymour, Mrs. Lee Reisinger, Mrs. Joe Hottinger and Diania, Mrs. Neil Rowland and Ruthie, Mrs. Tom Starr and Linda, Miss Linda Reisinger, Amy Sever, Mrs. Lulu Baird, all of Washington C.H.;

Mrs. Jack Shepler and Shelly and Kelly, Miss Linda Sever of Columbus; Mrs. Robert Dick of Dayton; and Mrs. George Ritchey of Greenfield.

Sunny-East Belles meet in Huffman home

Mrs. Bernard Huffman welcomed the Sunny-East Belles Homemakers Club to her home Tuesday evening. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Robert Climmer and Mrs. Willard Greer. Guest night was also observed, with guests present, Mrs. Wilma Woodruff, Mrs. Vada Moats and Mrs. Helen Coyle.

Mrs. Climer conducted the business meeting and Mrs. Huffman read devotions using Psalm 121. Mrs. Allen O. McClung gave the secretary's report. Mrs. Dwight Foy, chairman, announced that the club will be guests at the Valley House, Chillicothe, for the Spring Banquet on May 11. Wrapping paper, a sales project of the club, was distributed to members.

Mrs. Huffman and Mrs. McClung were appointed to the nominating committee, and will present a slate of officers at the April meeting.

Individual flowers were made of lace and ribbon during the remainder of the evening by members and guests.

The next meeting will take place in the home of Mrs. Foy, April 13, with Mrs. Ronald Burns and Mrs. Robert W. Fries the assisting hostesses.

Famed chief Logan oration once a schoolboy standard

By The Associated Press
When Mingo Chief Logan rejected Lord Dunmore's peace overtures near Circleville, Ohio, in 1774, he did it with an oration that won world acclaim and became the subject of schoolboy recitations for many generations.

John Gibson, a trader and scout whom Dunmore had sent to bring Logan to the peace parley, translated the speech and delivered it to Dunmore in written words hailed as the finest example of Indian eloquence ever uttered. Logan said:

"I appeal to any white man to say, if ever he entered Logan's cabin hungry and I gave him not meat; if ever he came cold or naked and I gave him not clothing."

"During the course of the last long and bloody war, Logan remained in his tent, an advocate for peace. Nay, such was my love for the whites, that those of my own country pointed at me as they passed and said, 'Logan is the friend of white men.' I had even thought to live with you, but for the injuries of one man. Col. Cresap, last spring, in cold blood, and unprovoked, cut off all the relatives of Logan; not sparing even my women and children.

There runs not a drop of my blood in the veins of any human creature. This called on me for revenge. I have sought it. I have killed many. I have fully glutted my vengeance. For my country, I rejoice at the beams of peace. Yet, do not harbor the thought that mine is the joy of fear. Logan never felt fear. He will not turn on his heel to save his life. Who is there to mourn for Logan? Not one."

Logan was mistaken in one respect. White frontiersmen did kill his family in Jefferson County north of Steubenville, but Col. Michael Cresap had no part in it. Logan himself was killed by an Indian near Lake Erie in 1780.

BUSY BEES 4-H

Mrs. Vanilla Stritenberger of Steen's Department Store was guest speaker at the second meeting of the Busy Bees 4-H Club. She discussed skin care and teenage make-up techniques and demonstrated these ideas on 4-H'er Linda Neiswander.

The business portion of the meeting was conducted by Terri Vermillion, president. Becky Merriman led the pledges and roll call was answered by giving Project Title for the coming year. Ideas for community projects and places for the club to visit were also discussed.

A safety report on "Bicycle Safety" was given by Jill Dorn. She also conducted a bicycle safety quiz which everyone passed. At the next meeting, March 15, Jenny Martin will give a health report and decisions will be made on projects for the coming year. Refreshments were served by Melody Spaulding and Jill Dorn.

SUSAN REISINGER

TERESA McDONALD

JEFF SHARP

Seniors of the Week

Our first featured senior is Susan Reisinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Welby Reisinger. She resides at Rt. 1, Mount Sterling and has three brothers, Steve, Tom, and Joe, and one sister, Jodi.

This year Susan's courses are office practice, Bookkeeping I, physiology, senior homemaking, short story, composition, and government. She is a member of FHA, FTA, National Honor Society, and spends one period each day as an attendance assistant. She attends St. Colman's Catholic Church.

In her spare time, Susan enjoys sewing, swimming, crocheting, listening to music, and spending time with friends.

Next year, Susan plans to attend Ohio State University and enter the medical field. Her comment about Trace was, "Although I'm about to leave Miami Trace, being a student here has left me with many happy memories to always look back on."

Teresa McDonald is our second featured senior. She is the daughter of Patricia Burke and has one brother,

Mike, and one sister, Debbie. She makes her home at Rt. 1, Jeffersonville.

Teresa's classes include contemporary literature, business law, family living, consumer economics, bookkeeping, and symphonic choir. She is a member of Center Christian Church.

Camping, swimming, playing piano, watching sports, and being outdoors occupy Theresa's free time.

Teresa is undecided about the future. Her advice to the underclassmen is, "Be active in school and make the most of your high school years. Before you realize it, you'll be graduating."

Jeff Sharp is our last featured senior. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Sharp, Sr., of Bloomingburg.

This year Jeff is enrolled in Distributive Education II, psychology, and family living. He is a member D.E.C.A.

Jeff enjoys bowling, playing basketball and baseball (the Reds are his favorite team), and watching football. His future plans include learning more about business, attending a two-year technical school later on, and maybe starting his own business. His comment about Trace was, "My four years at Trace have been fun. I didn't accomplish a few things here that I would have liked to because the time went so fast."

LINDA DUNCAN

DE student of week

Linda Duncan, the Distributive Education Student of the week, lives at 1358 Meadow Drive with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Duncan.

This year Linda is taking Distributive Education II, business law, American government and family living. She works at Wendy's Restaurant as part of her D. E. II class. Linda's hobby is having a good time with friends. She is active in the following clubs: 4-H for seven years, FHA, AFS, and DECA.

Linda plans to attend a business college after graduation.

MT students end exchange trip

KATHY JUNK

Twelve Miami Trace students recently visited Staples High School on the AFS short term exchange program. Staples is located in Westport, Connecticut on Long Island Sound.

While interviewing a participant of the trip, I found many differences between Staples and Trace. Staples High School has nineteen hundred people in three grades. It is situated like a campus with nine separate buildings. There is no dress code but there is a smoking area to use during a free period. Most classes have ten people in them and there are more non-academic courses than Miami Trace. In order to drive a car to school you have to be a senior and take two or three people with you or have a job after classes. A fee of forty dollars must be paid for guards to protect your car also.

Those who went on the trip were Cheryl Zurfach, Linda Jordan, Dave McFadden, Pam Wood, Ross Brown, Dominique Blancke, Julie Fettes, Tim Schaefer, Nancy Rapp, Cindy Baird, Christy Stockwell, and Loretta Braun. During their stay, they saw a high school hockey game, an old whaling town called Mystic Seaport, went to parties and toured New York City.

Staples High School students will visit Miami Trace in April and stay with the Trace students who visited them. This exchange was arranged by Mrs. Margaret Dowler, the AFS student advisor.

Electronic deposit of checks starts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The electronic deposit of Social Security checks into savings and checking accounts will be extended nationwide by the end of the year after beginning in Georgia last month, a Treasury Department official says.

The new deposit system, which is optional to the recipient, eliminates the paper check entirely. Instead, a deposit is made directly to the recipient's checking or savings account from a magnetic tape prepared by the Treasury Department.

Les Plumly, a Treasury official helping to initiate the new system, said not a single complaint was received in the deposit of the first set of payments in Georgia last month.

"There were no late receipts and no missing receipts," he said. "It was as near perfect as we can have it."

In terms of acceptance, however, the system has not been an overwhelming success in Georgia. Plumly said the 52,000 Social Security recipients there who received their payments electronically represent only about 7.5 per cent of the total eligible.

But he said that in Florida, where the system will begin in early April, about 360,000 people will participate, or about 25 per cent of those eligible.

The Treasury hopes 18 million Social Security and other federal payments — about 40 per cent of the total — will be made electronically by the end of the decade.

The electronic deposits are the second step in the program to eliminate check payments. Last year, the Treasury Department initiated a nationwide program to mail recipients' checks directly to a bank or other financial institution of their choice.

About 3.5 million recipients signed up for the direct mailing program, Plumly said, which was better than the three million that had been expected.

Persons in the direct mailing program will be switched automatically to the electronic deposit system. All Social Security recipients will be informed when the electronic system is available in their areas and how they can sign up for it.

Eventually, all regular federal payments will be included in the system, which is part of an over-all trend toward electronic banking.

Plumly said major advantages of electronic payments are that there is no risk of loss or delay in the mail and the deposits are in the recipient's account on the date the payment is supposed to be made.

MT musical cast working diligently

With only about four weeks of rehearsal time left, the cast of the Miami Trace production of "South Pacific" work diligently to learn their lines, songs, and dances for their performance on April 2 and 3.

Behind the lead roles are several minor leads. In this group of characters are several outstanding performers.

Portraying the part of Captain George Brackett is Derek Gilbert. Capt. Brackett is the commanding officer at this military camp. He is loud and outspoken and is referred to as "Iron-belly" by the sailors and nurses. He is the man who must contend with the antics of the enlisted men and the natives throughout the show.

Directly under Captain Brackett is Commander William Harbison, played by Fred Melvin. Harbison is a fairly calm person, but a strict disciplinarian. He is Brackett's right-hand man, playing a major role in the commanding of the troops.

Beth Chaney plays the part of Liat, a native girl who speaks only French.

When her mother, Bloody Mary, introduces her to a young marine, Liat falls in love. Liat is very quiet and timid, but she seems to have little trouble communicating with her young marine.

Ngana and Jerome, Emile de Becque's children are portrayed by Brenda Delay and Tim Mossbarger. Ngana and Jerome's mother was a Polynesian woman now they live with their father on this pacific island. They both speak French, and they perform a number in French.

Maria, played by Judy Whiting, is Emile de Becque's servant. She keeps house and she takes care of the children. She also speaks French, and she performs with the girls' chorus. Many fine actors, actresses, singers, and dancers join together in presenting "South Pacific." Performance time is 8:00 p.m., April 2 and 3, 1976.

In order to have a better understanding of the Jewish faith, the Junior and Senior High Youth of Jeffersonville United Methodist Church, held a symbolic passover meal on Sunday evening, March 7th in the chapel of the church. Thirty-four youth and five adult advisers were present for the service that included the use of a number of Jewish prayers and a reading of the history of the passover.

Mrs. Elizabeth Satterfield served as hostess by presenting the opening benediction and prayer from the Union Prayer Book for the First Day of Passover (Pesach). This was followed by the responsive prayer for host and worshippers. Mrs. Eugene Griffith read from the book of Exodus and then presented "The Historical Significance of the Passover." This was followed by the drinking the first cup.

Mrs. Satterfield asked the traditional questions as to why we were celebrating this Feast Day. Pastor Eugene Griffith gave the traditional Jewish Responses to the questions, after which Mrs. Satterfield presented the elements of the meal, lamb, prepared by Mrs. Marion Stockwell; unleavened bread, bitter herbs. After dipping the unleavened bread in the cup, the group proceeded to partake of the meal.

Miss Penny Straley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morgan, Mrs. Eugene Griffith assisted Pastor Griffith and Mrs. Satterfield with the planning of the event.

Plans are now being completed for a Senior High Youth Work Camp to be held in Ponca City, Okla. during the month of June. On June 19, the pastor and 16 youth will make the trip to the Oklahoma Indian Mission Conference to help with the redecorating of a small Indian Church and to conduct Vacation Bible School for children in the community.

SPICE N PATCH 4-H

The first meeting of the Spice 'N Patch 4-H Club was held in the home of Miss Crabtree, when we elected officers. They are President, Kendra Pettit; vice-president, Christine Swaney; secretary, Sheri Dowler; treasurer, Kami Anderson; news reporter, Mandy Pettit; health, Julie Plumb; safety, Kim Rayburn; and recreation, Sara Rankin.

Instead of having dues this year, we discussed selling Bicentennial candles. The refreshments were served by Miss Crabtree.

All of our meetings this year will be at Miss Crabtree's home. The next meeting will be Wednesday, March 10, 6:30-7:30 p.m. Refreshments will be furnished by Kami Anderson and Sheri Dowler.

Home Ec classes featured

BY MARCIA MARKEL

The Home Economics III classes at Miami Trace are now teaching the girls how to refinish furniture.

The following steps are followed: (1) collect furniture from home, friends and teachers and remove old finish or paint (2) sand and do any repairs that are needed (3) choose a proper stain if color is needed (4) add a protective cover by varnishing (5) find a proper place to dry where it is warm and plenty of air.

It is very important that you keep the furniture you are refinishing clean and sand it smooth. It takes about two weeks of class room work in order to finish the furniture. Some of the furniture they are working with are picture frames, silverware, cases, and end tables. From the consumer's point of view it saves much more than if you would go and buy new furniture. The classes are taught by Miss Connie Evans and Miss Joyce Bull.

One person pleads guilty to charge

Grand jury indicts eight

Eight persons were indicted by a Fayette County grand jury Friday, but one defendant pleaded guilty to the charge against him before the findings of the jurors could be recorded on the Fayette County Common Pleas Court docket.

Indictments were returned against Delbert Thomas, 28, of Greenfield; Paul E. Leach, 732 E. Market St.; Franklin Woods of Grove City, Pa.; William P. O'Keefe, 619 Columbus Ave.; Hubert Smith, N. Fayette Street; and Roy L. Gray, Jr., and Charles Jones, both of Dayton. The eighth defendant has not yet been apprehended, and his name was not released.

Thomas pleaded guilty to sale of marijuana shortly after the grand jury session. He had been arrested by

Washington C.H. police officers for sale of two ounces of the hallucinogen to local youths. He was seen by an officer making the sale in a downtown alley.

Sentencing was delayed pending an investigation into Thomas' background.

Leach, 18, was indicted for two counts of breaking and entering. He was arrested Feb. 21 for allegedly breaking into the Rocking Chair Inn, 428 Wilson St., and Homer Lawson American Legion Post No. 653, at 815 Gregg St., the night of Feb. 13. Officials at the inn reported more than $200 in small bills taken.

Woods, 34, was arrested by city police on a bench warrant for failure to appear in Municipal Court. While he was being searched prior to incarceration, officers found several checks made out to Woods and signed by "John Loudner" on checks from the Fayette County Bank. Officers notified Loudner who said that some of his checks were missing and Woods had recently visited his home.

The defendant was charged with five counts of forgery. One of the checks was for $50, the remainder were for $40 each.

O'Keefe, 30, was arrested by Washington C.H. Police Ptl. Mike Stritenberger after being stopped last week for riding a bicycle at night without a headlight. Investigation by Stritenberger revealed that the description of the bicycle matched that of a 10-speed reported stolen a short time earlier. O'Keefe was charged with possession of stolen property.

Smith was charged with aggravated assault on Calvin Bellar, 722 Peabody Ave., Jan. 2. Bellar said the defendant had attacked him as he was walking on Market Street. The alleged assault reportedly stemmed from comments Bellar had made about Smith prior to the incident.

Gray and Jones were indicted for the theft of a horse trailer belonging to Barry Powell, 930 Briar Ave. Arrested Feb. 2, the pair allegedly took the trailer and headed toward Greene County. Fayette County Sheriff's deputies stopped the truck in which Gray and Jones were riding for speeding and later discovered a tackle box from the stolen trailer in the rear of the truck.

Gray and Jones reportedly heard on a citizens band radio that the theft had been discovered and unhooked the trailer along Hutchinson-Yeoman Road.

Law enforcement officials said no information concerning the eighth person indicted could be released until he was apprehended.

Firemen check electric short

Washington C. H. firemen checked an electrical shortage in a fuse box Tuesday. Fayette County Sheriff's deputies reported an automobile fire was doused by Greenfield firemen.

The wiring in a fuse box located at the Blanche Welch residence, 206 Florence St., reportedly shorted out and caused the fuses to melt at 6:05 p.m. Tuesday. Washington C. H. firemen removed the faulty wiring and fuses.

The Greenfield Fire Department was summoned to extinguish a motor fire that had occurred at Fern J. Grube, 1013 John St., was driving north on Ohio 41-S, one half mile north of the Gormley Road at 10:45 p.m. Tuesday. Cause of the fire was apparently a gas leak near the engine.

Fort McArthur, 13 miles southwest of Kenton, Ohio in Hardin County, was built to control the Scioto River in the War of 1812.

Ohio bonds sold at acceptable rate

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ending weeks of uncertainty over the state's credit standing, a Chicago bank investors group has purchased $100 million in Ohio revenue bonds at an acceptable interest rate.

The long-awaited sale frees money for construction at state-assisted colleges and universities.

The Ohio Public Facilities Commission awarded the bid Tuesday to a syndicate headed by First National Bank of Chicago at a 6.89 per cent interest rate over the 25 year life of the bonds.

"This is much better than we had hoped to do when we first started talking about the sale," a spokesman for the bond commission said.

Initially set for Jan. 20, the sale date was postponed on the recommendation of Gov. James A. Rhodes who said the shaky financial status of the State Office Tower could endanger the state's credit on the bond market.

A subsequent agreement between the Rhodes administration and Democratic legislative leaders on a short-term appropriation for the 41-story tower cleared the way for rescheduling of the sale. However, questions still remain on the long-term refinancing of the office building.

That was not mentioned Friday as the state went into the sale with an AA credit rating, the highest available for revenue bonds, and emerged with a bid more than a point under the current 7.04 bond buyers index.

Deputies investigate radio theft reports

A total of three citizens band radios were reported to Fayette County Sheriff's deputies as being stolen from cars parked on the north side of Mac Tool, Inc., U.S. 35-S, between the hours of 2:45 p.m. and 10:20 p.m. Monday. Additional charges have been filed against four persons by the Washington C. H. Police Department stemming from investigations conducted into the discovery of an undisclosed amount of stolen property.

The radios were stolen from cars belonging to Debbie Kay Wolfe, 143 Joanne Drive, Douglas W. Good, of Chillicothe, and Richard E. Carter, 8618 Miami Trace Road. The radios were valued at $130, $179, and $159, respectively. In every case, window wings on the cars were broken to gain entry.

A fourth car parked in the same area, and belonging to John W. Persinger, 2893 CCC-Highway-E, sustained a reported $335 worth of damage to one of the doors from an unsuccessful attempt made by the unknown subjects to remove a citizens band radio inside the car. Sheriff's deputies are investigating all four incidents.

Robert J. O'Keefe, 18, and his brother, Donald W. O'Keefe, 18, both of King of Prussia, Pa., have each been charged with petty theft, while Linda L. O'Keefe, 28, and William P. O'Keefe, 30, both of 619 Columbus Ave., have each been charged with a count of receiving stolen property and check fraud.

The check fraud charge against Linda O'Keefe stems from an $8.17 bad check she allegedly passed at Kroger's store on Clinton Avenue on Jan. 18.

William O'Keefe has been charged with passing three bad checks at Kroger's during January.

Patricia B. Collazo, 33, of Wilmington, was arrested by the Sheriff's Department after Seaway store officials reported that she attempted to leave the store without paying for a bottle of nail polish. The incident took place at 4:15 p.m. Tuesday.

David Perry, of 1476 Ohio 41-S, told sheriff's deputies that sometime between 8:30 p.m. Saturday and 4:30 a.m. Sunday, the convertible top on his car was cut while it was parked in front of Club 22, CCC Highway-W.

Washington C. H. police officers reported that Homer Queen, 33, of 1103 Gregg St. was injured at 8:10 a.m. Wednesday while working on a car in the Knisley Pontiac service department on Columbus Avenue. As Queen was working on an engine, the vehicle reportedly started, and being in gear, went forward and pinned him against a work bench. Queen suffered a fractured pelvis and is listed in "good" condition at Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

Vickie Sue Brown, 19, of 631 Grace St., told police officers that she observed a subject set fire at 2:52 a.m. Wednesday to flammable material on her front yard which eventually burned its way to where an automobile was parked. She reportedly drove the car away before any damage ensued, and refused to file charges.

A winter coat valued at $35 belonging to David McLaughlin, 608 Gregg St., was reported stolen from his car while it was parked in front of his residence sometime Tuesday afternoon.

Young man held in shooting death

MARIETTA, Ohio (AP) — Tommy E. Conner, 19, of Beverly, was being held in connection with the shooting death early Tuesday of Steven J. Whipkey, 18, of Marietta, the Washington County Sheriff's Department said.

Donald L. Jones, Washington County Prosecutor said Conner was arrested at the home of his father where the shooting occurred.

Office tower plan hits new obstacles

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A plan for long-term refinancing of the massive debt on the State Office Tower has hit a snag, even as the legislature approved a $3.1 million appropriation to deal with short-term problems.

The supplemental money bill, approved 32-1 Tuesday, will be used to shore up state agency rent payments and operating expenses of the 41-story skyscraper through June 30, 1977. The House must now agree to Senate amendments in the bill.

The difficulty rests with the plan hatched by Democratic legislative leaders last week for a new financing arrangement between the Ohio Building Authority, which operates the tower, and the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation, the financier.

In a letter to the OBA Tuesday, BWC Administrator Kenneth E. Krouse indicated the plan, calling for a lower interest rate, was not acceptable.

The refinancing, which would be enacted as legislation, would permit OBA to issue bonds to the workmen's compensation bureau and pay the interest based on the full value of the bureau's Insurance Fund. That would lower the current shortterm 8.6 per cent interest by about 2 per cent over the 20 to 30 year life of the bonds, the lawmakers contend.

"I am advising you that I cannot accept on April 16 (the next interest due date) Ohio Building Authority bonds with an interest rate reduced in accordance with legislation proposed," Krouse wrote the OBA, with copies to legislative leaders.

"It is doubtful that the legislature can dictate a rate of interest on fund investments that is below the market rate," he added.

Krouse also said would not "advance any additional funds" for the proposed Cleveland state office building until the present situation was cleared up.

Pilot error said cause of crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Transportation Safety Board has concluded pilot error caused a private plane crash last year that killed five Ohioans, including the publisher of the Columbus Dispatch.

By a 3-2 vote, the board ruled the pilot's unauthorized descent below the minimum published approach altitude caused the crash.

However, the two dissenting members would have assigned blame to both the pilot and air traffic controllers who failed to "defer clearance, issue altitude restrictions or issue a timely safety advisory."

The twin-engine plane disintegrated after striking a radio broadcasting tower on the campus of American University in Washington while trying to land at National Airport just across the Potomac River in Virginia.

The accident killed Edgar T. Wolfe Jr., 49, publisher and board chairman of the Dispatch; Fred Leveque, a widely known Columbus businessman; Carlton Dargusch Jr., a Columbus attorney, and the two pilots, Richard White and Robert Hatem, both of Columbus.

This new Litton combination microwave range lets you select the one best way to cook your favorite foods better.

Combination of Microwave and Conventional Cooking.

Why microwave and conventional cooking in one oven?

Simply because the two in combination cook better as one. Microwaves penetrate and cook the food quickly; conventional heat browns-in crispness. And saves time and electric energy, too.

Microwave Speed.

The new Litton combination microwave range also gives you the speed and convenience of microwave cooking only.

Conventional Heat.

Yet, the Litton combination microwave range can also be used as a conventional oven, or for smokeless, closed-door broiling. And it's available with a self-cleaning oven system that removes even the toughest baked-on stains.

Two Combination Models.

Small town weeps for eight slain youngsters

By CLINT SWIFT
Associated Press Writer
MINSTER, Ohio (AP) — At least 600 parishioners spilled over into the aisles and vestibule of St. Augustine Church on Monday, as a Lenten mass turned into this village's first night of mourning for its sudden dead.

As sobs echoed hollowly off the walls of the Roman Catholic church, the Rev. Joseph Pax announced the sacrament would be extended to the memory of eight Minster high school students killed when a car plowed into them on a dark rural road 24 hours before.

"We ask a special blessing for those here most closely touched by the tragedy, those left behind," the clergyman added.

News of the deaths numbed this squat village of 2,500 near the Indiana border. The young had a holiday from school with teachers away at a professional meeting, but the town's main thoroughfare and side roads lay nearly empty.

"I came into work today, but I just can't seem to get anything done," said merchant Roger Borneman. "I've got a daughter home crying her heart out. I lost a paperboy, and another dead boy's father rents my store. The kid used to sweep up for us."

Cletus Coverman, who farms a few acres outside Minster, said the small size of the town made the wound feel deeper. "We take it personally here. We all knew every one of those kids," he said.

Police Chief Bill Peoppleman confirmed the feeling. "It sure has slowed this town down, you can see it," he said. "Everybody's walking around here like they're in a stupor."

The victims were part of a nine-car caravan of 39 students, the highway patrol said. Tragedy struck Sunday at the intersection of two country roads outside the neighboring town of Maria Stein.

"We beat Maria Stein in the basketball playoffs the night before, and we wanted to go through town in sort of a procession," said trembling senior Jim Sexauer, who was in the caravan. He said some of the youths stepped out of their cars at the intersection to organize the group.

At 8:10 p.m., the highway patrol said, a car driven by John Kremer, 21, of Maria Stein, came over the hill from the opposite direction and went through the intersection. The Kremer car sideswiped the first caravan car and ripped through a group of students, then continued down the road to a farmhouse.

No charges were filed pending an investigation, the patrol said.

The victims were identified by the patrol as Ken Sommer, 15; Scott Westerheide, 15; Michael Kemper, 17; Anthony E. Kemper, 17; Lester R. Ranly, 16; Becky Moorman, 15; Joy Lee Brandewie, 14, and Barbara Olding, 15.

The accident also left three youths injured. James Dues, 16, was hospitalized in fair condition with facial lacerations, a hip wound and possible head injuries. Douglas Heyne, 16, was hospitalized with abrasions, facial lacerations and injuries to the right leg. Chris Deters, 15, was treated for an arm injury and released.

The twin, gold-capped spires of St. Augustine dwarf everything except the grain elevators in Minster. All eight teenagers were members of the parish. While church and school leaders arranged with parents for four funeral masses Thursday, townspeople gathered nearby in groups of three or four on manicured lawns before brick Georgian homes or walked silently in pairs along wide, silent tree-lined streets.

The bells of St. Augustine's tolled 45 minutes Monday morning, and flags at the high school, post office and fire station flew at half staff.

Outside town, at the intersection, law enforcement officials vied with gawkers for a look at the evidence Monday. Bits of twisted sheet metal, a hub cap and a door handle lay in deep ditches at the side of the road. Fields nearby yielded bottles of wine and beer, many still full. The pavement was stained a reddish brown despite the best efforts of cleanup crews.

Sexauer said he didn't know how he survived. "I was standing between two open doors, and the car hit Scott (Westerheide) and sent him flying. He was only five feet away."

Jim Quinlan, 15, who was in the lead caravan car, said the Kremer car went into a ditch, swerved back onto the road and kept going, leaving a swath of destruction in its wake. "It's kind of hard when you see your best friends die," he said.

A group of high school girls outside the church recounted tales told by those who had ridden in the caravan and lived. "Ken fought to the end. He was trying to lift what was left of his leg," said one.

Another told of Fred Sommer's dash from one rural farmhouse to another in search of a telephone to call for help that came too late to save his younger brother.

Still others told of youths making pillows of their coats for dying friends, covering the injured with blankets and administering mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Church officers said pews would have to be removed from the church to make room for the caskets. The slaughter seemed nearly more death than the town could understand.

"I just can't believe it," murmured Mrs. James Wente, as she lowered the flag in front of the fire station.

"Everything was so happy after the game Saturday and then this," said Minster senior Ned Prenger. "It seems like a nightmare."

The caravan was organized in the St. Augustine parking lot as it had been for years since the high school was moved from the building next to the church, said Elmer Gough, school superintendent.

At the high school, Gough predicted the students would accept their fellows' deaths better than most of the town's adults. "Soon they'll pour in here almost as if nothing happened," he said.

Service station owner Richard Boeckman heaved a giant sigh of relief. "My boy was with the caravan. He called me about an hour after reports of the accident began drifting back here. I was never so glad to hear his voice," Boeckman said. "I couldn't help thinking eight sets of parents would never hear their kids' voices again."

Direct-injection engine promoted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Ralph Regula, R-Ohio, said Tuesday that he would encourage further development and greater use of a direct-injection stratified charge engine which holds the promise of being a 35 per cent more efficient oil burner than conventional engines.

A direct-injection stratified charge engine known as the L-163S is being considered by the Army as a possible replacement for its standard Jeep engine, the congressman said. The new engine is being constructed in Regula's 16th district by a Canton firm.

Regula said research statistics indicate that use of a broad boiling range fuel in so-called DISC engines — instead of 91-octane unleaded gasoline that other engines use — can lead to as much as 35 per cent more miles per barrel of crude oil.

A Jeep containing the new engine is to be delivered to Washington this week for exhibition at military installations, including the Pentagon.

tatorship They tell us what taxes to pay, when to pay them, where to pay them and how much to pay and if we do not do what they say we are penalized and a percentage is added on and we were told also take us to court.

They said there was a question to be asked how did the present financial troubles arise? You think it would do any good to tell them that it is the councils fault and we might add this is not the first time.

In the city managers general fund summary of expenditures 1-0-70-71.1 city manager estimated $23,402.00 1975 actual 1975 $23,499.31 recommended 1976 $30,780.00 this is $7,280.69 more does this mean he gave his self a raise for the short time he has been here it is no wonder he says that when it comes to cutting his budget he is blind also 220 travel and transportation estimated 1975 $349.00 actual 1975 $347.99 recommended 1976 $900.00 this is $452.01 higher plus a city car I wonder why the citizens study committee never got around to putting this in the paper.

As I have told you before it is time for the taxpayer to stand up and fight for there rights if not this is going on and on and will never stop.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

The last time I came from school I entered town on U.S. 22 from the south. At that time it struck me how desolate Washington Court House may become in the future. The southern end of Court Street looked as if a shell had hit town, and bulldozers had been hauled at Hinde Street. At that point we now have two buildings with "mansard" roofs — the current solution to all architectural problems — while it seems the rest of the central business district lies wait.

All around town are examples of poor planning: discount stores and fast food restaurants springing-up everywhere, closed gas stations and boarded-up businesses. The downtown area is full of Victorian Italianate structures with beautiful yet deteriorating friezes, and above street level so little space is productively utilized. Doesn't anyone realize, for example, how much energy is lost through four exposed walls when buildings — such as Seaway, K-Mart, Murphy Mart, Wendy's, McDonald's, etc. — are constructed remotely rather than clustered? And how much energy is expended because we cannot walk from one of these businesses to the next?

Washington Court House does have a zoning board, but zoning obviously is not fulfilling all of our needs. Zoning must be coupled with long range planning, and I urge everyone with any sentiment for the city to consider its condition. Perhaps we then may have an efficiently functioning city.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

After reading the Record Herald and attending city council meetings special and regular they have not come up with anything that we have not heard before. You go to hire these meetings and here comes a man that does not know anything about the city government and two weeks later he is appointed to a citizens study group and then here is some that is not in the city they all come out and are going to tell us the taxpayer this that and the other. I wonder just who writes all this for them? As if I did not know.

Our city manager made a statement at last meeting that he was going to and I quote that he was going to educate the taxpayer.

They sit up there and put the sewer tax, income tax and now they want to put a millage on us even after the voters turned them down at the polls they cannot seem to take no for the answer and then they wonder why the voter does not go out and vote when they just as well say that there vote does not count the only vote that counts is when they vote in council.

I put letters in the paper and stated that they were going to do just what they are doing now they have imposed the city tax for 1/2 per cent and if they do not get the millage they will up the city income tax to 1 per cent I would almost bet on it for they do not know where to stop.

Our local newspaper at one time was highly praised but now you hear different opinions about it. The same applies to our local radio station.

As I have stated before it seems to me we are under a glorified dic-

Local man establishes new decorating center

A new decorating center has been opened in Washington C. H. John Dunn, 267 Carolyn Road, has opened Dunn's Decorating Depot in the former location of Crissinger's Tasty Shop at 201 S. Main St.

Dunn will own and operate the new decorating center with assistance from his wife, Carol.

The new store will feature carpeting, custom draperies and hard-surface floor coverings and accessories, Dunn said.

The building housing the new decorating center has been extensively renovated on the interior.

The 29-year-old Dunn served as manager of the home furnishings department at Steen's Department Store in Washington C.H. for six years before deciding to enter into the private business venture.

Born in Fayette County, Dunn has spent all of his life in Washington C. H. He is a 1966 graduate of Washington High School.

He was employed at Steen's Department Store for three years before entering the U.S. Army. Dunn spent three years in the U. S. Army signal corps and was honorably discharged in August of 1969 with the rank of specialist fourth class. After his discharge from the military service he rejoined the staff at Steen's Department Store.

He and his wife have two children, Amy, 7, and Kristi, 3.

Dunn said he plans to hold a grand opening celebration at the new decorating center later this month.

Local resident representing soybean growers on mission

Hugh Wilson, of Washington C.H., president of the Ohio Soybean Association, is one of two Ohio agricultural representatives participating in a "Trade Ohio" mission in Western Europe through March 20.

The purpose of the mission, sponsored by the Ohio Department of Economic Development, is to promote the sale of Ohio products to Western European markets.

As a representative of the Ohio Soybean Association, Wilson will be primarily concerned with boosting export markets for Ohio's 100-million-bushel soybean crop. Over half of the crop is exported annually through a Toledo seaport.

In Hamburg, Germany, Wilson will meet with Dr. Karl Fangauf, who conducts market development activities in Germany and Austria for the American Soybean Association. The Ohio Soybean Association is an affiliate of the American Soybean Association, which conducts soybean market promotion work in 44 countries.

The itinerary for the "Trade Ohio" mission includes stops in Brussels, Rotterdam, Paris, London, Dusseldorf and Verona, Italy. Members of the trade team will meet with U.S. agricultural attaches, grain importers, feed manufacturers and oilseed crushers.

In Verona, Italy, they will visit an agricultural fair, including the U.S. exhibit. Wilson, 719 Fairway Drive, in addition to his role as Ohio Soybean Association president, will also be representing Premium Agricultural Commodities, Inc., a grower cooperative based in London, Ohio.

According to chief's February report

Police probe 751 cases during month

Washington C. H. police officers investigated a total of 751 incidents during February, according to the monthly report prepared by Police Chief Rodman Scott.

Scott said that to date police officers have checked 1,550 incidents.

During the month officers aided 82 persons, investigated 54 larceny and theft incidents; probed 83 accidents; checked 48 traffic and parking situations; conducted checks on 44 suspicious persons and cars; received 74 miscellaneous calls; received 34 wanted person reports; check 40 juvenile cases; received 38 domestic complaints; checked 33 reports of open doors and windows and burglar alarms; provided 26 banking escorts; investigated 25 disturbances.

Police also probed 24 incidents of bad checks, forgery and insufficient funds; assisted on 23 fires; 21 dog and other animal complaints; 14 assaults; 13 destruction of property cases; 11 fights; 10 injured or ill persons; 11 lost or found articles received; 13 missing person reports; 12 prowler reports; 12 drunken driving, reckless operation and speeding cases; 10 calls to taverns or pool halls; seven burglaries; one dead person; nine drug cases; nine funeral escorts; two intoxicated persons; one mentally ill person; six obscene telephone calls or threatening phone calls; two robberies; one sex offense; two soliciting reports; one tampering with an auto case; and fire incidents involving weapons or firearms.

The 43 traffic arrests included three for speeding (one by radar); two for reckless operation; five for driving while intoxicated; five for failure to maintain an assured clear distance; two for drag racing; one for driving while under license suspension; two for excessive noise; six for failure to yield the right of way; one for an illegal turn; two for improper backing; two for improper passing; two for improper registration; two for leaving the scene of an accident; two for driving left of center; one for no operator's license; two for red light violations; one for excessive speed for road conditions; one for a stop sign violation and one for operating an unsafe vehicle.

To date, officers have made 97 traffic arrests.

Criminal arrests totaled 108. They included six on bench warrants; five for contributing to the delinquency of minors; eight for defraud; two for disorderly conduct; eight for disturbing the peace; three for disorderly conduct by intoxication; one for resisting arrest; one for robbery; one for aggravated assault; six for breaking and entering; two for grand theft; nine for petty theft; three for auto theft; two for forgery; and eight for other authorities.

During February criminal offenses known to the police department totaled 91. They included two robberies; five burglaries; one aggravated assault; seven grand larcenies; 34 petty larcenies; two auto theft; one resisting arrest; 18 embezzlement and fraud cases; one forgery; one possession of stolen property; six malicious destruction of property incidents; and 11 assaults. Casualty reports totaled 10, according to Scott. They included four dog or animal bites; four injured or ill persons; one dead person; and one drug overdose.

Sixty-seven traffic mishaps were investigated, 58 of them causing only property damage. Thirteen persons were injured.

Scott said there were 13 hit-skip accidents, two of which were cleared. Nineteen persons were charged in connection with mishaps. Total property damage from the accidents amounted to $19,167, an average cost of damage of $268.07 per accident.

Seventeen juveniles were referred to Fayette County Juvenile Court during the month including four for traffic violations; four for misdemeanor offenses; and nine for felonies. Seven juvenile cases were handled by police department and the offenders were released to their parents.

Police officers transmitted 3,185 messages over the computer terminal and received 3,460. Officers received 2,744 recorded telephone calls and 3,840 recorded radio messages.

The monthly report disclosed 36 warning tickets were issued, 15 for driving infractions and 21 for mechanical defects.

Officers made 83 total appearances to testify in court cases. The total included 59 in Washington C.H. Municipal Court, 16 in juvenile court and eight in Fayette County Common Pleas Court.

Value of property reported stolen totaled $6,403.20, Scott stated. The value of property recovered during the month hit $2,461.75 and the value of property damaged in vandalism cases was $108. Police also recovered $2,000 worth of property for other authorities.

Eagles set district meet

Fayette Aerie No. 423 of the Fraternal Order of Eagles will host a district meeting Sunday afternoon.

Representatives of local Eagles chapters in the 12th District will convene in the Washington C.H. Eagles Lodge, Sycamore Street, at 2 p.m. The dinner speaker will be Zane Mader, second vice president of the state Eagles organization.

Following the discussion and initiation of new members, those attending will be invited to stay and dance at the lodge. A meal will also be served.

Mader is the first representative from his district (No. 22) to become a state officer. An Army veteran, he attended school in North Dakota for three years on an Indian reservation. He has held several offices in the Eagles club and has dedicated himself to the betterment of the organization.

By The Associated Press
Low pressure moving toward Ohio from Lake Michigan was expected to spread thin cloudiness over the state this afternoon.

Along with this advancing cloudiness, some light rain was predicted in the northern sections of the state and there was a chance of some light rain elsewhere in Ohio during the afternoon and evening.

The threat of rain will end tonight as the Great Lakes low moves eastward, although some flurries are likely in northern Ohio as colder air moves in.

Southwesterly winds will push the mercury into the 40s north to the 50s south this afternoon. Lows tonight will again be in the 20s to around 30.

Fair Friday and Sunday and a chance of snow Saturday. Highs in the 30s and low 40s and lows in the 20s.

Bailey, Fort duel over Hearst case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For an entire day, Patricia Hearst's attorney and a government witness waged a verbal battle that was a virtual stand-off — and left the defendant all but lost in the war of words.

Miss Hearst, on trial for a terrorist bank robbery, heard her name mentioned fewer than a half-dozen times Tuesday, prompting U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter to sigh at one point, "We're losing sight of the Hearst trial."

Her attorney, F. Lee Bailey, and psychiatric expert Dr. Joel Fort traded thinly veiled insults and lengthy questions and answers tinged with sarcasm on matters dealing with Fort's attitudes and qualifications.

Bailey was expected to complete his cross-examination of Fort today, and U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. planned further questions as he tries to prove Miss Hearst was a convert to terrorism and thus took part in the bank robbery willingly. Miss Hearst says she participated only in fear of her life.

During the course of one argument outside the presence of the jury, the defense counsel conceded that Fort's testimony suggesting his client willingly became a terrorist was the most damaging yet.

Alluding to the jurors, he said, "If they accept his opinion, that's the end of the case."

Twice on Tuesday, the judge mildly prodded Bailey to wrap up the interrogation. When he once reminded Bailey that he had said he would finish by the end of the day, the attorney replied, "I'm trying to get to it but I'm getting some very long answers."

Obviously impatient at times, the attorney snapped at Fort once, "Can't you answer a question without delivering a lecture, doctor, or do you insist on it?"

Fort replied that lengthy answers were frequently necessary because Bailey was distorting his views.

"Your way of phrasing questions is based on your own lectures on how to destroy a witness you do not like," argued Fort.

Dr. H. L. True, 1845-1912, Morgan County, Ohio physician and naturalist, born in Athens County of a pioneer family, was also an authority on geology, and authored a book on "The Cause of the Glacial Period" which upset all previous theories.

Federal regulatory agencies: devils and angels

WASHINGTON (AP) — They decide that factory stairways must be at least 22 inches wide, and they protect bank depositors from losing billions of dollars in savings.

They won't allow cut-rate, $135-a-person airline service between New York and London, and they make commercial radio and television broadcasting feasible.

They bungle, and drive a toymaker to the edge of bankruptcy. They succeed, and save motorists' lives.

They have a voice in what Americans eat, breathe, wear and drive.

"They" are the unelected federal regulators, a growing band that now makes more rules directly affecting the people than do the elected members of Congress.

In the past decade, three presidents and Congress have vastly increased the regulators' reach and power. The number of major regulatory agencies has doubled to 24 since 1965, and they now employ 105,000 persons, up from 58,455. The cost to America's taxpayer has more than doubled.

Nobody in the federal government keeps track of all the forms that departments and agencies send out to people and businesses. An Associated Press survey turned up more than 9,800 forms the government sends out to the public. An estimated 556 million responses are sent back every year, with hundreds of millions of hours needed to gather the data and complete the forms.

This explosion in federal regulation has created a reaction.

President Ford accuses the regulators of "petty tyranny," joining other presidential candidates in seeming to attack the very government they seek to lead. Republican hopeful Ronald Reagan says business and government bureaucrats share a "warm cocoon" in regulation that protects both. Democrat Jimmy Carter pledges to consolidate many government agencies into simpler, more responsive ones. Even Ralph Nader, who inspired much of the new safety regulation, wants to get rid of regulators he says are wasteful.

The drive for change has taken on a name: "regulatory reform."

Are the criticisms justified? Will Congress reverse its decade-long trend toward centralized regulation?

The answer to both questions is yes. And no.

Big and Getting Bigger

Regulation does cost money, and it also produces benefits.

Examples of delays, bumbles, overzealous regulation and conflicting rules are easy enough to find. Yet much federal regulation is carried on without complaint or with strong support of the persons being regulated or with calls for more regulation.

It is true that, in sheer bulk, Washington's body of regulations is big and getting bigger. The Code of Federal Regulations, containing only the basic, standing rules set down by the bureaucracy, already packs a shelf 15 feet long with 60,000 book-size pages of fine print.

The number of pages has grown 20 per cent a year for the past several years.

These regulators — appointed officials and civil servants — now make more rules than the elected members of Congress.

A Library of Congress study found that during 1974, Congress passed 404 laws while the federal bureaucracy churned out 7,496 new or amended regulations. That's 18 regulations for every law.

Most of the regulations carry the force of law, meaning violators could be subject to fines or jail.

The budgets and number of employees of the regulators have soared in the last decade. In 1965, the 12 major agencies spent $860 million, employing 58,455 people.

President Ford's proposed budget for this coming fiscal year lists $3.8 billion for the 24 major agencies and 105,000 employees.

That means the cost of regulation has gone from $4.43 per American to about $10.36, adjusted for inflation.

The Spreading Impact

This growth came as Washington answered demands for cleaner air and water, for less job discrimination against blacks, browns, women and the elderly, for safer autos, workplaces and consumer products, and for more honest elections.

The result is a sea of alphabet soup. EPA. OSHA. NATSA.

That's the Environmental Protection Agency, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. Then there's the FEA, FEC and the EEOC. The list goes on and on.

Regulators still make up a tiny minority within the federal government. The current $3.8 billion for the 24 major agencies is less than one per cent of Ford's proposed budget. Yet their impact, once confined to a few industries — transportation, communications, agriculture, finance and drugs — now has spread to many unaccustomed areas.

Federal job safety inspectors can fine a New York girdle maker $500 for locking his emergency fire doors. It happened recently to Anita Foundations Inc.

Auto safety officials press California, Utah and Illinois to force motorcyclists to wear approved crash helmets.

Pollution officials are moving to outlaw traditional marine toilets on even the smallest cruising boats, requiring either waste-treatment devices costing $400 and up or inexpensive but inconvenient tanks that hold waste on board.

Regulations' Cost

How much does all this regulation cost? There is simply no accurate way to measure regulation's total impact on the nation, although many are willing to try.

President Ford's aides in the Office of Management and Budget estimated regulation's cost at $130 billion a year in artificially inflated prices, additional costs to business and lost productivity. This estimate — totaling about $2,000 for each family — is based on a mish-mash of economic assumptions, projections and guesses.

In one instance, the OMB counted the costs of foreign trade restrictions that no longer exist.

The administration study also said Americans spend $40 to $60 billion a year to meet federal pollution standards. Yet the congressional General Accounting Office, in a report critical of the OMB study, said Ford's aides had misquoted the original source for the figure, which had put anti-pollution costs at $33 billion.

The Benefits

Does the regulation do any good? Frequently, yes.

The 3,451 people with accounts at a

Houston bank didn't lose their savings when the bank collapsed. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. paid them $12,259,733. Of course, some say there should be more federal regulation of banks to prevent such failures.

Not all governmental nitpicking is needless. Late last year, the Food and Drug Administration got a court order to seize imported boar-bristle brushes from a Los Angeles importer because the brushes were contaminated with nits.

Nits are lice eggs.

Even the auto manufacturers concede that federal auto safety regulations save motorists' lives, probably by the thousands.

America's air is measurably cleaner since EPA began work.

Whatever the cost of cleaner air or prolonged lives, their worth can't be measured in dollars. This makes comparison of cost and benefit essentially a matter of personal opinion.

"Horror Stories"

Often the benefits of regulation are hard to see, while the defects are all too apparent.

There is little question that government can take years to reach a seemingly simple decision, as when the FDA went through nine years of hearings, proposals and comment periods before deciding that anything labeled "peanut butter" must contain at least 90 per cent peanuts.

Outright mistakes are made. And sometimes even admitted.

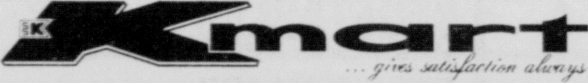

In 1973, the fledgling Consumer Product Safety Commission erroneously banned as unsafe a toy plastic ball manufactured by the Marlin Toy Products, Inc., of Horicon, Wis. The commission later admitted the boner, but the company says the mistake cost it $1.2 million in cancelled orders and forced the layoff of all but 10 of its 85 employees. Congress has authorized payment of damages to Marlin, with the amount to be set by a claims court.

TV Viewing

NEW YORK (AP) — No doubt because this is the last week for shows to be considered for Emmies this season, NBC has not one but two superb dramatic specials on tap tonight and Thursday. You'd be wise to catch both.

Tonight's opus is "The Entertainer," a remade-for-TV version of the bitter, powerful 1957 play and 1960 film by Britain's John Osborne. It stars Jack Lemmon as Archie Rice, a failed, second-rate vaudevillian.

Thursday's show is "Farewell to Manzanar," a retelling of one family's experiences during one of the saddest home-front stories of World War II — the forced internment of 110,000 West Coast residents of Japanese ancestry shortly after Japan's surprise attack at Pearl Harbor.

The original "Entertainer," set in England during the Suez crisis, was as much an allegory about the decline of Britain's world influence as it was a yarn about a sad song-and-dance man and his sad family.

In Elliott Baker's rewrite of the play for TV, the setting is a seedy burlesque house in coastal Santa Cruz, Calif., the year is 1944, and the emphasis is strictly on the woes of Archie Rice and his family.

As Rice, a man working in the shadow of his famous, retired vaudevillian father (Ray Bolger), Lemmon does a brilliant job depicting a cynical, boozily sentimental, skirt-chasing entertainer in his late 40s who never hit it big, never will, but can't acknowledge that he's a flop.

One of his throw-away gags to his small audiences sums up his life: "I feel I'm walking up a gangplank and there's no ship in sight."

Of the four family members accompanying his walk, Sada Thompson, cast as Phoebe, his second wife, turns in the most powerful supporting performance.

Watch this effort tonight. It's depressing, but first-rate entertainment.

Thursday's "Farewell to Manzanar" is an equally absorbing drama, set in a wartime internment camp in central California. Ten such camps housed Japanese-descent persons, most of the inmates loyal Americans.

Young viewers who wonder how the camps ever came to exist should see this program, based on a book coauthored by Jean Watatsuki Houston and featuring an Emmy-caliber performance by Yuki Shimoda, cast as her father.

Mrs. Houston was only 7 when she and her family were uprooted from their home in Santa Monica, Calif., shipped to Manzanar and kept there behind barbed wire, under armed guard, until near the end of the war.

It's through her eyes this tragic period in American history is retold, the telling aided by uniformly good acting by the Japanese-American cast and fine direction by Emmy award winner John Korty.

Tennyson Guyer had heart attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Tennyson Guyer, R-Ohio, was reported recuperating satisfactorily at Bethesda Naval Hospital after it was discovered that he had suffered a mild heart attack.

Guyer, who was first elected to Congress in 1972, had entered the hospital March 2 with symptoms of the flu and to have a complete physical examination, his office said.

While conducting the examination doctors discovered evidence of a myocardial infarction which had occurred at some time in the last two years, according to the congressman's office.

The spokesman for the 62-year-old Findlay congressman said there did not appear to be any complications and it was expected that he would be released from the hospital sometime in the next 10 days.

Whistling swan migration seen

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The annual spring migration of the whistling swan is expected to be the highlight of Ohio's observance of National Wildlife Week, March 14-20.

In keeping with the theme of the observance, "Save Our Wetlands," the wildlife division is sponsoring a

"Whistling Swan Day" program at the 2,600-acre Magee Marsh Wildlife Area near Oak Harbor.

The swans, the largest waterfowl to migrate through Ohio, stop at Magee Marsh and other wildlife areas each spring on their way to Alaskan nesting grounds.

The portable scanning monitor that goes where you go... the all new Bearcat Hand-Held

Now, from Electra, the inventors of the scanning monitor, comes a brand new portable model...the Bearcat Hand-Held!

As with all scanning radios, you choose the frequencies you want to monitor. There are over 6,000 radio channels assigned to public service agencies (police, fire, weather, etc.) by the Federal Communications Commission. Each frequency is covered by a specific crystal, which, when plugged into the Bearcat Hand-Held, will enable the radio to receive that broadcast.

The tiny (6" x 4 1/2" x 3") Bearcat Hand-Held weighs only 11 ounces and comes in two versions: a two-band (high/low model) and a UHF unit. Performance is close to the high standards set by the Bearcat table models.

The receiver is capable of monitoring up to four channels. It will lock on and listen to broadcasts as they occur, and then resume scanning, looking for more action. Each channel is identified by a light-emitting diode. Scan rate is all channels every half of a second! And every channel has an individual lock-out switch... letting you select frequencies of current interest and eliminate scanning of unwanted channels. This feature is not commonly found among the industry's portable offerings.

Controls include volume, squelch and auto/manual/channel select. Both units come with a telescoping antenna, but provision for use of an optional "rubberized" antenna has been made. And a handy belt clip is included.

Jacks for optional accessories include earphone, external antenna, battery charger and AC adapter. The set is powered by 4 penlight AA cells and produces 250mw of audio power.

By MARK REA
Record-Herald Sports Writer

To say the least, the Washington C.H. Blue Lions have their work cut out for them when they travel to Rio Grande College for the first-round game of the district tournament. The Lions have the unenviable task of trying to knock off the Wheelersburg Pirates, something that hasn't been since last.

Wheelersburg is presently 10-0 and dating back to last year, they are 40-1. That lone loss came at the hands of the Greenfield McClain Tigers in last year's district tourney and the Pirates would like nothing better than to knock off a team that has beaten the Tigers three times this season.

The Pirates, an extremely disciplined team, rely heavily on their quickness and shooting ability. Wheelersburg displays speed, ball handling, and outside shooting and displays them all with a degree of excellence.

They play unique style of offense as they line up in a 3-2 set with their three big men outside and the two backcourt men directing traffic at the baseline. Their type of man-to-man defense usually blankets opposing offenses to the point where Wheelersburg's defense average is one of the lowest in the state.

Listed as forwards are Brian Bays and Jeff Meadows. Bays, a 6-foot-2 senior, is the team's best rebounder and has a very good outside shot. Meadows, also 6-2 but only a sophomore, is the premier ballhandler for the team. He is also an excellent passer and playmaker. Meadows operates the offense from the top of the key and will penetrate on occasion.

Probably jumping center will be 6-foot-3 Joe Rase. Rase, a senior, is the Pirates' best outside shooter and big scorer. Also at his height, he will be expected to grab some rebounds. His favorite shot is from the corner and he seldom misses it.

In the guard slots, both at 5-foot-11, are Gary Bailey and Dean Miller. These two work the inside in the Wheelersburg offense and when they take their shots, they put the ball up from inside 10 feet. Bailey is at his best underneath against a zone defense where he can get easy baskets.

Miller doesn't look for a shot often but can hit from anywhere on the floor.

The Wheelersburg bench is not much to speak of but with their frontline, they don't need a lot of backup. However, if the Lions can get one of the Pirates in foul trouble like they did to Chuck Thompson of Waverly last week, their chances of winning would be greatly increased.

Blue Lion head coach Gary Shaffer refused to speculate upon his starting lineup because of Wheelersburg's quickness and speed. Almost assured of starting roles are forwards Doug Phillips and John Denen because of their outside shooting and their rebounding.

Phillips has played his best basketball in the tournament games and district games are no different even though he has played in just one. Against Waverly two years ago, he pumped in 19 points in a losing effort to lead the Lions. Along with Denen, who also can hit with accuracy almost anywhere on the court, they make up the Lion board strength. Going against the Pirate guards for defense rebounds should even add to their rebound total.

From there, it is simply a guess about Shaffer's lineup. Ken Upthegrove has started at center the past three tournament games and Eddie DeWees has done an outstanding job with clutch performances coming off the bench.

Chuck Byrd, Dee Hart Foster, and Sam McClendon are the chief contenders for the guard positions with Scott Sefton coming off the bench in crucial situations. Byrd, who has not been playing well as of late, possesses quickness to offset the Pirates while Foster and McClendon work well against a pressure defense.

The Blue Lions' record now stands at 15-6 this season and if they expect to get to 16-6, they will have to play their best game of the season and, hopefully, catch the Wheelersburg five on an off night.

If the Lions should defeat the Pirates, they will play again at Rio Grande on Saturday evening. They would play the winner of the Ironton-Meigs County game for a berth in the regional tournament at Ohio University. Tip-off time for both games is 7:30 p.m.

FIGHTING FOR REBOUND — Mitch Kupchak (21) of North Carolina, although outnumbered two-to-one by David Brown (22) and Stan Rome (3) of Clemson, seems to have upper hand while fighting for rebound under Clemson basket. The ACC - champion Tar Heels will meet Alabama Saturday in a first-round NCAA tournament game.

Owners suffer court setback

Baseball split widens

NEW YORK (AP) — Representatives of major league baseball's players and club owners, apparently further apart than they've ever been in their current complex contract negotiating sessions, meet again Thursday in Tampa, Fla., with the first order of business to heal the wounds of Tuesday's meeting.

The owners took salvos from two different directions Tuesday. On one hand, Marvin Miller, the executive director of the players' association, leveled a blast at them, accusing them of issuing misinformation and trying to divide the players.

But the biggest blast of the day came from the relative calm of a courtroom in St. Louis where a three-judge Appeals Court ruled unanimously against the owners and affirmed the decision of arbitrator Peter Seitz, who granted free-agent status to pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally.

It was the second court setback for the owners. They have only one more appeal — the U.S. Supreme Court.

But, in handing down its decision Tuesday, the three-judge panel emphasized that "some form of a reserve system is needed if the integrity of the game is to be preserved ..."

"The disagreement lies over the degree of control necessary if these goals are to be achieved," said Judge Gerald W. Heaney, who wrote the decision on club ownership of player contracts for an 8th U. S. Circuit Court panel.

"Certainly, the parties are in a better position to negotiate their differences than to have them decided by a series of arbitrations and court decisions," Heaney added.

Major league owners, in disputing a finding last December by arbitrator Peter Seitz in favor of Messersmith and McNally, filed suit to invalidate the action in U. S. District Court at Kansas City.

Messersmith and McNally are the only major league players currently affected by the ruling, having played out their options last year with the Los Angeles Dodgers and Montreal Expos.

But if the ruling goes unchallenged and the reserve clause is not revised, it would permit payers signing 1976 contracts to play out their options on a one-year renewal basis the next year and become free agents in 1978.

Tuesday's three-hour session, the 26th thus far, ended in acrimony with Miller charging the owners with

"negotiating over our heads ... Their public relations campaign creates a lot of problems. We have to spend a lot of time correcting the misinformation that the owners put out."

Miller said he had uncovered an attempt by one club — he declined to identify it — to put out a phony survey of its players. He said the players were asked one question, then the players' answer to a different question was placed on a telegram.

Miller also said the recent public statements of several players were proof that the owners were conducting a "campaign of misinformation. We can't spend our time continually putting out the fires ... I'm not complaining. I'm merely explaining the results of their action."

Miller said a major problem remaining was the owners' insistence that he retroactively strip his players of their rights won in the Seitz decision and now upheld by two federal courts.

The owners insist any basic agreement would retroactively cancel out the Seitz decision, which allows every player with a 1976 individual contract to become a free agent in 1977 if he doesn't sign for 1976 and in 1978 if he does sign in 1976 but refuses to sign for 1977.

Johnny Bench in unemployment line?

Top stars could get benefits

NEW YORK (AP) — Can you imagine Johnny Bench, Fran Tarkenton, Bobby Orr and Rick Barry standing in line, waiting for their unemployment paychecks?

Don't laugh: it's possible.

Because most of them are paid on a seasonal basis, professional athletes are technically eligible for unemployment benefits, according to an official of the Department of Labor.

Robert Seebol, associate regional administrator of the employment training administration, said that a player's income during the period he is paid by his team would not enter into the question of his eligibility for unemployment benefits.

Several Milwaukee Brewers players have been receiving benefits, according to Bud Selig, president of the baseball team.

"Normally, yes, they would be eligible," said Seebol. "High earnings would not bar them from receiving benefits during the period when they are not employed."

The key to the whole matter is the period of paydays for pro athletes.

Most baseball players normally are paid twice a month starting from April 15 and running through the end of the season. They are not paid in the off-season. The same is true for football players, most of whom are paid over the 14-week schedule of the regular season from September until December. Almost all hockey and basketball players also receive their salaries twice a month during the season.

There are, of course, exceptions. Some players choose to be paid on a 12-month basis to assure regular income all year long. They would not be eligible for unemployment benefits. But technically, said Seebol, when athletes are not receiving paychecks from their clubs, they are unemployed.

Moore leads Tigers to district victory

COLUMBUS — Johnstown found that holding Circleville's leading scorer below his average isn't the answer to eliminating the once-beaten South Central Ohio League champs from district play.

Circleville's Biff Bumgarner scored 14 points, seven below his average, but center George Moore picked up the slack by scoring 22 points and grabbing 11 rebounds.

Moore's efforts helped the Tigers to a convincing, 70-53, win over Johnstown in the first-round of district tournament play at Columbus.

Moore did most of his damage from the freethrow line hitting 14 charity tosses. Senior guard Mike McCoy also hit in double figures for the Tigers. He finished with 15 points.

The Tigers opened up quickly scoring 21 points in the first quarter which is one point more than Johnstown had at halftime.

The loss dropped Johnstown from the tournament with a 17-4 record. Circleville will meet Columbus Bexley Friday night at 9 p.m. in the coliseum.

Bexley was a 55-44 winner over Mifflin in last night's second district contest. Bexley topped Miami Trace earlier this season by a nine-point margin.

Circleville is the district's defending champion and if the Tigers win Friday they will again head to Dayton for regional play.

Newcombe discloses alcoholism

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former major league pitching star Don Newcombe is telling high school students around the country how he won 149 games as a major-league baseball pitcher but then lost his career, his business, his home and almost his family to alcoholism.

Newcombe, 49, now a recovered alcoholic, told his story to the Senate's alcohol and narcotics subcommittee Monday as he talked about drinking in baseball and the climate of acceptance he believes television has created for alcohol among the nation's young.

The subcommittee is chaired by Sen. William D. Hathaway, D-Maine, who said there is some pressure to bar TV commercials for beer and wine. Newcombe said he did not endorse such a move and noted that while there are 10 million persons in the United States who are alcoholics, 90 million others are able to drink with no real problem.

Here is an excerpt from Newcombe's testimony:

"My drinking began when I was about eight years old. My family drank, and I drank right along with them. When I entered organized baseball and joined the Dodgers in 1949, my consumption of beer increased enormously.

"The fact is baseball managers encouraged the drinking of beer — and they still do. To this day, the only way to celebrate a baseball victory is for each player to knock off a six pack of beer in the dressing room after the game.

Pete Johnson of Ohio State led the nation's collegians in scoring last season. In 11 football games he tallied 150 points on 25 touchdowns.

District cage contests set

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

Of the 14 Southeastern District teams still alive in the three classes of post-season basketball play only one, Wheelersburg, has a perfect record this season. Of course that's the team the Washington C. H. Blue Lions must beat Thursday night at Rio Grande College.

Wheelersburg owns an impressive 20-0 record, but 7 of those wins were against class A teams. Washington C. H. has a less impressive 15-6 mark, but the Blue Lions had no class A schools on their schedule this year.

Two of Washington's losses were to Circleville, a class AA powerhouse, and the Blue Lions lost one game each to class AAA Miami Trace, Wilmington and Chillicothe. Chillicothe is still alive in the class AAA district.

Nevertheless, Wheelersburg could be considered the decided favorite in the Rio Grande district tournament.

The other two schools, in that district, Ironton and Meigs, meet tonight. Ironton has an impressive 19-2 season record, but one of those losses was against Jackson on Ironton's home floor. Washington C. H. beat Jackson by five points earlier this year.

Meigs has a 12-9 mark after sweeping through three games of the Stewart School at Federal Hocking High School. Ironton also breezed through its sectional with three victories.

In fact, Washington C. H. and Wheelersburg were the only two teams to have trouble in the sectional taking slim victories. The Blue Lions beat Waverly by only two points and Wheelersburg edged Minford by three points.

Chillicothe will meet East Liverpool in the Marietta district Friday. The Cavaliers earned the berth by topping Portsmouth 52-48. Portsmouth was an earlier winner, 74-71, over Miami Trace in the sectional.

In the lower bracket of the class AAA district Lancaster goes against Cambridge.

In Class A district action, Adena and North Gallia were considered the favorites with 19-2 marks, but North Gallia lost to Alexander last night in first round action at Chillicothe. Alexander with a 16-5 record will meet Adena this Friday night and the winner will advance to regional play at Steubenville next week.

Adena is having its best season ever and coach Ron Hall has his Warriors riding a 13-game winning streak.

In the lower bracket of the class A district, Chesapeake will meet Valley in a first-round game and the winner will face Peebles, an upset winner over Leesburg-Fairfield in the Hillsboro sectional.

Peebles, which lost to Fairfield twice in regular season play, topped them, 69-

45, in the sectional finals. It was only Leesburg's second loss of the season. The other one was at the hands of Hillsboro earlier this year in an overtime game.

football split end, earned Southwestern honors in basketball for the second successive season.

The Middies star averaged 26 points, 14 rebounds and eight assists in his senior year.

A district panel of sports writers selected Class AAA area Co-Coaches of the Year, Will Collins of fourth-ranked and unbeaten Bellefontaine and Don Gillespie, who led Hamilton Garfield to a 14-4 regular season mark.

The selections are based solely on regular season competition.

Pat Tabler of Cincinnati McNicholas and Jeff Bentley of Mason shared the Southwestern Class AA Player of the Year laurels.

Tabler, a 6-3 senior, averaged 25 points, 10 rebounds and six assists as a guard. The 6-4 Bentley, headed for the University of Cincinnati on a football scholarship, had 21.2 points, 15 rebounds and five assists this season.

Jimmy Carter, Indian Lake's 41-year-old mentor who turned a 5-14 team last season into 12-6 this time, earned the area Class AA Coach of the Year title.

Cincinnati Lockland swept the Class A honors, Bill Phillips winning the coaching crown and his 6-6 senior hotshot, Greg Johnson, the No. 1 player designation.

Lockland, facing many Class AAA schools, still won 17 of 18 games under Phillips, twice the Southwestern District Track Coach of the Year.

Johnson, another heavily-recruited college prospect, averaged more than 32 points and 17 rebounds, connecting on 59 per cent of his field goal tries.

Minnesota put on probation

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The University of Minnesota's basketball program faces two years of stiff penalties — and three years of probation — for violating National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) rules from 1971 to 1975.

But former Minnesota Coach Bill Musselman, under whose reign the violations occurred, said there were "a lot of things where I don't even know what they're talking about."

According to sanctions announced Tuesday night by the NCAA's Committee on Infractions, Minnesota will be allowed to give only three basketball scholarships the next two years, compared with the normal six per year. The Big Ten school also may not play in post-season tournaments for two years and may not appear in televised games controlled by the NCAA.

The school will be on probation for three years and the NCAA will review the institution's athletic policies and practices before the end of that period.

University officials declined comment Tuesday night, saying they would give their views at an 8:30 a.m., CST, news conference today.

Musselman left the university last summer, right after it was announced the NCAA was investigating the basketball program. He coached the now-defunct San Diego Sails of the American Basketball Association, and coached the ABA's Virginia franchise for a short time. He no longer has a coaching job, but has said he would like to coach a pro basketball team in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area if one can be started.

Virtually all the 127 violations cited by the NCAA allegedly occurred during Musselman's tenure at Minnesota.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

ONE OF THE MOST difficult design problems facing architects is the layout of a good small home. Herman York, 90-04 161st St., Jamaica, N.Y. 11432, has tackled it in the 1,267 square feet of Plan HA890Y. There is a covered front entrance, coat closet at front door, good separation of living, service and sleep areas. The kitchen is near both the garage and family room. The laundry is separate from the kitchen. The garage has storage space and a window. A barbecue can be built at the chimney, on the rear terrace. Anyone wishing to know the cost of the blueprint can write to the architect, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Here's How

Windows Made Differently

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Do-it-yourselfers who haven't done any major building for a while might be surprised at some changes that have been made in some windows and doors. They should read the fine print in the catalogs before ordering.

For example, a do-it-yourselfer building a small room pulled some new windows from cartons as his wife stood anxiously at hand. "Yuk," she said, "the frames look like plastic." The do-it-yourselfer grinned. After all, hadn't he used these windows many times? Examining them, though, he had to agree.

Back to the window catalog for clarification.

The window frames were vinyl-coated and guaranteed to last 10 years or whatever, the catalog informed the couple.

A choice had to be made. Do you return the windows and wait weeks for new ones or do you use the long weekend planned for the work and make the windows part of the new room? Then, too, the winter was setting in.

The do-it-yourselfer proceeded without his usual enthusiasm. An artist, he regretted, too, he said, "that the windows had no personality — they looked too perfectly shaped and grooved."

Another discouraging aspect was the catalog's reminder that "only special paints could be used over the vinyl parts."

A call to the lumberyard supplier another day ascertained that it really wasn't all bad — any paint could be used as long as it didn't have creosote in it "which could dissolve the coating."

Why is a vinyl finish put over the wood?

"Actually people are getting lazier and they don't want to be bothered by a lot of maintenance," said Ron Meyer, purchasing agent for a New Canaan, Conn., lumberyard that lies in a do-it-yourself belt.

"Another factor besides the no-maintenance feature is that the wood used under the vinyl does not have to be of a high-grade wood. Window companies can utilize wood that was formerly wasted.

"For example, if they cut five-foot boards and little blocks of wood are left over, they can be processed into a long board that can be used for inner cores entirely, providing a more stable product even than that made of ordinary boards, although it is not as attractive. That is why it is coated..."

The process is used by several companies, he said.

There are steel doors now, too, that you can't tell from wood, he claims. These are made with synthetic insulation sandwiched within. You can paint the doors, which come with or without lights (panels of glass), and some weigh even less than wood doors.

"You must buy the frame that comes with the door, though, because the doors have refrigerator-type weather stripping — like the long thing around your refrigerator door that contains the magnets that keeps the door closed..."

All the work is done at the factory, he says. Holes for locksets are put in and all you must do is insert the lockset.

It is often difficult for do-it-yourselfers to get good information about any project they might want to work on, one reason Meyer is popular. Some lumberyards just don't take the trouble. And if you are a woman, they take even less, if possible. Then, too, some counter men at the yards just aren't up on the market's offerings.

Meyer and the crew at this yard have an essential virtue that do-it-yourselfers cherish: patience — time to discuss the project you are working on. A woman can telephone and ask a few questions without being given the impression that she has interrupted a big business transaction.

Do-it-yourselfers often complain that they become discouraged at some lumberyards, supply and hardware stores when they are given short shrift. They don't necessarily know everything about how a particular piece of merchandise fits into the project they are undertaking and they think the salesman should be able to answer the questions instead of shrugging his shoulders.

WHERE ARE HITLER'S WAGNER MANUSCRIPTS? BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Hitler received Wagner opera manuscripts as a birthday gift from the German National Chamber of Commerce. Nobody knows where he kept them or where they are now.

Carleton Smith, consultant to the Indiana University Foundation, in Smithsonian magazine suggests that they could have been "liberated" by Russians or Americans.

But he thinks there's a good chance they are hidden in a bunker in Hitler's fortress-like mountain retreat near Berchtesgarden. Curious inspection of the bunkers suggests, Smith writes, that there are hundreds of rooms and tunnels, now sealed up, in which the manuscripts might be hidden. During 1976, a team of German technicians will use ultrasonic devices to locate all such cavities.

Total loss over $98,000

Firemen made 47 runs in February

Washington C.H. firemen made a total of 47 runs, 41 in Washington C.H. and six in Union Township, according to the monthly report prepared by Fire Chief Maynard L. (Joe) Denen.

Denen said firemen responded to nine vehicle fires, eight building blazes and four trash or grass fires. Estimated loss totaled $98,381.

The calls to Union Township included four trash or grass fires, assisting law enforcement officers on a service call and a smoke scare incident. There was no fire loss, Denen reported.

Rescue calls made by local firefighters included one inhalation and two emergency medical situations. Firemen checked two carbon monoxide conditions, seven gas leaks or spills and one excessive heat situation.

Service calls made included one locked out person. Firemen also responded to three calls in which steam which mistaken for smoke and two other smoke scare calls.

Denen said there was one malicious false call during the month, two false calls of system malfunctions and one unintentional false alarm.

Denen reported there was an average of 10.1 regular and volunteer firemen at the 41 calls in Washington C.H. during February. He said there was an average of 10.2 regular and volunteer firefighters responding to calls in Union Township.

The total average volunteer response per fire was 5.8, Denen said, and the total average of off-duty regulars per fire was 3.8.

Fire trucks logged 22.9 hours of work in Washington C.H. and 3.6 hours in Union Township. The equipment traveled 48.3 miles in Washington C.H. and 45 miles in Union Township.

Six firefighters were injured. Three civilians were injured and one was killed during the month.

Other fire department activities during February included attendance at two sessions of the Business Industry and Education Day; a tour of the fire department by the Washington C.H. Jaycees; a fire safety meeting at the Court House Manor Nursing Home; an industrial fire brigade meeting at the Mead Container Corp. plant; eight building inspections and four training meetings.

greenhouse business, having owned Weller's Greenhouse for 40 years. "People used to be able to go down south and see all the beautiful foliage, but now they don't do that so frequently so they've decided to bring the foliage into their homes." She added that she knew of people who when building a new home, had allotted a certain amount of money just for plants.

Mrs. Anders said that a lot of research had been done on the idea of talking to plants and it was found that the plants really do respond in a positive manner. "Some big greenhouses have music piped in and they experiment with the effects that the various types of music have on the plants."

Needless to say, the man who quotes love sonnets to his mother-in-law plant may not be doing it in vain after all. And for all of you die-hard skeptics, take heed of the following true story: Invision a packed courtroom where a murder trial is underway. Sitting in the witness stand is one slightly wilted philodendron. Attached to the plant is a lie detector. The plant, being the only witness to a murder, has been called upon to testify. Five students, who have nothing what-so-ever to do with the trial, walk into the courtroom. The plant doesn't respond or react in any way. Moments later the murderer enters the room and the philodendron shows "intense agitation".

The moral of this story should be: "Treat your plants nicely or else. . . well, who knows what could happen?"

City's future planning topic for Rotary Club

Future planning for Washington C.H. was the topic discussed at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club Tuesday in the Country Club.

Dr. Leroy Davis, chairman of the Citizens Study Committee established last November by Washington C.H. City Council, told Rotarians that it is time for the city to be planning for the future and building on the many assets the community has.

Dr. Davis, pastor of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, said there are at least five items which should be involved in the city's future planning.

They were:

— That the city should recognize and admit its problems;

— Seek alternative solutions to the problems;

— Count the blessings the city has including the strength of the community, the healthy balance between agriculture and business and tremendous leadership potential;

— Open and honest communications; and

— Debates on ideas instead of personalities.

Dr. Davis, who is a Rotary Club member, said there are several "good and concerned people in the community" who are working together in planning for the future of Washington C.H. including the 11-member Citizens Study Committee.

He noted that Washington C.H. is not alone in its problems. On the national level last year, 93 per cent of all tax levies proposed for local government were defeated by voters, he said. Dr. Davis said that the rejection of the issues indicated "a feeling of times and mistrust and lack of confidence."

"Everybody suffers when our faith in each other turns to mistrust," Dr. Davis said.

The meeting was conducted by club president William E. Williams and the program was arranged by Robert Lisk.

Visiting Rotarians were Robert Montenegro of Mount Sterling, and Jerry Ardrey and Charles Pitts, both of London. Student guests were Allan Conner of Miami Trace High School and Hugh Patton of Washington Senior High School. Guests were Leroy Barton with Richard Whiteside and William Nelson, of London, with Pitts.

Reagan, Wallace hurt by results

Ford, Carter win in Florida primary

MIAMI (AP) — President Ford is rapidly deflating Ronald Reagan's Republican presidential bid, leaving his challenger in dire need of a comeback to pump it up again.

And Georgia's Jimmy Carter has climbed back atop the Democratic field with a victory that made a shambles of Gov. George C. Wallace's campaign.

So read Chapter Four, Florida's installment in the presidential primary election story. Now the test is in Illinois, next Tuesday.

Republican Reagan is far from finished, but he can't go on meeting Ford like this and losing, as he did in Florida Tuesday.

Yet he already is saying that he never considered Illinois one of his stronger states. The former California governor had better get to one soon if he is going to dislodge Ford.

Reagan insisted he is in the race to stay, until the day the delegate numbers guarantee Ford the GOP nomination. He said he does not think that will happen during the primary season and forecast a showdown at the Republican National Convention next August.

After all, Reagan said in Rock Island, Ill., Tuesday night, he has gained almost half the Republican vote in each of his two direct primary tests with Ford.

But almost half is losing, and he needs a win. Reagan can keep running by coming close, but if that becomes the pattern, his campaign will become a hollow exercise.

The Ford camp was talking about bandwagons and trains pulling out, the traditional language of winners trying to convince GOP politicians to climb aboard now because there might not be room later.

Alabama's Wallace was the big loser on the Democratic side. Four years ago, Florida was the scene of a major Wallace triumph, a 42 per cent presidential primary victory over the whole Democratic field.

This time Florida belonged to Carter, and that undercut Wallace's Southern political base. And it could be the beginning of the undoing of Wallace as a force in national Democratic politics.

Florida was Carter's third presidential primary win, with New Hampshire and Vermont. "I don't see anybody ahead of me now, but we still have 30 or 40 states left to go," the former Georgia governor said. He was heading for Chicago today, to campaign for next week's match against Wallace, former Oklahoma Sen. Fred R. Harris and Sargent Shriver.

Carter said he doesn't consider the Wallace campaign finished by Florida. But he also said that he doubts the Alabama governor will be a real factor in Democratic politics now.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington ran third among the Democrats, his Florida gamble a failure. He did, as he noted, gain about a quarter of the state's national convention delegates. But he failed in what clearly was an effort to block Carter's climb.

Nonetheless, Jackson claimed a good omen in his Miami area plurality, saying that is the kind of populous territory a Democrat must capture to win nomination and the White House. He called Florida no more than a way station and challenged Carter to the test of New York's April 6 primary.

"No one will win the Democratic nomination unless he can carry the big city, industrial areas of the country, and that's what I can do," said Jackson, who won last week in Massachusetts with 23 per cent of the vote. Carter ran fourth there.

With the Florida vote counted completed, this was the outcome:

Ford 318,844 or 53 per cent.
Reagan 282,618 or 47 per cent.
That translated to 43 national convention delegates for Ford, 23 for Reagan.

And among the Democrats:
Carter 439,870 or 34 per cent.
Wallace 392,105 or 31 per cent.
Jackson 306,120 or 24 per cent.

Three per cent of the vote was cast in favor of sending uncommitted delegates to the Democratic convention, and that was more than any of the other nine candidates got.

Delegates were apportioned this way on the basis of statewide and congressional district showings:

Carter 34, Wallace 26, Jackson 21.

SELLING OHIO AGRICULTURE — Two top Ohio agriculture leaders pause with Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes before leaving on a two-week European trade mission. Hugh Wilson, left, 719 Fairway Drive, president of the Ohio Soybean Association, and Wallace Hirschfeld, right, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, are making the trip with the governor and 30 other businessmen and industrialists. The two farm leaders are interested in promoting grain sales with the Europeans. They will visit importers in Belgium, West Germany, England, France, Sweden, the Netherlands and Italy before returning to Ohio on March 20. (See related story on page 13 of today's edition.)

Candidacy petitions filed

Dumford seeking seat on county commission

Laurence A. (Bucky) Dumford, a former three-term Fayette County commissioner, has announced his candidacy for a seat on the Fayette County Board of Commissioners, subject to the Democratic primary election June 8.

Dumford, who served 12 years as a county commissioner, Tuesday filed petitions with the Fayette County Board of Elections seeking the seat presently held by incumbent Republican J. Herbert Perrill. The term being sought by Dumford commences Jan. 3, 1977.

The 46-year-old Dumford, who resides at 635 Warren Ave., served as chairman of the Fayette County Board of Commissioners four different times (the last in 1971) during his 12-year tenure on the board. He was defeated in his bid for a fourth straight term on the board of commissioners in 1972 by incumbent Ray D. Warner.

He is a past president of the Ohio County Commissioners Association, serving in that capacity in 1969, served as chairman of both the taxation and legislative committees of the Ohio County Commissioners Association and is a charter member of the Fayette County Democrat Club. He is presently a member of the Fayette County Regional Planning Commission.

Dumford, owner and operator of the Roller Haven skating rink, CCC Highway-W, for the past 19 years, worked with the Ohio Legislature in formulating legislation pertaining to the financing and strengthening of local government. He served on a local government task force, appointed by former Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan. The task force completed a two-year study of local government operations and recommended ways of making it more responsive to the needs of Ohio residents.

LAURENCE A. DUMFORD

A native of Clermont County, Dumford has been a resident of Fayette County for the past 38 years. He is a 1947 graduate of Bloomingburg High School and received a bachelor of science degree in education from Ohio State University in 1952.

Dumford is a past president of the Bloomingburg Lions Club, past president and member of the Washington C.H. Roary Club, past director of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce, a charter member of the Fayette County Community Action Commission board, a member of the Washington C.H. Elks

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A proposed constitutional amendment allowing state and local governments to issue bonds to finance energy projects will face Ohio voters on June 8.

Legislators have given final approval to the proposed amendment granting the bonding authority. Both the House and Senate approved it Tuesday.

Their approval came just before a deadline of midnight tonight for qualifying issues for the June ballot.

One more proposed amendment, allowing state and local governments to help underwrite branch line operations of the government-created railroads, such as Amtrak and Con Rail, is expected to gain approval in the legislature today.

The energy bond proposal was first approved March 1 by the Senate. But after gaining approval in the House Tuesday, it was sent back for Senate concurrence with a lone House amendment.

It received approval 31-0 in the Senate, sending it to the secretary of state for filing and a spot on the ballot.

Rep. Thomas J. Carney, D-71 Boardman, House sponsor, said the last minute tinkering was unusual, but was necessary to correct what lawyers saw as a flaw in the technical language which had the potential of leaving the energy bonds unmarketable.

Carney said the flaw, discovered by lawyers last week, deals with a prohibition of state aid to public utilities.

The provision has major implications for industry self-help drilling programs, the purpose of the bill, since the gas usually is transported to industry plants through utility company pipelines.

The pipeline company is permitted to keep 25 per cent of the gas transmitted, and that might be enough of a benefit to make the bonding arrangement un-constitutional, Carney said.

The amendment by the House Tuesday removes that problem, he said.

The resolution, if approved by the people, will permit the state and its subdivisions, particularly the Ohio Energy and Resource Development Agency, to issue revenue bonds or made make loans to "develop, produce, recover, store, transport, utilize or conserve energy or energy resources."

The bonding power would be limited to industrial, commercial, distribution and research purposes. Residential energy conservation improvements would not qualify for state aid.

The only vote against the proposal in the House was cast by Rep. Dennis L. Wojtanowski, D-74 Willoughby Hills.

Bicentennial sales under attack

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "Over-commercialization" has partly obscured the true meaning of the Bicentennial celebration, a spokesman for an Ohio advisory group says.

Rep. Alan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville, urged citizens who are offended by the proliferation of "B-U-Y centennial items" to boycott the products.

"You are undoubtedly aware that the significance of the Bicentennial has been obscured, at times, by those who are foisting all sorts of trinkets and baubles on the American public," Norris said at a news conference Tuesday.

"These doo-dads and knickknacks," he predicted, "will undoubtedly show up in the garage sales of 1977."

Norris, chairman of the Ohio American Revolution Bicentennial Advisory Commission, outlined activities, exhibits and publications planned as "meaningful and tasteful observance of our country's first 200 years of independence."

"We are not Valley Forge blizzard ice cream, stars and stripes cupcakes, Bicentennial litterbags, or plastic music boxes playing off-key renditions of 'Under the Double Eagle,'" he emphasized. "Nor are we star-spangled caskets."

Norris announced grants of $71,000 from the federal government and $43,000 from Batelle Memorial Institute had funded a series of exhibits on the revolution which will be on display at the Ohio Historical Center in Columbus.

A multimedia component will be circulated through the state, he added, and an American Revolution publication will be made available for classroom teachers as well as a new textbook on Ohio history.

Coffee Break...

JEFFERSON Township trustees have requested that all flowers and other decorations be removed from graves at Fairview Cemetery in Jeffersonville by March 20 to allow for the annual spring maintenance project

Over 2,400 persons attend three performances

Lions Club variety show tops attendance, profit marks

MR. BANJO — Bob Woodmansee provided plenty of entertainment for the record crowds attending this year's variety show with a banjo music medley.

The annual variety show presented Sunday, Monday and Tuesday by the Washington C.H. Lions Club surpassed all previous attendance records and indications are that profits will be far more than in past years.

A near capacity crowd of more than 1,000 persons packed the Washington C.H. Middle School auditorium Tuesday night for the third and final performance of the Lions Club's 1976 musical-comedy program entitled, "Happy Birthday U.S.A."

A record total of 2,450 Washington C.H. area residents attended the three performances of the variety show which traced some of the highlights of America's history during the past 200 years. The total three-performance attendance exceeded last year's record (1,844 persons) by 606 persons.

The audience at Tuesday night's performance was one of the most receptive ever to attend a Lions Club show. The club members received a standing ovation from the more than 1,000 persons during the patriotic finale.

An estimated 650 persons were on hand for the opening performance Sunday afternoon, and more than 800 showgoers attended Monday night's presentation.

At Tuesday night's finale, the downstairs section of the auditorium was completely filled and the crowd also took every available seat in the lower section of the balcony. Approximately 50 persons were seated in the upper section of the balcony.

Although no accurate figures have been compiled on expenses, several of those persons who have handled the business in the past said that without a doubt this year's event will be the most successful ever staged by the Lions Club in its 42-year history in Washington C.H.

Richard Patton, ticket chairman, said today proceeds will be "well over last year's."

The proceeds will far surpass last year's record-breaking profit of $2,000, Lions Club officials said.

All proceeds from the show are used almost exclusively in the Lions Club's sight-saving program which finances eye glasses and examinations for needy Fayette County residents. During the past year the Lions Club spent $3,089.41 in the sight-saving program. Over the past six years, the club has spent approximately $16,000 for eye glasses, examinations and repairs.

This year's home talent entertainment production was considered by many as the best program ever staged by the club through the years. The bicentennial-flavored production featured a number of outstanding soloists, chorus numbers, specialty acts, comedy skits and dance routines.

The foundation of the production with the unique format or more thought-provoking segments than before was the chorus of approximately 100 Lions and Lioness club members under the direction of Mrs. Cinda Stinson.

A cast party was held at the Mahan Building on the Fayette County Fairgrounds following Tuesday night's finale and the event served as a birthday celebration for Mrs. Donald Schwaigert who has provided piano accompaniment for the chorus and other musical routines for several years.

Paul Johnson and Larry Lehman were the co-producers of this year's show.

PAUL JOHNSON is teased by Gypsy Rose (Jim Polk) as he sings "Sweet Gypsy Rose." The skit was one of the most popular in this year's Lions Club show.

DAYTON — Funeral services for Dr. Stanley L. Jordan, 83, of Dayton, were held at 2 p.m. Monday in the Routsong Funeral Home, Dayton. Burial was made in Woodlawn Cemetery. Dr. Jordan died Friday in Grandview Hospital, Dayton. Surviving is his wife, Betty; a son, Dr. Charles A. Jordan of Dayton; three grandchildren; and three brothers, Dr. John G. Jordan, 170 Carolyn Road, Washington C.H.; Dr. Glen M. Jordan of Dayton, and C. Walter Jordan of Mesa, Okla.; a niece, Mrs. Frank E. Creamer, Washington-Waterloo Road, and a nephew, Dr. John T. J. Jordan, Ohio 753-S.

MRS. RUSSELL BEATTY — Services for Mrs. Hazel E. Beatty, 67, wife of Russell Beatty, 420 Rawlings St., were held at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home, Washington C.H., with the Rev. Clair Emerick, pastor of the Greenfield Presbyterian Church, officiating. Mrs. Beatty, a former secretary at the Fayette County Extension office, died Friday.

Pallbearers for the burial in Greenfield Cemetery were Harry Richardson, Roger Stockwell, Edwin Lovett, Carl Elberfeld, William Johnson and Dr. Ned Abbott.

15 workers dead in mine explosion

OVEN FORK, Ky. (AP) — A massive, eleven-hour effort to rescue 15 miners trapped four miles deep in a Southeast Kentucky mine ended about midnight Tuesday, when rescuers found the bodies of all 15.

Nine of the men had apparently been killed instantly in a methane gas explosion, rescuers said.

The other six had tried to build an airtight barricade to keep out deadly gas, but apparently suffocated, officials said.

The explosion occurred at the Scotia Coal Co.'s No. 1 Black Mountain mine at 1:15 Tuesday afternoon. Company officials said 108 men were working underground at the time, but all the others escaped safely.

Rescue efforts began immediately, and continued through the day. At least

Maloney against state rail plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Senate Minority Leader Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, called today for the defeat of a June 8 ballot proposal to let Ohio subsidize ConRail, Amtrak, or other railroads created by the government.

"The state doesn't have now and never will have enough money to get into the railroad business," said Maloney, referring to the proposed constitutional amendment as it headed for a Senate floor vote.

Maloney said his position is not a Republican policy stance, and indicated he expects approval prior to tonight's midnight deadline for legislative action on June 8 ballot proposals.

The rail amendment, along with a resolution that would allow the new Energy Resource and Development Agency to issue revenue bonds for energy conservation purposes, headed for the primary ballot along with five other amendments described as being housekeeping in nature.

Maloney's opposition emerged at the 11th house of legislative deliberations after the amendment by Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, had sailed through the House and won approval of the Senate Transportation and Local Government Committee after one five-minute hearing.

However, he pointed out that he opposed a similar resolution that was turned down by voters last fall, and also voted against a bill that prematurely created the new Ohio Rail Transportation Authority. The bill that created the authority became effective last Oct. 10, almost a month before voters rejected the proposal giving it statutory responsibilities. Wilkowski's amendment delivers "dangerous, unprecedented powers" to the authority, Maloney asserted.

Wilkowski, who claims his earlier proposal went down the drain because it accompanied Gov. James A. Rhodes' ill-fated economic package on last November's ballot, pointed out that Ohio must change its constitution now to get in on federal railroad subsidies currently in the works and limited to maintenance and operation of ConRail and Amtrak branch lines.

ConRail, set up by the federal government to salvage a network of bankrupt rail operations in the east and midwest, goes into operation April 1. The Toledo lawmaker said Ohio's Constitution must be changed in June to permit Ohio to qualify for the federal subsidies.

At stake in particular, Wilkowski said, are hundreds of small Ohio business operations that rely on existing rail lines to receive raw materials and ship products. He said the lines face certain abandonment unless his amendment is approved, and the economic effects will include thousands of lost jobs.

Maloney's objections were centered around his claim that "whatever economic gains it might bring, the cost is likely to be so great as to outweigh those gains by far."

He opposes provisions that permit the state and its local subdivisions to offer their full faith and credit to subsidize railroads, and go on to provide that the state may reimburse local governments for any amounts they spend. "All these railroads will be ones that are in trouble, no railroad on its uppers is going to be coming in and asking the state to bail them out," he said.

The veteran Hamilton County lawmaker described as dangerous other portions of the amendment that exempt the subsidized carriers from existing sections of the Ohio Constitution with regard to debt and taxation. There are 11 such exemptions, he said.

Among them are those that require taxation at a uniform rate, and prohibit property taxes to be levied at a rate that exceeds 10 mills ($10 per $1,000 of assessed value) without a vote of the people. He also said the rail authority conceivably could issue bonds or incur debt on its own and without saying how the bonds or debt will be paid.

Maloney conceded that the use of such powers would have to be preceded by implementing acts of the General Assembly. But he said "it opens the door for a lot of pressure to be brought on the legislature."

Ford, Carter

Reagan claimed to have been delighted that he came close. But that was hard to sell in view of the optimistic forecasts once posted by his campaign manager, L.E. Thomas. "Two-thirds of the Republicans in Florida want Reagan," he had said early in the campaign. "I guess a campaign chairman shouldn't really be predicting such fantastic odds, but it's true."

If his figures were not prophetic, his comment about the risk of such a prediction was. Thomas toned it down later, and Reagan disavowed it altogether. But it was on the record, to be measured against Reagan's election night statement:

"I have to tell you that we are all delighted on our side.... President Ford in these first couple of primaries has thrown the whole load at us, he has shot all the big artillery there is, used everything in the incumbency that he can, and we're still possessing almost half the Republican vote."

Ford said simply that he was overjoyed — and that it was not the time to answer questions about the possibility that Reagan might be forced from the race.

Among the other assessments and portraits of Florida:

—Wallace, in Oak Park, Ill., said that while he would rather have won, he felt good about the outcome. "Florida is not exactly a so-called Southern state," he said. "It's a fine state, it's a cosmopolitan state." He didn't talk about geography when he won it in the last campaign.

—Carter said the outcome left him, Jackson and Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona as the contenders for the Democratic nomination.

—Udall, vacationing in Tucson, Ariz., said he looks forward to competing with Carter in Wisconsin and New York on April 6. He said the Florida vote demonstrates "the burning need for progressive forces" to coalesce behind one candidate — him.

Stock list turns mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, regrouping after its unsuccessful effort to hold above 1,000 in the Dow Jones industrial average Tuesday.

The Dow average of 30 blue chips was off a fraction in the early going. Gainers and losers ran about even in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts attributed the market's hesitancy to uncertainty over whether the Dow could mount another run at 1,000 soon.

Today's early prices included AMP, up 1/4 at 29; Melville Shoe, 1/4 higher at 23 1/4; Continental Oil, down 1/4 at 62, and Springs Mills, off 1/4 at 13 1/4.

On Tuesday, after breaking through 1,000 at mid-morning and again in the early afternoon, the Dow Jones industrial average had to settle for a 4.96 gain at 993.70.

Nixon denies wiretap role

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon reportedly claims he did not personally select persons who were the objects of wiretaps early in his presidency, a statement that apparently contradicts the views of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

According to published reports, the former president says in a deposition that he approved an over-all wiretap program in 1969 but left the specific targets to Kissinger, then Nixon's security adviser. The deposition was to be filed in court today.

Nixon's position would appear to conflict with Kissinger's sworn statement that "while his (Nixon's) authorization was in general terms and not limited to specific individuals, my understanding was that he then directed surveillance of Morton Halperin and certain others."

Halperin, a one-time national security aide who was one of 17 persons wiretapped, is suing the former president, Kissinger and others for damages that could exceed $3 million.

Nixon gave the deposition — a question and answer session under oath — at his home in San Clemente, Calif., on Jan. 16 in connection with the Halperin suit. Nixon had sought to avoid giving the deposition but was ordered to participate by U.S. District Judge John Lewis Smith Jr.

Rhodes woos Volkswagen

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP) — Gov. James Rhodes of Ohio, who hopes to persuade Volkswagen to establish an assembly plant in his state, said today that foreign subsidiaries increase profits and jobs at home.

In a speech prepared for delivery to a gathering of American and German businessmen at Duesseldorf's Industry Club, Rhodes declared:

"Many U.S. businessmen have found they can increase profits and create more jobs for American workers by establishing operation outside the United States. Likewise, many European firms are discovering they can protect and enhance jobs of European workers by establishing additional operations in other parts of the world."

Bulletin

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A gunman who held two hostages for 29 hours at a Frankfurt courthouse and demanded release of an accused robber was seized by police today, authorities reported.

The two hostages, court clerk Dieter Hoss, 32, and Gottfried Schaffrath, 59-year-old salesman, were released unharmed, authorities said.

Details of the arrest were not immediately given or the gunman's identity disclosed.

Housing insulation measures approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Low-income families could receive federal funds and even free labor to insulate their homes under bills passed by the House and Senate.

A conference committee is expected to be named to iron out differences between the Senate bill passed Tuesday and the House version of the measure, which was approved last year.

Both bills would provide $55 million annually for three years for the home insulation program, billed as an energy conservation effort.

The House bill would have the Federal Energy Administration administer the program. The Senate bill would channel the money to local community action agencies.

Local programs would recruit volunteers to install the insulation, at a cost to the government of from $250 to $350 per home.

Backers of the proposal said homeowners could save about 25 per cent on their home heating bills as a result. They said as many as 900,000 residences would be eligible.

To qualify under the Senate bill, a family or individual could earn no more than half of the average income of the region in which they live.

The Senate version also would impose government sanctions on states and communities that do not comply with new energy conservation standards for buildings and homes. The Department of Housing and Urban Development would develop the standards over a three-year period.

The House bill contains no such provision, and some lawmakers feel this section will be the biggest hang-up in the conference committee.

After HUD announces its standards, states and communities would have to adopt new building codes. Failure to comply, under the Senate measure, would bring denial of federal assistance for new construction in the area.

eight rescue teams worked in relays, clearing the 6-foot-high passage section by section. They pushed ventilating equipment behind large screens, clearing the smoke and gas-filled passageway of rock falls and boulders.

Thirteen of the bodies were found before midnight, according to Heralld Kirkpatrick, state Commissioner of Mines and Minerals. The other two were found at 1:20 a.m.

Kirkpatrick said the exact cause of death could not be determined immediately, but that a full investigation by both federal officials and the mining company would begin immediately.

The 15 men, one of several crews working in the mine at the time, were laying rails that are used by mine cars to remove coal from the shaft. They were about four miles from the entrance to the mine, and about 1,600 feet below ground.

The explosion blew out concrete block walls that guide air through the tunnel, according to state police spokesman Steve Owen. The air helps keep methane gas found in deep coal seams from collecting in large quantities.

Carl Smithers, retired district superintendent for the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, said the explosion apparently occurred at the company's "A" coal seam.

"'A' seam has been classed as gassy ever since they started working on it," he said. "It's been pretty hot with gas the whole time. They have to keep more ventilation in it. They have to check for gas before they go into every working place."

Winter storm dumping snow along East Coast

By The Associated Press

A late-winter storm continued dumping snow in the Northeast today, as another storm brought rain and snow to the Midwest.

Snow kept falling from northern Virginia into Pennsylvania and along the Atlantic coast from Delaware into southern New England. Some rain was occurring in the southeastern parts of Maryland and Virginia.

The storm left up to 13 inches of new snow in the Shenandoah Valley area of northern Virginia and seven to ten inches in southeast Pennsylvania and the interior of northern New Jersey.

In the New York City area, the storm tangled homewardbound commuter traffic in two to four inches of wind-blown snow Tuesday. Overnight accumulations of six inches were expected in the southeastern area of the state with one to three inches in central regions.

Snowfalls in some of the major cities in the East included eight inches at Baltimore, seven inches at Providence, R.I., six at Philadelphia and at Washington's Dulles International Airport.

By early today, the snow had begun to taper off in some interior sections of the Northeast but was expected to remain heavy in the extreme southeast parts of Massachusetts.

Strong winds brought gale warnings for much of the northern and middle Atlantic coast but the winds were expected to gradually diminish during the day.

The same frontal system also brought mostly cloudy skies to the south Atlantic states, and some thundershowers developed in central Florida Tuesday night.

Another disturbance moving across the north-central part of the country

Smoking still on the rise

Year after year, at the behest of Congress, the United States surgeon general issues a report on smoking and health. For more than a decade these annual reports have played variations on the theme that smoking sharply increases the likelihood of contracting lung cancer and other grave diseases.

One might suppose that such a weight of evidence and exhortation would greatly reduce cigaret consumption. The contrary fact is that last year Americans smoked one per cent more than the 600 billion cigarets consumed in 1974.

The reasons for this seem fairly complex, but one thing is evident: the inducements to take up or continue smoking outweigh the warnings. If our society really wants to curb what has become established as a serious threat to public health, a much more intensive educational effort will have to be mounted.

A WORD EDGEWISE...By John P. Roche

The voters scoop the pundits

The morning after the Massachusetts Democratic primary, the feature stories emphasized how much the Commonwealth had changed since its lonely support of George McGovern, 1972. The high theorists really worked themselves up into an almost evangelical passion over our desertion of "liberalism," our swing to the "right," and other outrageous crimes. Of course, the problem is these analysts painted themselves into a corner in the first place when they announced our electorate was a body of liberal firebrands. Actually the Massachusetts voters haven't changed - the commentators simply got the whole 1972 bit wrong.

Forgive me if I blow my own horn, but just about a month ago I wrote a column on "The Massachusetts Syndrome," trying to forestall all this nonsense. The last paragraph put the case summarily: "To conclude, my Democratic friends, come and by all means spend, spend, spend - our economy needs it - but if you have a battle-plan based on our 'liberalism,' throw it away." This insight didn't come to me in a vision: I have studied the eccentric ways of my fellow citizens at close range, rather than lurching regularly with other pundits.

To be precise, after the 1972 presidential election I prepared a detailed statistical study of the returns for the Boston Herald Advertiser which, to make a substantial article brief, indicated that without the student vote, Nixon and McGovern were in a dead heat. There were two indications that the students provided McGovern his famous victory: First, the fall-off from the presidential vote to the rest of the ticket based on one-shot ballots (persons who have not officially gained residence in Massachusetts can obtain ballots to vote only for President).

Second, McGovern picked up enormous margins in congressional districts with large student populations. Indeed, the results of my investigation worried me because things slotted so neatly: The McGovern margin was almost the same as the decreased vote; that is, the drop between the number who voted for President and those who voted in the senatorial election. If being anti-war is the definition of "liberalism," Massachusetts might qualify, but again you have to understand the source of anti-war sentiment. Among the students in 1972 it was the dominant orthodoxy: Anyone who opposed peace would be lynched on the spot.

But among the permanent party Democrats, primarily middle class and blue collar, anti-war sentiment was based on what I term "continental patriotism." I never knew a college student who got drafted and shipped to Vietnam (though I'm sure there were some); most of the men who went out there and fought came from the other segment of society. When the coffins started coming home, the continental patriots began to sign off, not because they thought Vietnam was "immoral and obscene," but because it seemed endless and pointless. They would slug anyone who urinated on "Old Glory."

In short, McGovern's 1972 Massachusetts victory was not a triumph for a fancy brand of ideology - it was like a plane ticket good for one flight and one destination. What is far more indicative of the general mind-set of our electorate is that in both 1952 and 1956 it gave the nod to Ike, and Jack Kennedy always came across as a hard-liner. Thus it should hardly be a surprise that over half the Democrats on March 2 fell in a range between Carter the mush moderate and Wallace's anti-busing punch - with Scoop Jackson, the quintessential John Kennedy liberal, taking a solid lead from a position between them.

Of the rest of the candidates, the only one with a survival capacity is Mo Udall. This doesn't mean they will all drop out - the rules and that Federal money are incentives to hang around and try another round of leapfrog. Since Wallace's only role is to be the spoiler - he can't get nominated - and I suspect he will dispose of Carter in Florida and Georgia, the name of the game now becomes "Stop Jackson!" Perhaps if all the left-wing candidates could unite behind Udall, something could be done, but this would be a token of the Second Coming. Or, to put it in secular terms, don't stand on one foot awaiting a coalition: In any group of five left-liberals there will be eight opinions, and discussion as a substitute for decision.

Pet rock vet shop set

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)—Michelle Wright is starting out on the ground floor of what could be the start of a whole new business. She's opening up a pet rock vet shop.

The 11-year-old Middletown girl recently wrote Middletown Police Chief Russell Dwyer for permission to start her business.

"I would like you to sign this paper, so I can go into business," she wrote the police chief. "What I want to do is this: open a pet rock vet house. I can teach them in attack training, and also tricks. If they are sick, I will take care of them. If the parents of this pet rock go on a trip, I will keep them at my boarding house. So please sign my paper."

"Send back as soon as possible. I am sending this to you so I can not get sued for malpractice. This is not a joke." The girl explained that she got the idea from her grandfather.

"I sent the letter because I didn't want to get in any trouble with anyone. I've been hoping for an answer. I plan to make a little stand out in the front yard and see if I can get any business."

Death row inmate talks about life

LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP) — "I visualize the day I sit down in the chair, being strapped in," says the first inmate on Ohio's death row. "And of all these visions I've had about death and the chair, I was never the one to 'go' in it."

"I dreamed one day that I was strapped down into the chair and the man who pushed the button, he died."

Carl Lamont Bayless, 19, of Akron has lived with the death sentence since May 29, 1974. He was convicted in the execution style murders of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Anthony of Wadsworth in February 1974.

He was the first Ohioan to reside on death row since the state's old death penalty law was struck down by the U.S. Supreme Court. When the Ohio Supreme Court rules on the constitutionality of Ohio's new law, the decision will be known by his name—State vs. Bayless.

Until that decision is made, Bayless remains in the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility, waiting to die.

Bayless said he expects the death law to be upheld.

"I'm not hoping it will be...but the government has been trying to bring this back for the longest time, and society's not been going for it," he said. "But now crimes are being committed against society. Society is tired of these crimes, and they're looking for an answer."

"Most of the boys don't believe it'll be reinstated," he said. "I tell them 'I believe the best thing for you to do is to start looking forward to it, and that way when they (bring it back), it won't be a big surprise. And if they don't, it'll be a great joy for you.'"

Bayless said if he gets out of prison, he would like to become an evangelist. He has written three religious tracts which have been published.

"I believe God is my whole life," he said. "Without Him every day, I could not exist. I believe in miracles, and what He wants to be done will be done, and how he gets me out of here, through the courts or whatever, is His business."

Bayless said he does not think God's purpose is for him to die in the electric chair.

"This question has come to me many times," Bayless said. "I've thought, might you not die in that chair? That's very possible."

"But if that were so, then why the night (I tried to commit suicide) didn't I die then? Why, why am I still alive now? Why am I going through what I'm going through right now?"

"There's a purpose for everything, and there must be a purpose for this," Bayless said. "And if that purpose leads me to the electric chair...well, I'll tell you this, I don't believe I'm going to die in the electric chair this time."

Bayless was interviewed by news director Dave Lieberth of Radio Station WHLO in Akron.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Granddad's 'true love' has poor track record

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think I'm crazy, but I am a 55-year-old divorced grandfather who has fallen in love for the first time in my life.

I thought I was "in love" many times before, but those experiences were nothing compared to this.

You will think I am crazy for sure when I tell you that the little lady who has me walking on air has been married and divorced four times!

It's not my style to live with a woman, Abby. I want to marry her. My friends think I have lost my mind to consider marrying a woman with such a poor track record, but I cannot describe the happiness I feel when I'm with her. I know in my heart that the feeling is mutual. It's not our fault that we didn't meet 35 years ago.

Do you think I'm crazy, and what is your advice?

WALKING ON AIR

DEAR WALKING: No, I don't think you're "crazy." I congratulate you on your compassion. I believe you sincerely love this little lady, and if the feeling is mutual, I say, go ahead and marry her. Sometimes it's the last key in the bunch that opens the door.

DEAR ABBY: My husband insists that he doesn't know where he belonged in this situation, and he asked me to ask you.

At his father's funeral, he walked with his mother instead of with me. His mother was well able to walk by herself, but my husband was at her side, "supporting" her.

I was pushed in the background, along with lesser relatives such as cousins and nieces and nephews.

I am not putting his mother down, but I just want my husband to know where you thought his place was at a time like that.

DAILY READER

DEAR READER: I think your husband "belonged" at his mother's side. But I see no reason why you couldn't have been alongside your husband too.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to a doctor for three years. We are both 29. We live in a nice neighborhood, and our neighbors are wonderful people, except for one thing: Whenever someone in their household becomes ill, they call Dave, my husband.

We were awakened at 4:30 a.m. by a neighbor whose daughter had difficulty breathing. She had a cold, and nose drops would have done the trick.

Abby, this isn't an occasional happening, this goes on all the time. No matter how trivial the illness, they call Dave. He works 18 to 20 hours a day and needs his rest. These neighbors have their own physicians, but they call Dave because he's handy. They never invite us to any of their parties. We hear from them only when somebody's sick.

When they call, I can't say he isn't home because they would see both our cars. We've considered moving, but the same thing would probably happen wherever we went.

How can we get these people off our backs without destroying our friendship?

DOCTOR'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: What "friendship"? Tell them to call their own doctors and to please call Dr. Dave only in an emergency.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, March 10, the 70th day of 1976. There are 296 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1876, the first clear telephone call was made when Alexander Graham Bell summoned his assistant from another room in Bell's house in Boston, saying: "Come here, Watson. I want you."

On this date:
In 1785, Thomas Jefferson was named the U.S. Minister to France, succeeding Benjamin Franklin.

In 1848, the U.S. Senate ratified a treaty ending the Mexican War.

In 1864, Ulysses Grant was made Commander in Chief of Union forces in the Civil War.

In 1941, President Franklin Roosevelt signed the Lend Lease act, providing for transfer of military equipment to the Allies in World War II.

In 1945, U.S. B-29 bombers began their first incendiary raids on Japan, setting fire to a vast area of Tokyo.

In 1969, in Memphis, Tennessee, James Earl Ray pleaded guilty to the assassination of the civil rights leader, Martin Luther King.

Ten years ago: Crown Princess Beatrix of the Netherlands married a German diplomat, Claus von Amsberg.

Five years ago: South Vietnam claimed that a military drive into southern Laos to cut Communist supply lines had left 7,000 enemy troops dead.

One year ago: Carla Anderson Hills became the third woman to serve in the U.S. Cabinet when she was sworn in as Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

Today's birthday: Queen Elizabeth's fourth child, Prince Edward, is 12.

Thought for today: A voter without a ballot is like a soldier without a bullet — President Dwight Eisenhower, 1890-1969.

Federal rules sometimes archaic, costly

By BROOKS JACKSON and EVANS WITT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because of federal regulation, it costs almost twice as much to fly from Chicago to Minneapolis as it does to fly between San Francisco and Los Angeles, even though the trips cover about the same distance.

A New Jersey company wastes 90,000 gallons of fuel a year because the government won't let the parent company's trucks carry goods for its Florida subsidiary.

Two groups filed competing applications for a radio station license in California's Central Valley 26 years ago, but the government hasn't made up its mind which application to approve.

In 1972, growers left 14,000 tons of cherries to rot in orchards because of a federal marketing order designed to keep prices up.

Inflated prices, waste, delay: these are the price Americans pay for federal agencies to regulate prices and control competition in private business.

These agencies' defenders — including generally the industries they regulate — say the costs of regulation are justified by providing services to sparsely populated areas, stabilizing prices and preventing strong firms from squeezing weaker ones out of business.

But an odd alliance of consumer advocates and conservatives reject these arguments and say many agencies' powers should be drastically cut. Ralph Nader and Ronald Reagan, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and President Ford are among those who have called for massive changes at the Interstate Commerce Commission, Civil Aeronautics Board and other agencies.

The Costs of Flying

Perhaps the clearest example of the costs of economic regulation comes with the interstate airlines, which are regulated as to fares and routes by the CAB. Airlines that fly solely within a state are not subject to the CAB.

Pacific Southwest Airlines flies thousands of people every day between San Francisco and Los Angeles for $25.50 one way. That's a 347-mile trip within the state of California.

The Northwest Orient fare between Chicago and Minneapolis — about 355 miles — is $45.37. Thus, that fare, controlled by the CAB, is close to twice the fare regulated only by a state government.

"Public Service"

The CAB and major airlines argue that the concept of "public service" must be added to the cost equation. They say many smaller cities and towns would lose air service — or have it only at the higher rates — because such service is not profitable. The CAB now requires carriers to fly such routes, and the carriers argue that the profits from other routes must support the moneylosing ones.

"If you think those major airlines make any money by going into those little towns, of course, they don't," says Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn. "But it's part of a service. It's like Rural Free Delivery. We've got a lot of city slickers that don't think farmers ought to get their mail either."

Since there is little or no competition in fares among the airlines, the competition is reduced to expensive, but not necessarily significant areas — free champagne or drinks, stewardesses' uniforms and the variety of meals. In general, the airlines which stay within a state do not offer such frills — another reason for their lower rates.

Delays, Delays

A regulatory decision can mean millions of dollars for a company and touch thousands of people. Because of the complexity of the issues and the constitutional mandate to hear all sides, agencies often take years to decide cases.

But sometimes the cases stretch interminably.

The Federal Communications Commission has been thinking about a petition from West End Radio Co. in Tracy, Calif., for a radio station license since Aug. 31, 1950. And it's also been considering the competing application from Olympia Broadcasting in Carmichael, Calif.

The FCC's file on the applications is thick, but it lacks one item: a final decision.

At the ICC, it's been 13 years since the Union Pacific Railroad asked to merge with the Rock Island line, which was in financial trouble. Thousands of pages of testimony have been taken on the issues.

But now the Rock Island line is bankrupt, and Union Pacific really doesn't want to merge any more.

On Jan. 12, the ICC once again extended the time limits for another six months for anyone interested in the case to express an opinion.

Waste Not?

Just complying with agencies' intricate regulations on price and competition often costs money, fuel or other limited materials.

For example, a Department of Transportation study discovered that a big manufacturer of building materials in New Jersey ships three truckloads of goods a week from its main plant to Tampa, Fla. The trucks make the return trip empty.

This company has a subsidiary in southern Florida that sends three truckloads of goods a week to eastern Pennsylvania. But the subsidiaries' trucks make the return trip south empty — because the ICC will not let a subsidiary's trucks carry goods for the parent company or vice versa.

The DOT study, which did not name the firm, concluded that this one company could save 360,000 miles of useless travel and 90,000 gallons of fuel a year just by running trucks in a circuit from New Jersey to Tampa to southern Florida to eastern Pennsylvania.

The ICC won't allow it. The rationale is that allowing different firms to carry one another's goods — even when they are commonly owned — would undercut the for-hire truckers.

ICC regulation of the trucking industry is required by law to eliminate destructive or unfair competition among the "common carriers," the firms that haul goods for hire.

The ICC tells truckers precisely what kinds of goods they can carry, precisely what highways they can use and what they can charge.

The ICC also limits competition by denying thousands of applications each by truckers desiring to offer new services.

The major trucking firms band together in "rate bureaus" that decide what to charge for hauling. These cartels, exempt from antitrust prosecution, then challenge any attempts to have lower rates approved by the ICC.

This keeps shipping prices higher than they could be.

An Agriculture Department study found that shipping rates for frozen fruits and vegetables dropped 18 per cent when the courts ruled those products exempt from ICC oversight. Another Agriculture study showed rates for dressed poultry plummeted 33 per cent when ICC regulation was lifted.

Food Prices

The American farmer has often been the subject of praise and promises of support on the floor of Congress.

But Congress has done more than just talk about supporting farmers: federal law allows price-fixing and strict limits on competition in the production and sale of many agricultural products, mainly milk, fruit, nuts and vegetables.

In the harsh years of the Dust Bowl and the Depression, when farmers were at the mercy of plunging prices and middlemen, Congress opened loopholes in federal antitrust laws to allow farmers to band together in cooperatives. Without the exemption, such co-ops would be illegal.

But now many co-ops are big businesses that work closely with arms of government called "marketing orders," which commonly control production, quality, the flow of produce to the market and sometimes even prices.

Associated Milk Producers Inc., which controls up to 90 per cent of the market in some Midwestern areas, is a $1.4-billion-a-year giant that ranks 141st on the Fortune 500 list of industrial corporations.

Ocean Spray controls 85 per cent of the nation's cranberry sales. Sunkist Growers Inc. controls 75 per cent of the oranges and 88 per cent of the fresh lemons grown in California and Arizona.

The secretary of agriculture, who oversees the marketing orders, is required by law to protect consumers from price gouging increases by the co-ops. Yet the government has never penalized a co-op for boosting prices, even though some dairy co-ops have charged prices up to 22 cents a gallon above the federal minimums for milk.

Give break to oldsters

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's senior citizens could use state park camping facilities at half price on week days under a measure approved 31-0 Tuesday by the Senate.

Sponsoring Sen. Neil Zimmers Jr., D-5 Dayton, said more than one million elderly Ohioans deserve a chance to utilize the facilities for outdoor recreation at special prices.

His bill, which now goes to the House, stipulates that the lower rate doesn't apply on holidays and weekends except that certain weekends could be designated by the natural resources director.

In other action, senators sent the House a measure that lets the state collect its 80 cents a gallon excise tax on bottled mixed beverages at the time of sale by manufacturers to distributors.

Sheer waste can be the result of the federal marketing orders, since supplies are often held low to keep prices high.

In 1970, about one-quarter of the California cling peach crop was destroyed intentionally and 8,600 acres of trees pulled up. In 1972, Ocean Spray reported 600,896 barrels of cranberries that had been held off the market were "lost due to shrinkage."

Farmers and Agriculture Department economists argue that these government restrictions, in the long run, help to even out what would otherwise be "boom-and-bust" cycles of low prices and ruinous competition alternating with short supplies and high prices.

But other economists disagree. The Council on Wage and Price Stability says a new study shows milk prices would fall 4.5 cents a gallon if marketing orders were wiped out. For all dairy products, consumers would save $100 million to $150 million a year. And the council adds that farmers' income would fall only $50 million to $100 million, because of the waste in the current system.

Surprise party given for Miss Oliver

Miss Martha Oliver was feted with a surprise birthday party, Sunday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maust, Lakewood Hills, in celebration of her 14th birthday.

Following refreshments of ice cream and birthday cake, she opened several lovely gifts.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Maust, Jeri and Brad, Mrs. Coyt Stookey and daughters, Rhonda and Sandy, and Miss Oliver. Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Andrews of Delaware.

Marguerite Class discusses banquet

The Marguerite Class held their meeting in the parlor at First Presbyterian Church, when Mrs. Leonard Dellinger opened the meeting with a reading, "The Way to God" by Helen Steiner Rice.

Mrs. Kenneth Craig gave devotions "Reliance on God," also the Lenten Covenant with members responding with sentences after the prologue.

Reports were presented, and a discussion of the May Banquet took place. It was agreed that the committee will make arrangements for the event.

Mrs. Dellinger read the "Legend of the Shamrock" before the Mizpah benediction.

An auction of 'white elephant' items was the highlight of the evening. Mrs. Jenkins was the auctioneer.

A dessert course was served by Mrs. Luke Musser and Miss Lorie Robison. A large bowl of jonquils and forsythia centered the table.

Sunny-East Belles meet in Huffman home

Mrs. Bernard Huffman welcomed the Sunny-East Belles Homemakers Club to her home Tuesday evening. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Robert Climmer and Mrs. Willard Greer. Guest night was also observed, with guests present, Mrs. Wilma Woodruff, Mrs. Vada Moats and Mrs. Helen Coyle.

Mrs. Climer conducted the business meeting and Mrs. Huffman read devotions using Psalm 121. Mrs. Allen O. McClung gave the secretary's report. Mrs. Dwight Foy, chairman, announced that the club will be guests at the Valley House, Chillicothe, for the Spring Banquet on May 11. Wrapping paper, a sales project of the club, was distributed to members.

Mrs. Huffman and Mrs. McClung were appointed to the nominating committee, and will present a slate of officers at the April meeting. Individual flowers were made of lace and ribbon during the remainder of the evening by members and guests.

The next meeting will take place in the home of Mrs. Foy, April 13, with Mrs. Ronald Burns and Mrs. Robert W. Fries the assisting hostesses.

Famed chief Logan oration once a schoolboy standard

By The Associated Press
When Mingo Chief Logan rejected Lord Dunmore's peace overtures near Circleville, Ohio, in 1774, he did it with an oration that won world acclaim and became the subject of schoolboy recitations for many generations.

John Gibson, a trader and scout whom Dunmore had sent to bring Logan to the peace parley, translated the speech and delivered it to Dunmore in written words hailed as the finest example of Indian eloquence ever uttered. Logan said:

"I appeal to any white man to say, if ever he entered Logan's cabin hungry and I gave him not meat; if ever he came cold or naked and I gave him not clothing."

"During the course of the last long and bloody war, Logan remained in his tent, an advocate for peace. Nay, such was my love for the whites, that those of my own country pointed at me as they passed and said, 'Logan is the friend of white men.' I had even thought to live with you, but for the injuries of one man, Col. Cresap, last spring, in cold blood, and unprovoked, cut off all the relatives of Logan; not sparing even my women and children.

There runs not a drop of my blood in the veins of any human creature. This called on me for revenge. I have sought it. I have killed many. I have fully glutted my vengeance. For my country, I rejoice at the beams of peace. Yet, do not harbor the thought that mine is the joy of fear. Logan never felt fear. He will not turn on his heel to save his life. Who is there to mourn for Logan? Not one."

Logan was mistaken in one respect. White frontiersmen did kill his family in Jefferson County north of Steubenville, but Col. Michael Cresap had no part in it. Logan himself was killed by an Indian near Lake Erie in 1780.

BUSY BEES 4-H

Mrs. Vanilla Stritenberger of Steen's Department Store was guest speaker at the second meeting of the Busy Bees 4-H Club. She discussed skin care and teenage make-up techniques and demonstrated these ideas on 4-H'er Linda Neiswander.

The business portion of the meeting was conducted by Terri Vermillion, president. Becky Merriman led the pledges and roll call was answered by giving Project Title for the coming year. Ideas for community projects and places for the club to visit were also discussed.

A safety report on "Bicycle Safety" was given by Jill Dorn. She also conducted a bicycle safety quiz which everyone passed. At the next meeting, March 15, Jenny Martin will give a health report and decisions will be made on projects for the coming year. Refreshments were served by Melody Spaulding and Jill Dorn.

SUSAN REISINGER

JEFF SHARP

Seniors of the Week

Our first featured senior is Susan Reisinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Welby Reisinger. She resides at Rt. 1, Mount Sterling and has three brothers, Steve, Tom, and Joe, and one sister, Jodi.

This year Susan's courses are office practice, Bookkeeping I, physiology, senior homemaking, short story, composition, and government. She is a member of FHA, FTA, National Honor Society, and spends one period each day as an attendance assistant. She attends St. Colman's Catholic Church.

In her spare time, Susan enjoys sewing, swimming, crocheting, listening to music, and spending time with friends.

Next year, Susan plans to attend Ohio State University and enter the medical field. Her comment about Trace was, "Although I'm about to leave Miami Trace, being a student here has left me with many happy memories to always look back on."

Teresa McDonald is our second featured senior. She is the daughter of Patricia Burke and has one brother,

Mike, and one sister, Debbie. She makes her home at Rt. 1, Jeffersonville.

Teresa's classes include contemporary literature, business law, family living, consumer economics, bookkeeping, and symphonic choir. She is a member of Center Christian Church.

Camping, swimming, playing piano, watching sports, and being outdoors occupy Theresa's free time.

Teresa is undecided about the future. Her advice to the underclassmen is, "Be active in school and make the most of your high school years. Before you realize it, you'll be graduating."

Jeff Sharp is our last featured senior. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Sharp, Sr., of Bloomingburg.

This year Jeff is enrolled in Distributive Education II, psychology, and family living. He is a member D.E.C.A.

Jeff enjoys bowling, playing basketball and baseball (the Reds are his favorite team), and watching football. His future plans include learning more about business, attending a two-year technical school later on, and maybe starting his own business. His comment about Trace was, "My four years at Trace have been fun. I didn't accomplish a few things here that I would have liked to because the time went so fast."

LINDA DUNCAN

DE student of week

Linda Duncan, the Distributive Education Student of the week, lives at 1358 Meadow Drive with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Duncan.

This year Linda is taking Distributive Education II, business law, American government and family living. She works at Wendy's Restaurant as part of her D. E. II class. Linda's hobby is having a good time with friends. She is active in the following clubs: 4-H for seven years, FHA, AFS, and DECA.

Linda plans to attend a business college after graduation.

The Miami Tracer

MT students end exchange trip

KATHY JUNK

Twelve Miami Trace students recently visited Staples High School on the AFS short term exchange program. Staples is located in Westport, Connecticut on Long Island Sound.

While interviewing a participant of the trip, I found many differences between Staples and Trace. Staples High School has nineteen hundred people in three grades. It is situated like a campus with nine separate buildings. There is no dress code but there is a smoking area to use during a free period. Most classes have ten people in them and there are more non-academic courses than Miami Trace. In order to drive a car to school to school you have to be a senior and take two or three people with you or have a job after classes. A fee of forty dollars must be paid for guards to protect your car also.

Those who went on the trip were Cheryl Zurfue, Linda Jordan, Dave McFadden, Pam Wood, Ross Brown,

Dominique Blancke, Julie Fettes, Tim Schaefer, Nancy Rapp, Cindy Baird, Christy Stockwell, and Loretta Braun. During their stay, they saw a high school hockey game, an old whaling town called Mystic Seaport, went to parties and toured New York City.

Staples High School students will visit Miami Trace in April and stay with the Trace students who visited them. This exchange was arranged by Mrs. Margaret Dowler, the AFS student advisor.

Electronic deposit of checks starts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The electronic deposit of Social Security checks into savings and checking accounts will be extended nationwide by the end of the year after beginning in Georgia last month, a Treasury Department official says.

The new deposit system, which is optional to the recipient, eliminates the paper check entirely. Instead, a deposit is made directly to the recipient's checking or savings account from a magnetic tape prepared by the Treasury Department.

Les Plumly, a Treasury official helping to initiate the new system, said not a single complaint was received in the deposit of the first set of payments in Georgia last month.

"There were no late receipts and no missing receipts," he said. "It was as near perfect as we can have it."

In terms of acceptance, however, the system has not been an overwhelming success in Georgia. Plumly said the 52,000 Social Security recipients there who received their payments electronically represent only about 7.5 per cent of the total eligible.

But he said that in Florida, where the system will begin in early April, about 360,000 people will participate, or about 25 per cent of those eligible.

The Treasury hopes 18 million Social Security and other federal payments — about 40 per cent of the total — will be made electronically by the end of the decade.

The electronic deposits are the second step in the program to eliminate check payments. Last year, the Treasury Department initiated a nationwide program to mail recipients' checks directly to a bank or other financial institution of their choice.

About 3.5 million recipients signed up for the direct mailing program, Plumly said, which was better than the three million that had been expected.

Persons in the direct mailing program will be switched automatically to the electronic deposit system. All Social Security recipients will be informed when the electronic system is available in their areas and how they can sign up for it.

Eventually, all regular federal payments will be included in the system, which is part of an over-all trend toward electronic banking.

Plumly said major advantages of electronic payments are that there is no risk of loss or delay in the mail and the deposits are in the recipient's account on the date the payment is supposed to be made.

MT musical cast working diligently

With only about four weeks of rehearsal time left, the cast of the Miami Trace production of "South Pacific" work diligently to learn their lines, songs, and dances for their performance on April 2 and 3.

Behind the lead roles are several minor leads. In this group of characters are several outstanding performers.

Portraying the part of Captain George Brackett is Derek Gilbert. Capt. Brackett is the commanding officer at this military camp. He is loud and outspoken and is referred to as "Iron-belly" by the sailors and nurses. He is the man who must contend with the antics of the enlisted men and the natives throughout the show.

Directly under Captain Brackett is Commander William Harbison, played by Fred Melvin. Harbison is a fairly calm person, but a strict disciplinarian. He is Brackett's right-hand man, playing a major role in the commanding of the troops.

Beth Chaney plays the part of Liat, a native girl who speaks only French.

When her mother, Bloody Mary, introduces her to a young marine, Liat falls in love. Liat is very quiet and timid, but she seems to have little trouble communicating with her young marine.

Ngana and Jerome, Emile de Becque's children are portrayed by Brenda Delay and Tim Mossbarger. Ngana and Jerome's mother was a Polynesian woman now they live with their father on this pacific island. They both speak French, and they perform a number in French.

Maria, played by Judy Whiting, is Emile de Becque's servant. She keeps house and she takes care of the children. She also speaks French, and she performs with the girls' chorus. Many fine actors, actresses, singers, and dancers join together in presenting "South Pacific." Performance time is 8:00 p.m., April 2 and 3, 1976.

JEFF MYF

In order to have a better understanding of the Jewish faith, the Junior and Senior High Youth of Jeffersonville United Methodist Church, held a symbolic passover meal on Sunday evening, March 7th in the chapel of the church. Thirty-four youth and five adult advisers were present for the service that included the use of a number of Jewish prayers and a reading of the history of the passover.

Mrs. Elizabeth Satterfield served as hostess by presenting the opening benediction and prayer from the Union Prayer Book for the First Day of Passover (Pesach). This was followed by the responsive prayer for host and worshippers. Mrs. Eugene Griffith read from the book of Exodus and then presented "The Historical Significance of the Passover." This was followed by the drinking the first cup.

Mrs. Satterfield asked the traditional questions as to why we were celebrating this Feast Day. Pastor Eugene Griffith gave the traditional Jewish Responses to the questions, after which Mrs. Satterfield presented the elements of the meal, lamb, prepared by Mrs. Marion Stockwell; unleavened bread, bitter herbs. After dipping the unleavened bread in the cup, the group proceeded to partake of the meal.

Miss Penny Straley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morgan, Mrs. Eugene Griffith assisted Pastor Griffith and Mrs. Satterfield with the planning of the event.

Plans are now being completed for a Senior High Youth Work Camp to be held in Ponca City, Okla. during the month of June. On June 19, the pastor and 16 youth will make the trip to the Oklahoma Indian Mission Conference to help with the redecorating of a small Indian Church and to conduct Vacation Bible School for children in the community.

SPICE N PATCH 4-H

The first meeting of the Spice 'N Patch 4-H Club was held in the home of Miss Crabtree, when we elected officers. They are President, Kendra Pettitt; vice-president, Christine Swaney; secretary, Sheri Dowler; treasurer, Kami Anderson; news reporter, Mandy Pettitt; health, Julie Plumb; safety, Kim Rayburn; and recreation, Sara Rankin.

Instead of having dues this year, we discussed selling Bicentennial candles. The refreshments were served by Miss Crabtree.

All of our meetings this year will be at Miss Crabtree's home. The next meeting will be Wednesday, March 10, 6:30-7:30 p.m. Refreshments will be furnished by Kami Anderson and Sheri Dowler.

Mandy Pettitt, reporter

BAR-J-WRANGLERS

The March 4 meeting of the Bar-J-Wrangers 4-H was held in the home of Bobby Hall. President Bob Hall conducted the meeting and led the pledges. Angie Huffman gave the secretary's report and Eric Hall gave a safety report, "Safety in the Barn."

Bill Green, adviser, gave new project books and uniform rules for 4-H horse shows. The meeting was adjourned and Bob and Eric Hall served refreshments while games were being played. The next meeting will take place in the home of Sharon Lowe, March 18.

Home Ec classes featured

BY MARCIA MARKEL

The Home Economics III classes at Miami Trace are now teaching the girls how to refinish furniture.

The following steps are followed: (1) collect furniture from home, friends and teachers and remove old finish or paint (2) sand and do any repairs that are needed (3) choose a proper stain if color is needed (4) add a protective cover by varnishing (5) find a proper place to dry where it is warm and plenty of air.

It is very important that you keep the furniture you are refinishing clean and sand it smooth. It takes about two weeks of class room work in order to finish the furniture. Some of the furniture they are working with are picture frames, silverware, cases, and end tables. From the consumer's point of view it saves much more than if you would go and buy new furniture. The classes are taught by Miss Connie Evans and Miss Joyce Bull.

One person pleads guilty to charge

Grand jury indicts eight

Eight persons were indicted by a Fayette County grand jury Friday, but one defendant pleaded guilty to the charge against him before the findings of the jurors could be recorded on the Fayette County Common Pleas Court docket.

Indictments were returned against Delbert Thomas, 28, of Greenfield; Paul E. Leach, 732 E. Market St.; Franklin Woods of Grove City, Pa.; William P. O'Keefe, 619 Columbus Ave.; Hubert Smith, N. Fayette Street; and Roy L. Gray, Jr., and Charles Jones, both of Dayton. The eighth defendant has not yet been apprehended, and his name was not released.

Thomas pleaded guilty to sale of marijuana shortly after the grand jury session. He had been arrested by

Washington C.H. police officers for sale of two ounces of the hallucinogen to local youths. He was seen by an officer making the sale in a downtown alley. Sentencing was delayed pending an investigation into Thomas' background.

Leach, 18, was indicted for two counts of breaking and entering. He was arrested Feb. 21 for allegedly breaking into the Rocking Chair Inn, 428 Wilson St., and Homer Lawson American Legion Post No. 653, at 815 Gregg St., the night of Feb. 13. Officials at the inn reported more than $200 in small bills taken.

Woods, 34, was arrested by city police on a bench warrant for failure to appear in Municipal Court. While he was being searched prior to incarceration, officers found several checks made out to Woods and signed by "John Loudner" on checks from the Fayette County Bank. Officers notified Loudner who said that some of his checks were missing and Woods had recently visited his home.

The defendant was charged with five counts of forgery. One of the checks was for $50, the remainder were for $40 each.

O'Keefe, 30, was arrested by Washington C.H. Police Ptl. Mike Stritenberger after being stopped last week for riding a bicycle at night without a headlight. Investigation by Stritenberger revealed that the description of the bicycle matched that of a 10-speed reported stolen a short time earlier. O'Keefe was charged with possession of stolen property.

Smith was charged with aggravated assault on Calvin Bellar, 722 Peabody Ave., Jan. 2. Bellar said the defendant has attacked him as he was walking on Market Street. The alleged assault reportedly stemmed from comments Bellar had made about Smith prior to the incident.

Gray and Jones were indicted for the theft of a horse trailer belonging to Barry Powell, 930 Briar Ave. Arrested Feb. 2, the pair allegedly took the trailer and headed toward Greene County. Fayette County Sheriff's deputies stopped the truck in which Gray and Jones were riding for speeding and later discovered a tackle box from the stolen trailer in the rear of the truck.

Gray and Jones reportedly heard on a citizens band radio that the theft had been discovered and unhooked the trailer along Hutchinson-Yeoman Road.

Law enforcement officials said no information concerning the eighth person indicted could be released until he was apprehended.

Arrests

SHERIFF

TUESDAY — Patricia B. Collazo, 33, of Wilmington, shoplifting; James E. Riley, 25, Rt. 5, Clinton County Sheriff's Department warrant for contributing to the delinquency of a minor; Melvin E. Riley, 18, Rt. 5, Clinton County Sheriff's Department warrant for contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

POLICE

TUESDAY — Robert J. O'Keefe, 18, of King Prussia, Pa., petty theft; Donald W. O'Keefe, 18, of King of Prussia, Pa., petty theft; Linda L. O'Keefe, 28, of 619 Columbus Ave., receiving stolen property and check fraud; William P. O'Keefe, 30, of 619 Columbus Ave., receiving stolen property and check fraud.

Firemen check electric short

Washington C. H. firemen checked an electrical shortage in a fuse box Tuesday. Fayette County Sheriff's deputies reported an automobile fire was doused by Greenfield firemen.

The wiring in a fuse box located at the Blanche Welch residence, 206 Florence St., reportedly shorted out and caused the fuses to melt at 6:05 p.m. Tuesday. Washington C. H. firemen removed the faulty wiring and fuses.

The Greenfield Fire Department was summoned to extinguish a motor fire that had occurred at Fern J. Grube, 1013 John St., was driving north on Ohio 41-S, one half mile north of the Ghor-mley Road at 10:45 p.m. Tuesday. Cause of the fire was apparently a gas leak near the engine.

Fort McArthur, 13 miles southwest of Kenton, Ohio in Hardin County, was built to control the Scioto River in the War of 1812.

Ohio bonds sold at acceptable rate

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ending weeks of uncertainty over the state's credit standing, a Chicago bank investors group has purchased $100 million in Ohio revenue bonds at an acceptable interest rate.

The long-awaited sale frees money for construction at state-assisted colleges and universities.

The Ohio Public Facilities Commission awarded the bid Tuesday to a syndicate headed by First National Bank of Chicago at a 6.89 per cent interest rate over the 25 year life of the bonds.

"This is much better than we had hoped to do when we first started talking about the sale," a spokesman for the bond commission said.

Initially set for Jan. 20, the sale date was postponed on the recommendation of Gov. James A. Rhodes who said the shaky financial status of the State Office Tower could endanger the state's credit on the bond market.

A subsequent agreement between the Rhodes administration and Democratic legislative leaders on a short-term appropriation for the 41-story tower cleared the way for rescheduling of the sale. However, questions still remain on the long-term refinancing of the office building.

That was not mentioned Friday as the state went into the sale with an AA credit rating, the highest available for revenue bonds, and emerged with a bid more than a point under the current 7.04 bond buyers index.

Deputies investigate radio theft reports

A total of three citizens band radios were reported to Fayette County Sheriff's deputies as being stolen from cars parked on the north side of Mac Tool, Inc., U.S. 35-S, between the hours of 2:45 p.m. and 10:20 p.m. Monday. Additional charges have been filed against four persons by the Washington C. H. Police Department stemming from investigations conducted into the discovery of an undisclosed amount of stolen property.

The radios were stolen from cars belonging to Debbie Kay Wolfe, 143 Joanne Drive, Douglas W. Good, of Chillicothe, and Richard E. Carter, 8618 Miami Trace Road. The radios were valued at $130, $179, and $159, respectively. In every case, window wings on the cars were broken to gain entry.

A fourth car parked in the same area, and belonging to John W. Persinger, 2893 CCC-Highway-E, sustained a reported $335 worth of damage to one of the doors from an unsuccessful attempt made by the unknown subjects to remove a citizens band radio inside the car. Sheriff's deputies are investigating all four incidents.

Robert J. O'Keefe, 18, and his brother, Donald W. O'Keefe, 18, both of King of Prussia, Pa., have each been charged with petty theft, while Linda L. O'Keefe, 28, and William P. O'Keefe, 30, both of 619 Columbus Ave., have each been charged with a count of receiving stolen property and check fraud.

The check fraud charge against Linda O'Keefe stems from an $8.17 bad check she allegedly passed at Kroger's store on Clinton Avenue on Jan. 18. William O'Keefe has been charged with passing three bad checks at Kroger's during January.

Patricia B. Collazo, 33, of Wilmington, was arrested by the Sheriff's Department after Seaway store officials reported that she attempted to leave the store without paying for a bottle of nail polish. The incident took place at 4:15 p.m. Tuesday.

David Perry, of 1476 Ohio 41-S, told sheriff's deputies that sometime between 8:30 p.m. Saturday and 4:30 a.m. Sunday, the convertible top on his car was cut while it was parked in front of Club 22, CCC Highway-W.

Washington C. H. police officers reported that Homer Queen, 33, of 1103 Gregg St. was injured at 8:10 a.m. Wednesday while working on a car in the Knisley Pontiac service department on Columbus Avenue. As Queen was working on an engine, the vehicle reportedly started, and being in gear, went forward and pinned him against a work bench. Queen suffered a fractured pelvis and is listed in "good" condition at Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

Vickie Sue Brown, 19, of 631 Grace St., told police officers that she observed a subject set fire at 2:52 a.m. Wednesday to flammable material on her front yard which eventually burned its way to where an automobile was parked. She reportedly drove the car away before any damage ensued, and refused to file charges.

A winter coat valued at $35 belonging to David McLaughlin, 608 Gregg St., was reported stolen from his car while it was parked in front of his residence sometime Tuesday afternoon.

Young man held in shooting death

MARIETTA, Ohio (AP) — Tommy E. Conner, 19, of Beverly, was being held in connection with the shooting death early Tuesday of Steven J. Whipkey, 18, of Marietta, the Washington County Sheriff's Department said.

Donald L. Jones, Washington County Prosecutor said Conner was arrested at the home of his father where the shooting occurred.

Office tower plan hits new obstacles

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A plan for long-term refinancing of the massive debt on the State Office Tower has hit a snag, even as the legislature approved a $3.1 million appropriation to deal with short-term problems.

The supplemental money bill, approved 32-1 Tuesday, will be used to shore up state agency rent payments and operating expenses of the 41-story skyscraper through June 30, 1977. The House must now agree to Senate amendments in the bill.

The difficulty rests with the plan hatched by Democratic legislative leaders last week for a new financing arrangement between the Ohio Building Authority, which operates the tower, and the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation, the financier.

In a letter to the OBA Tuesday, BWC Administrator Kenneth E. Krouse indicated the plan, calling for a lower interest rate, was not acceptable.

The refinancing, which would be enacted as legislation, would permit OBA to issue bonds to the workmen's compensation bureau and pay the interest based on the full value of the bureau's Insurance Fund. That would lower the current short-term 8.6 per cent interest by about 2 per cent over the 20 to 30 year life of the bonds, the lawmakers contend.

"I am advising you that I cannot accept on April 16 (the next interest due date) Ohio Building Authority bonds with an interest rate reduced in accordance with legislation proposed," Krouse wrote the OBA, with copies to legislative leaders.

"It is doubtful that the legislature can dictate a rate of interest on fund investments that is below the market rate," he added.

Krouse also said would not "advance any additional funds" for the proposed Cleveland state office building until the present situation was cleared up.

Pilot error said cause of crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Transportation Safety Board has concluded pilot error caused a private plane crash last year that killed five Ohioans, including the publisher of the Columbus Dispatch.

By a 3-2 vote, the board ruled the pilot's unauthorized descent below the minimum published approach altitude caused the crash.
However, the two dissenting members would have assigned blame to both the pilot and air traffic controllers who failed to "defer clearance, issue altitude restrictions or issue a timely safety advisory."

The twin-engine plane disintegrated after striking a radio broadcasting tower on the campus of American University in Washington while trying to land at National Airport just across the Potomac River in Virginia.

The accident killed Edgar T. Wolfe Jr., 49, publisher and board chairman of the Dispatch; Fred Leveque, a widely known Columbus businessman; Carlton Dargusch Jr., a Columbus attorney, and the two pilots, Richard White and Robert Hatem, both of Columbus.

This new Litton combination microwave range lets you select the one best way to cook your favorite foods better.

Combination of Microwave and Conventional Cooking.

Why microwave and conventional cooking in one oven? Simply because the two in combination cook better as one. Microwaves penetrate and cook the food quickly; conventional heat browns-in crispness. And saves time and electric energy, too.

Microwave Speed.

The new Litton combination microwave range also gives you the speed and convenience of microwave cooking only.

Conventional Heat.

Yet, the Litton combination microwave range can also be used as a conventional oven, or for smokeless, closed-door broiling. And it's available with a self-cleaning oven system that removes even the toughest baked-on stains.

Two Combination Models.

Small town weeps for eight slain youngsters

By CLINT SWIFT
Associated Press Writer
MINSTER, Ohio (AP) — At least 600 parishioners spilled over into the aisles and vestibule of St. Augustine Church on Monday, as a Lenten mass turned into this village's first night of mourning for its sudden dead.

As sobs echoed hollowly off the walls of the Roman Catholic church, the Rev. Joseph Pax announced the sacrament would be extended to the memory of eight Minster high school students killed when a car plowed into them on a dark rural road 24 hours before.

"We ask a special blessing for those here most closely touched by the tragedy, those left behind," the clergyman added.

News of the deaths numbed this squat village of 2,500 near the Indiana border. The young had a holiday from school with teachers away at a professional meeting, but the town's main thoroughfare and side roads lay nearly empty.

"I came into work today, but I just can't seem to get anything done," said merchant Roger Borneman. "I've got a daughter home crying her heart out. I lost a paperboy, and another dead boy's father rents my store. The kid used to sweep up for us."

Cletus Coverman, who farms a few acres outside Minster, said the small size of the town made the wound feel deeper. "We take it personally here. We all knew every one of those kids," he said.

Police Chief Bill Peoppleman confirmed the feeling. "It sure has slowed this town down, you can see it," he said. "Everybody's walking around here like they're in a stupor."

The victims were part of a nine-car caravan of 39 students, the highway patrol said. Tragedy struck Sunday at the intersection of two country roads outside the neighboring town of Maria Stein.

"We beat Maria Stein in the basketball playoffs the night before, and we wanted to go through town in sort of a procession," said trembling senior Jim Sexauer, who was in the caravan. He said some of the youths stepped out of their cars at the intersection to organize the group.

At 8:10 p.m., the highway patrol said, a car driven by John Kremer, 21, of Maria Stein, came over the hill from the opposite direction and went through the intersection. The Kremer car sideswiped the first caravan car and ripped through a group of students, then continued down the road to a farmhouse.

No charges were filed pending an investigation, the patrol said.

The victims were identified by the patrol as Ken Sommer, 15; Scott Westerheide, 15; Michael Kemper, 17; Anthony E. Kemper, 17; Lester R. Ranly, 16; Becky Moorman, 15; Joy Lee Brandewie, 14, and Barbara Olding, 15.

The accident also left three youths injured. James Dues, 16, was hospitalized in fair condition with facial lacerations, a hip wound and possible head injuries. Douglas Heyne, 16, was hospitalized with abrasions, facial lacerations and injuries to the right leg. Chris Deters, 15, was treated for an arm injury and released.

The twin, gold-capped spires of St. Augustine dwarf everything except the grain elevators in Minster. All eight teenagers were members of the parish. While church and school leaders arranged with parents for four funeral masses Thursday, townspeople gathered nearby in groups of three or four on manicured lawns before brick Georgian homes or walked silently in pairs along wide, silent tree-lined streets.

The bells of St. Augustine's tolled 45 minutes Monday morning, and flags at the high school, post office and fire station flew at half staff.

Outside town, at the intersection, law enforcement officials vied with gawkers for a look at the evidence Monday. Bits of twisted sheet metal, a hub cap and a door handle lay in deep ditches at the side of the road. Fields nearby yielded bottles of wine and beer, many still full. The pavement was stained a reddish brown despite the best efforts of cleanup crews.

Sexauer said he didn't know how he survived. "I was standing between two open doors, and the car hit Scott (Westerheide) and sent him flying. He was only five feet away."

Jim Quinlan, 15, who was in the lead caravan car, said the Kremer car went into a ditch, swerved back onto the road and kept going, leaving a swath of destruction in its wake. "It's kind of hard when you see your best friends die," he said.

A group of high school girls outside the church recounted tales told by those who had ridden in the caravan and lived. "Ken fought to the end. He was trying to lift what was left of his leg," said one.

Another told of Fred Sommer's dash from one rural farmhouse to another in search of a telephone to call for help that came too late to save his younger brother.

Still others told of youths making pillows of their coats for dying friends, covering the injured with blankets and administering mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Church officers said pews would have to be removed from the church to make room for the caskets. The slaughter seemed nearly more death than the town could understand.

"I just can't believe it," murmured Mrs. James Wente, as she lowered the flag in front of the fire station.

"Everything was so happy after the game Saturday and then this," said Minster senior Ned Prenger. "It seems like a nightmare."

The caravan was organized in the St. Augustine parking lot as it had been for years since the high school was moved from the building next to the church, said Elmer Gough, school superintendent.

At the high school, Gough predicted the students would accept their fellows' deaths better than most of the town's adults. "Soon they'll pour in here almost as if nothing happened," he said.

Service station owner Richard Boeckman heaved a giant sigh of relief. "My boy was with the caravan. He called me about an hour after reports of the accident began drifting back here. I was never so glad to hear his voice," Boeckman said. "I couldn't help thinking eight sets of parents would never hear their kids' voices again."

Direct-injection engine promoted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Ralph Regula, R-Ohio, said Tuesday that he would encourage further development and greater use of a direct-injection stratified charge engine which holds the promise of being a 35 per cent more efficient oil burner than conventional engines.

A direct-injection stratified charge engine known as the L-163S is being considered by the Army as a possible replacement for its standard Jeep engine, the congressman said. The new engine is being constructed in Regula's 16th district by a Canton firm.

Regula said research statistics indicate that use of a broad boiling range fuel in so-called DISC engines — instead of 91-octane unleaded gasoline that other engines use — can lead to as much as 35 per cent more miles per barrel of crude oil.

A Jeep containing the new engine is to be delivered to Washington this week for exhibition at military installations, including the Pentagon.

tatorship. They tell us what taxes to pay, when to pay them, where to pay them and how much to pay and if we do not do what they say we are penalized and a percentage is added on and we were told also take us to court.

They said there was a question to be asked how did the present financial troubles arise? You think it would do any good to tell them that it is the councils fault and we might add this is not the first time.

In the city managers general fund summary of expenditures 1-0-70-71.1 city manager estimated $23,402.00 1975 actual 1975 $23,499.31 recommended 1976 $30,780.00 this is $7,280.69 more does this mean he gave his self a raise for the short time he has been here it is no wonder he says that when it comes to cutting his budget he is blind also 220 travel and transportation estimated 1975 $349.00 actual 1975 $347.99 recommended 1976 $900.00 this is $452.01 higher plus a city car I wonder why the citizens study committee never got around to putting this in the paper.

As I have told you before it is time for the taxpayer to stand up and fight for there rights if not this is going on and on and will never stop.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

The last time I came from school I entered town on U.S. 22 from the south. At that time it struck me how desolate Washington Court House may become in the future. The southern end of Court Street looked as if a shell had hit town, and bulldozers had been hauled at Hinde Street. At that point we now have two buildings with "mansard" roofs — the current solution to all architectural problems — while it seems the rest of the central business district lies wait.

All around town are examples of poor planning: discount stores and fast food restaurants springing-up everywhere, closed gas stations and boarded-up businesses. The downtown area is full of Victorian Italianate structures with beautiful yet deteriorating friezes, and above street level so little space is productively utilized. Doesn't anyone realize, for example, how much energy is lost through four exposed walls when buildings — such as Seaway, K-Mart, Murphy Mart, Wendy's, McDonald's, etc. — are constructed remotely rather than clustered? And how much energy is expended because we cannot walk from one of these businesses to the next?

Washington Court House does have a zoning board, but zoning obviously is not fulfilling all of our needs. Zoning must be coupled with long range planning, and I urge everyone with any sentiment for the city to consider its condition. Perhaps we then may have an efficiently functioning city.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

After reading the Record Herald and attending city council meetings special and regular they have not come up with anything that we have not heard before. You go to hire these meetings and here comes a man that does not know any thing about the city government and two weeks later he is appointed to a citizens study group and then here is some that is not in the city they all come out and are going to tell us the taxpayer this that and the other. I wonder just who writes all this for them? As if I did not know.

Our city manager made a statement at last meeting that he was going to and I quote that he was going to educate the taxpayer.

They sit up there and put the sewer tax, income tax and now they want to put a millage on us even after the voters turned them down at the polls they cannot seem to take no for the answer and then they wonder why the voter does not go out and vote when they just as well say that there vote does not count the only vote that counts is when they vote in council.

I put letters in the paper and stated that they were going to do just what they are doing now they have imposed the city tax for 1/2 per cent and if they do not get the millage they will up the city income tax to 1 per cent I would almost bet on it for they do not know where to stop.

Our local newspaper at one time was highly praised but now you hear different opinions about it. The same applies to our local radio station.

As I have stated before it seems to me we are under a glorified dic-

Local man establishes new decorating center

A new decorating center has been opened in Washington C. H. John Dunn, 267 Carolyn Road, has opened Dunn's Decorating Depot in the former location of Crissinger's Tasty Shop at 201 S. Main St.

Dunn will own and operate the new decorating center with assistance from his wife, Carol.

The new store will feature carpeting, custom draperies and hard-surface floor coverings and accessories, Dunn said.

The building housing the new decorating center has been extensively renovated on the interior.

The 29-year-old Dunn served as manager of the home furnishings department at Steen's Department Store in Washington C.H. for six years before deciding to enter into the private business venture.

Born in Fayette County, Dunn has spent all of his life in Washington C. H. He is a 1966 graduate of Washington High School.

He was employed at Steen's Department Store for three years before entering the U.S. Army. Dunn spent three years in the U. S. Army signal corps and was honorably discharged in August of 1969 with the rank of specialist fourth class. After his discharge from the military service he rejoined the staff at Steen's Department Store.

He and his wife have two children, Amy, 7, and Kristi, 3.

Dunn said he plans to hold a grand opening celebration at the new decorating center later this month.

Local resident representing soybean growers on mission

Hugh Wilson, of Washington C.H., president of the Ohio Soybean Association, is one of two Ohio agricultural representatives participating in a "Trade Ohio" mission in Western Europe through March 20.

The purpose of the mission, sponsored by the Ohio Department of Economic Development, is to promote the sale of Ohio products to Western European markets.

As a representative of the Ohio Soybean Association, Wilson will be primarily concerned with boosting export markets for Ohio's 100-million-bushel soybean crop. Over half of the crop is exported annually through a Toledo seaport.

In Hamburg, Germany, Wilson will meet with Dr. Karl Fangauf, who conducts market development activities in Germany and Austria for the American Soybean Association. The Ohio Soybean Association is an affiliate of the American Soybean Association, which conducts soybean market promotion work in 44 countries.

The itinerary for the "Trade Ohio" mission includes stops in Brussels, Rotterdam, Paris, London, Dusseldorf and Verona, Italy. Members of the trade team will meet with U.S. agricultural attaches, grain importers, feed manufacturers and oilseed crushers.

In Verona, Italy, they will visit an agricultural fair, including the U.S. exhibit. Wilson, 719 Fairway Drive, in addition to his role as Ohio Soybean Association president, will also be representing Premium Agricultural Commodities, Inc., a grower cooperative based in London, Ohio.

According to chief's February report Police probe 751 cases during month

Washington C. H. police officers investigated a total of 751 incidents during February, according to the monthly report prepared by Police Chief Rodman Scott.

Scott said that to date police officers have checked 1,550 incidents. During the month officers aided 82 persons, investigated 54 larceny and theft incidents; probed 83 accidents; checked 48 traffic and parking situations; conducted checks on 44 suspicious persons and cars; received 74 miscellaneous calls; received 34 wanted person reports; check 40 juvenile cases; received 38 domestic complaints; checked 33 reports of open doors and windows and burglar alarms; provided 26 banking escorts; investigated 25 disturbances.

Police also probed 24 incidents of bad checks, forgery and insufficient funds; assisted on 23 fires; 21 dog and other animal complaints; 14 assaults; 13 destruction of property cases; 11 fights; 10 injured or ill persons; 11 lost or found articles received; 13 missing person reports; 12 prowler reports; 12 drunken driving, reckless operation and speeding cases; 10 calls to taverns or pool halls; seven burglaries; one dead person; nine drug cases; nine funeral escorts; two intoxicated persons; one mentally ill person; six obscene telephone calls or threatening phone calls; two robberies; one sex offense; two soliciting reports; one tampering with an auto case; and fire incidents involving weapons or firearms.

The 43 traffic arrests included three for speeding (one by radar); two for reckless operation; five for driving while intoxicated; five for failure to maintain an assured clear distance; two for drag racing; one for driving while under license suspension; two for excessive noise; six for failure to yield the right of way; one for an illegal turn; two for improper backing; two for improper passing; two for improper registration; two for leaving the scene of an accident; two for driving left of center; one for no operator's license; two for red light violations; one for excessive speed for road conditions; one for a stop sign violation and one for operating an unsafe vehicle.

To date, officers have made 97 traffic arrests.

Criminal arrests totaled 108. They included six on bench warrants; five for contributing to the delinquency of minors; eight for defraud; two for disorderly conduct; eight for disturbing the peace; three for disorderly conduct by intoxication; one for resisting arrest; one for robbery; one for aggravated assault; six for breaking and entering; two for grand theft; nine for petty theft; three for auto theft; two for forgery; and eight for other authorities.

During February criminal offenses known to the police department totaled 91. They included two robberies; five burglaries; one aggravated assault; seven grand larcenies; 34 petty larcenies; two auto theft; one resisting arrest; 18 embezzlement and fraud cases; one forgery; one possession of stolen property; six malicious destruction of property incidents; and 11 assaults. Casualty reports totaled 10, according to Scott. They included four dog or animal bites; four injured or ill persons; one dead person; and one drug overdose.

Sixty-seven traffic mishaps were investigated, 58 of them causing only property damage. Thirteen persons were injured.

Scott said there were 13 hit-skip accidents, two of which were cleared. Nineteen persons were charged in connection with mishaps. Total property damage from the accidents amounted to $19,167, an average cost of damage of $268.07 per accident.

Seventeen juveniles were referred to Fayette County Juvenile Court during the month including four for traffic violations; four for misdemeanor offenses; and nine for felonies. Seven juvenile cases were handled by police department and the offenders were released to their parents.

Police officers transmitted 3,185 messages over the computer terminal and received 3,460. Officers received 2,744 recorded telephone calls and 3,840 recorded radio messages.

The monthly report disclosed 36 warning tickets were issued, 15 for driving infractions and 21 for mechanical defects.

Officers made 83 total appearances to testify in court cases. The total included 59 in Washington C.H. Municipal Court, 16 in juvenile court and eight in Fayette County Common Pleas Court.

Value of property reported stolen totaled $6,403.20, Scott stated. The value of property recovered during the month hit $2,461.75 and the value of property damaged in vandalism cases was $108. Police also recovered $2,000 worth of property for other authorities.

By The Associated Press
Low pressure moving toward Ohio from Lake Michigan was expected to spread thin cloudiness over the state this afternoon.

Along with this advancing cloudiness, some light rain was predicted in the northern sections of the state and there was a chance of some light rain elsewhere in Ohio during the afternoon and evening.

The threat of rain will end tonight as the Great Lakes low moves eastward, although some flurries are likely in northern Ohio as colder air moves in.

Southwesterly winds will push the mercury into the 40s north to the 50s south this afternoon. Lows tonight will again be in the 20s to around 30.

Fair Friday and Sunday and a chance of snow Saturday. Highs in the 30s and low 40s and lows in the 20s.

Bailey, Fort duel over Hearst case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For an entire day, Patricia Hearst's attorney and a government witness waged a verbal battle that was a virtual stand-off — and left the defendant all but lost in the war of words.

Miss Hearst, on trial for a terrorist bank robbery, heard her name mentioned fewer than a half-dozen times Tuesday, prompting U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter to sigh at one point, "We're losing sight of the Hearst trial."

Her attorney, F. Lee Bailey, and psychiatric expert Dr. Joel Fort traded thinly veiled insults and lengthy questions and answers tinged with sarcasm on matters dealing with Fort's attitudes and qualifications.

Bailey was expected to complete his cross-examination of Fort today, and U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. planned further questions as he tries to prove Miss Hearst was a convert to terrorism and thus took part in the bank robbery willingly. Miss Hearst says she participated only in fear of her life.

During the course of one argument outside the presence of the jury, the defense counsel conceded that Fort's testimony suggesting his client willingly became a terrorist was the most damaging yet.

Alluding to the jurors, he said, "If they accept his opinion, that's the end of the case."

Twice on Tuesday, the judge mildly prodded Bailey to wrap up the interrogation. When he once reminded Bailey that he had said he would finish by the end of the day, the attorney replied, "I'm trying to get to it but I'm getting some very long answers."

Obviously impatient at times, the attorney snapped at Fort once, "Can't you answer a question without delivering a lecture, doctor, or do you insist on it?"

Fort replied that lengthy answers were frequently necessary because Bailey was distorting his views.

"Your way of phrasing questions is based on your own lectures on how to destroy a witness you do not like," argued Fort.

Dr. H. L. True, 1845-1912, Morgan County, Ohio physician and naturalist, born in Athens County of a pioneer family, was also an authority on geology, and authored a book on "The Cause of the Glacial Period" which upset all previous theories.

Eagles set district meet

Fayette Aerie No. 423 of the Fraternal Order of Eagles will host a district meeting Sunday afternoon.

Representatives of local Eagles chapters in the 12th District will convene in the Washington C.H. Eagles Lodge, Sycamore Street, at 2 p.m. The dinner speaker will be Zane Mader, second vice president of the state Eagles organization.

Following the discussion and initiation of new members, those attending will be invited to stay and dance at the lodge. A meal will also be served.

Mader is the first representative from his district (No. 22) to become a state officer. An Army veteran, he attended school in North Dakota for three years on an Indian reservation. He has held several offices in the Eagles club and has dedicated himself to the betterment of the organization.

Do plants faint when frightened?

To talk or not to talk

By CINDI PEARCE
Record-Herald Staff Writer

Trends come and go, but one of the nation's most recent all-consuming interests, the growing of house plants, seems to be more than just a passing phase. Men and women, who five years ago would have balked at the idea of having a six-foot rubber plant parked in their home or office, are now converting large areas of their domains into virtual gardens, and on top of that, they are talking to these plants!

Rumor has it that skeptics in the how-to-treat-a-plant world (who are a dime a dozen) dare to laugh openly at the plant owner who coos sweet nothings while he tenderly mists the leaves of his spider plant.

Compassion, even if it is directed at a plant, should never be criticized. So what if the plant lover feels compelled to sing a verse of "You Are So Beautiful" each time he passes his African violet, especially if this guarantees an abundance of green leaves. But does it? Who better to explain what is myth and what is fact in the art of growing plants than the people who make a living growing and grooming them?

Marilyn Achor, co-owner of Marilee Florists, 132 E. Court St., seems to think that anyone can grow a plant, which should restore faith in all your self-professed "brown thumbs".

"The reason most people can't grow plants is simply because they overwater them and in general, just don't take care of them," Ms. Achor said.

Ms. Achor, who believes that the atmosphere in which the plant lives has a bearing on whether or not it will thrive, told of one incident where a plant actually served as a warning device.

"One of our customers told us that all of her plants kept dying and we insisted that there must be something wrong. As it turned out, there was a gas leakage in the woman's home and had it not been for the plants, some serious damage might have occurred."

Ms. Achor believes that the popularity of house plants is a result of the ecology movement. "People got away from house plants for a long time, but in recent years people have been getting back to nature. Consequently, they want plants in their homes."

She explained that not only do plants have aesthetic value, but they also perform a necessary function. They give off oxygen and take in carbon dioxide.

When asked if she was one of the many people who addresses their plants verbally, the florist didn't commit herself one way or the other, but she did cite an article which said that "plants were capable of reacting to personal care and if a person didn't show any personal concern for their plants then the plant wouldn't flourish".

Ms. Achor's favorite plant is the marantha (prayer plant). "It has the most personality of any plant." She said that the leaves of the prayer plant opened during the day and closed at night.

The Boston fern seems to be the most popular plant with the public according to Ms. Achor. "Two generations ago, a Boston fern could be found in almost every home, but then they went out of style. Now they're coming into their own once again," she explained.

For the neophyte plant grower, Ms. Achor recommends the philodendron because it doesn't require much care. "When growing plants use pots that have holes in them because they are the best for drainage purposes." The florist disagrees with the idea that gravel should be put in the bottoms of flower pots. "This is totally unnecessary. The gravel is detrimental rather than helpful. It breaks the water flow."

Her advice to plant enthusiasts was, "Don't over water. This seems to be the biggest problem."

Mrs. Barbara Anders, of Anders Greenhouse, 3302 CCC Highway-W, has no explanation concerning people who are failures when it comes to growing plants.

"People come in here and buy plants and then they'll come back and tell me that they just can't keep the plants alive," Mrs. Anders shrugged, "I really don't know why."

The Anders, who have been in the greenhouse business for 29 years, have found that terrariums are their customers' biggest headache, when in fact they should present no problem at all. "Don't water your terrarium," Mrs. Anders advised. "An occasional misting is the most a terrarium needs and this isn't necessary if the lid is on tight."

The veteran florist advises the use of fertilizer that dissolves in water and then is poured on the plant rather than dry fertilizer which has nitrogen in it and burns the plants.

"The real problem in plant care doesn't seem to be neglect so much as it is giving them too much care. I think people kill their plants with kindness," Mrs. Anders laughed. She agreed with Ms. Achor on the fact that people persist in over-watering their plants.

The Anders have an acre "under glass" and raise 10,000 asparagus ferns a year and 30,000 geraniums not to mention the numerous other varieties that can be found flourishing in their greenhouse. The asparagus ferns which take a long time to germinate, are started from seed a week after Decoration Day and then are ready to be sold the following Decoration Day. During this bicentennial year, the Anders decided to raise a large quantity of wandering jews, which do especially well in hanging baskets, because this particular plant has been popular for generations.

Mrs. Anders said that there were an amazing number of men interested in plants. "It seems that men are into growing house plants even more so than women. I think people would be surprised at the number of males who come in here looking for plants, particularly unusual plants."

Colleen Langen, who works for the Anders, says that people enjoy raising house plants because it gives them a sense of satisfaction to know that they have raised something on their own.

"In recent years, people haven't had the money to allow them to travel and do things they used to do, consequently, I think they've become more conscientious of their home surroundings," said Mrs. Anders, whose grandparents were also in the

WASHINGTON (AP) — They decide that factory stairways must be at least 22 inches wide, and they protect bank depositors from losing billions of dollars in savings.

They won't allow cut-rate, $135-a-person airline service between New York and London, and they make commercial radio and television broadcasting feasible.

They bungle, and drive a toymaker to the edge of bankruptcy. They succeed, and save motorists' lives.

They have a voice in what Americans eat, breathe, wear and drive.

"They" are the unelected federal regulators, a growing band that now makes more rules directly affecting the people than do the elected members of Congress.

In the past decade, three presidents and Congress have vastly increased the regulators' reach and power. The number of major regulatory agencies has doubled to 24 since 1965, and they now employ 105,000 persons, up from 58,455. The cost to America's taxpayer has more than doubled.

Nobody in the federal government keeps track of all the forms that departments and agencies send out to people and businesses. An Associated Press survey turned up more than 9,800 forms the government sends out to the public. An estimated 556 million responses are sent back every year, with hundreds of millions of hours needed to gather the data and complete the forms.

This explosion in federal regulation has created a reaction.

President Ford accuses the regulators of "petty tyranny," joining other presidential candidates in seeming to attack the very government they seek to lead. Republican hopeful Ronald Reagan says business and government bureaucrats share a "warm cocoon" in regulation that protects both. Democrat Jimmy Carter pledges to consolidate many government agencies into simpler, more responsive ones. Even Ralph Nader, who inspired much of the new safety regulation, wants to get rid of regulators he says are wasteful.

The drive for change has taken on a name: "regulatory reform."

Are the criticisms justified? Will Congress reverse its decade-long trend toward centralized regulation?

The answer to both questions is yes. And no.

Big and Getting Bigger

Regulation does cost money, and it also produces benefits.

Examples of delays, bumbles, overzealous regulation and conflicting rules are easy enough to find. Yet much federal regulation is carried on without complaint or with strong support of the persons being regulated or with calls for more regulation.

It is true that, in sheer bulk, Washington's body of regulations is big and getting bigger. The Code of Federal Regulations, containing only the basic, standing rules set down by the bureaucracy, already packs a shelf 15 feet long with 60,000 book-size pages of fine print.

The number of pages has grown 20 per cent a year for the past several years.

These regulators — appointed officials and civil servants — now make more rules than the elected members of Congress.

A Library of Congress study found that during 1974, Congress passed 404 laws while the federal bureaucracy churned out 7,496 new or amended regulations. That's 18 regulations for every law.

Most of the regulations carry the force of law, meaning violators could be subject to fines or jail.

The budgets and number of employees of the regulators have soared in the last decade. In 1965, the 12 major agencies spent $860 million, employing 58,455 people.

President Ford's proposed budget for this coming fiscal year lists $3.8 billion for the 24 major agencies and 105,000 employees.

That means the cost of regulation has gone from $4.43 per American to about $10.36, adjusted for inflation.

The Spreading Impact

This growth came as Washington answered demands for cleaner air and water, for less job discrimination against blacks, browns, women and the elderly, for safer autos, workplaces and consumer products, and for more honest elections.

The result is a sea of alphabet soup. EPA, OSHA, NATSA.

That's the Environmental Protection Agency, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. Then there's the FEA, FEC and the EEOC. The list goes on and on.

Regulators still make up a tiny minority within the federal government. The current $3.8 billion for the 24 major agencies is less than one per cent of Ford's proposed budget. Yet their impact, once confined to a few industries — transportation, communications, agriculture, finance and drugs — now has spread to many unaccustomed areas.

Federal job safety inspectors can fine a New York girdle maker $500 for locking his emergency fire doors. It happened recently to Anita Foundations Inc.

Auto safety officials press California, Utah and Illinois to force motorcyclists to wear approved crash helmets.

Pollution officials are moving to outlaw traditional marine toilets on even the smallest cruising boats, requiring either waste-treatment devices costing $400 and up or inexpensive but inconvenient tanks that hold waste on board.

Regulations' Cost

How much does all this regulation cost? There is simply no accurate way to measure regulation's total impact on the nation, although many are willing to try.

President Ford's aides in the Office of Management and Budget estimated regulation's cost at $130 billion a year in artificially inflated prices, additional costs to business and lost productivity. This estimate — totaling about $2,000 for each family — is based on a mish-mash of economic assumptions, projections and guesses.

In one instance, the OMB counted the costs of foreign trade restrictions that no longer exist.

The administration study also said Americans spend $40 to $60 billion a year to meet federal pollution standards. Yet the congressional General Accounting Office, in a report critical of the OMB study, said Ford's aides had misquoted the original source for the figure, which had put anti-pollution costs at $33 billion.

The Benefits

Does the regulation do any good? Frequently, yes.

The 3,451 people with accounts at a

Houston bank didn't lose their savings when the bank collapsed. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. paid them $12,259,733. Of course, some say there should be more federal regulation of banks to prevent such failures.

Not all governmental nitpicking is needless. Late last year, the Food and Drug Administration got a court order to seize imported bear-bristle brushes from a Los Angeles importer because the brushes were contaminated with nits.

Nits are lice eggs. Even the auto manufacturers concede that federal auto safety regulations save motorists' lives, probably by the thousands.

America's air is measurably cleaner since EPA began work.

Whatever the cost of cleaner air or prolonged lives, their worth can't be measured in dollars. This makes comparison of cost and benefit essentially a matter of personal opinion.

"Horror Stories"

Often the benefits of regulation are hard to see, while the defects are all too apparent.

There is little question that government can take years to reach a seemingly simple decision, as when the FDA went through nine years of hearings, proposals and comment periods before deciding that anything labeled "peanut butter" must contain at least 90 per cent peanuts.

Outright mistakes are made. And sometimes even admitted.

In 1973, the fledgling Consumer Product Safety Commission erroneously banned as unsafe a toy plastic ball manufactured by the Marlin Toy Products, Inc., of Horicon, Wis. The commission later admitted the boner, but the company says the mistake cost it $1.2 million in cancelled orders and forced the layoff of all but 10 of its 85 employees. Congress has authorized payment of damages to Marlin, with the amount to be set by a claims court.

TV Viewing

NEW YORK (AP) — No doubt because this is the last week for shows to be considered for Emmies this season, NBC has not one but two superb dramatic specials on tap tonight and Thursday. You'd be wise to catch both.

Tonight's opus is "The Entertainer," a remake-for-TV version of the bitter, powerful 1957 play and 1960 film by Britain's John Osborne. It stars Jack Lemmon as Archie Rice, a failed, second-rate vaudevillian.

Thursday's show is "Farewell to Manzanar," a retelling of one family's experiences during one of the saddest home-front stories of World War II — the forced internment of 110,000 West Coast residents of Japanese ancestry shortly after Japan's surprise attack at Pearl Harbor.

The original "Entertainer," set in England during the Suez crisis, was as much an allegory about the decline of Britain's world influence as it was a yarn about a sad song-and-dance man and his sad family.

In Elliott Baker's rewrite of the play for TV, the setting is a seedy burlesque house in coastal Santa Cruz, Calif., the year is 1944, and the emphasis is strictly on the woes of Archie Rice and his family.

As Rice, a man working in the shadow of his famous, retired vaudevillian father (Ray Bolger), Lemmon does a brilliant job depicting a cynical, boozily sentimental, skirt-chasing entertainer in his late 40s who never hit it big, never will, but can't acknowledge that he's a flop.

One of his throw-away gags to his small audiences sums up his life: "I feel I'm walking up a gangplank and there's no ship in sight."

Of the four family members accompanying his walk, Sada Thompson, cast as Phoebe, his second wife, turns in the most powerful supporting performance.

Watch this effort tonight. It's depressing, but first-rate entertainment.

Thursday's "Farewell to Manzanar" is an equally absorbing drama, set in a wartime internment camp in central California. Ten such camps housed Japanese-descent persons, most of the inmates loyal Americans.

Young viewers who wonder how the camps ever came to exist should see this program, based on a book coauthored by Jean Watatsuki Houston and featuring an Emmy-caliber performance by Yuki Shimoda, cast as her father.

Mrs. Houston was only 7 when she and her family were uprooted from their home in Santa Monica, Calif., shipped to Manzanar and kept there behind barbed wire, under armed guard, until near the end of the war.

It's through her eyes this tragic period in American history is retold, the telling aided by uniformly good acting by the Japanese-American cast and fine direction by Emmy award winner John Korty.

Tennyson Guyer had heart attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Tennyson Guyer, R-Ohio, was reported recuperating satisfactorily at Bethesda Naval Hospital after it was discovered that he had suffered a mild heart attack.

Guyer, who was first elected to Congress in 1972, had entered the hospital March 2 with symptoms of the flu and to have a complete physical examination, his office said.

While conducting the examination doctors discovered evidence of a myocardial infarction which had occurred at some time in the last two years, according to the congressman's office.

The spokesman for the 62-year-old Findlay congressman said there did not appear to be any complications and it was expected that he would be released from the hospital sometime in the next 10 days.

Whistling swan migration seen

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The annual spring migration of the whistling swan is expected to be the highlight of Ohio's observance of National Wildlife Week, March 14-20.

In keeping with the theme of the observance, "Save Our Wetlands," the wildlife division is sponsoring a

"Whistling Swan Day" program at the 2,600-acre Magee Marsh Wildlife Area near Oak Harbor.

The swans, the largest waterfowl to migrate through Ohio, stop at Magee Marsh and other wildlife areas each spring on their way to Alaskan nesting grounds.

Bearcat Hand-Held

Now, from Electra, the inventors of the scanning monitor, comes a brand new portable model...the Bearcat Hand-Held!

As with all scanning radios, you choose the frequencies you want to monitor. There are over 6,000 radio channels assigned to public service agencies (police, fire, weather, etc.) by the Federal Communications Commission. Each frequency is covered by a specific crystal, which, when plugged into the Bearcat Hand-Held, will enable the radio to receive that broadcast.

The tiny (6" x 4 1/2" x 3") Bearcat Hand-Held weighs only 11 ounces and comes in two versions: a two-band (high/low) model, and a UHF unit. Performance is close to the high standards set by the Bearcat table models.

The receiver is capable of monitoring up to four channels. It will lock on and listen to broadcasts as they occur, and then resume scanning, looking for more action. Each channel is identified by a light-emitting diode. Scan rate is all channels every half of a second! And every channel has an individual lock-out switch... letting you select frequencies of current interest and eliminate scanning of unwanted channels. This feature is not commonly found among the industry's portable offerings.

Controls include volume, squelch and auto/manual channel select. Both units come with a telescoping antenna, but provision for use of an optional "rubberized" antenna has been made. And a handy belt clip is included.

Jacks for optional accessories include earphone, external antenna, battery charger and AC adapter. The set is powered by 4 penlight AA cells and produces 250mw of audio power.

By MARK REA
Record-Herald Sports Writer

To say the least, the Washington C.H. Blue Lions have their work cut out for them when they travel to Rio Grande College for the first-round game of the district tournament. The Lions have the unenviable task of trying to knock off the Wheelersburg Pirates, something that hasn't been since last.

Wheelersburg is presently 10-0 and dating back to last year, they are 40-1. That lone loss came at the hands of the Greenfield McClain Tigers in last year's district tourney and the Pirates would like nothing better than to knock off a team that has beaten the Tigers three times this season.

The Pirates, an extremely disciplined team, rely heavily on their quickness and shooting ability. Wheelersburg displays speed, ball handling, and outside shooting and displays them all with a degree of excellence.

They play unique style of offense as they line up in a 3-2 set with their three big men outside and the two backcourt men directing traffic at the baseline. Their type of man-to-man defense usually blankets opposing offenses to the point where Wheelersburg's defense average is one of the lowest in the state.

Listed as forwards are Brian Bays and Jeff Meadows. Bays, a 6-foot-2 senior, is the team's best rebounder and has a very good outside shot. Meadows, also 6-2 but only a sophomore, is the premier ballhandler for the team. He is also an excellent passer and playmaker. Meadows operates the offense from the top of the key and will penetrate on occasion.

Probably jumping center will be 6-foot-3 Joe Rase. Rase, a senior, is the Pirates' best outside shooter and big scorer. Also at his height, he will be expected to grab some rebounds. His favorite shot is from the corner and he seldom misses it.

In the guard slots, both at 5-foot-11, are Gary Bailey and Dean Miller. These two work the inside in the Wheelersburg offense and when they take their shots, they put the ball up from inside 10 feet. Bailey is at his best underneath against a zone defense where he can get easy baskets.

Miller doesn't look for a shot often but can hit from anywhere on the floor.

The Wheelersburg bench is not much to speak of but with their frontline, they don't need a lot of backup. However, if the Lions can get one of the Pirates in foul trouble like they did to Chuck Thompson of Waverly last week, their chances of winning would be greatly increased.

Blue Lion head coach Gary Shaffer refused to speculate upon his starting lineup because of Wheelersburg's quickness and speed. Almost assured of starting roles are forwards Doug Phillips and John Denen because of their outside shooting and their rebounding.

Phillips has played his best basketball in the tournament games and district games are no different even though he has played in just one. Against Waverly two years ago, he pumped in 19 points in a losing effort to lead the Lions. Along with Denen, who also can hit with accuracy almost anywhere on the court, they make up the Lion board strength. Going against the Pirate guards for defense rebounds should even add to their rebound total.

From there, it is simply a guess about Shaffer's lineup. Ken Upthegrove has started at center the past three tournament games and Eddie DeWees has done an outstanding job with clutch performances coming off the bench.

Chuck Byrd, Dee Hart Foster, and Sam McClendon are the chief contenders for the guard positions with Scott Sefton coming off the bench in crucial situations. Byrd, who has not been playing well as of late, possesses quickness to offset the Pirates while Foster and McClendon work well against a pressure defense.

The Blue Lions' record now stands at 15-6 this season and if they expect to get to 16-6, they will have to play their best game of the season and, hopefully, catch the Wheelersburg five on an off night.

If the Lions should defeat the Pirates, they will play again at Rio Grande on Saturday evening. They would play the winner of the Ironton-Meigs County game for a berth in the regional tournament at Ohio University. Tip-off time for both games is 7:30 p.m.

FIGHTING FOR REBOUND — Mitch Kupchak (21) of North Carolina, although outnumbered two-to-one by David Brown (22) and Stan Rome (3) of Clemson, seems to have upper hand while fighting for rebound under Clemson basket. The ACC - champion Tar Heels will meet Alabama Saturday in a first-round NCAA tournament game.

Owners suffer court setback

Baseball split widens

NEW YORK (AP) — Representatives of major league baseball's players and club owners, apparently further apart than they've ever been in their current complex contract negotiating sessions, meet again Thursday in Tampa, Fla., with the first order of business to heal the wounds of Tuesday's meeting.

The owners took salvos from two different directions Tuesday. On one hand, Marvin Miller, the executive director of the players' association, leveled a blast at them, accusing them of issuing misinformation and trying to divide the players.

But the biggest blast of the day came from the relative calm of a courtroom in St. Louis where a three-judge Appeals Court ruled unanimously against the owners and affirmed the decision of arbitrator Peter Seitz, who granted free-agent status to pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally.

It was the second court setback for the owners. They have only one more appeal — the U.S. Supreme Court.

But, in handing down its decision Tuesday, the three-judge panel emphasized that "some form of a reserve system is needed if the integrity of the game is to be preserved."

"The disagreement lies over the degree of control necessary if these goals are to be achieved," said Judge Gerald W. Heaney, who wrote the decision on club ownership of player contracts for an 8th U. S. Circuit Court panel.

"Certainly, the parties are in a better position to negotiate their differences than to have them decided by a series of arbitrations and court decisions," Heaney added.

Major league owners, in disputing a finding last December by arbitrator Peter Seitz in favor of Messersmith and McNally, filed suit to invalidate the action in U. S. District Court at Kansas City.

Messersmith and McNally are the only major league players currently affected by the ruling, having played out their options last year with the Los Angeles Dodgers and Montreal Expos.

But if the ruling goes unchallenged and the reserve clause is not revised, it would permit payers signing 1976 contracts to play out their options on a one-year renewal basis the next year and become free agents in 1978.

Tuesday's three-hour session, the 26th thus far, ended in acrimony with Miller charging the owners with

"negotiating over our heads ... Their public relations campaign creates a lot of problems. We have to spend a lot of time correcting the misinformation that the owners put out."

Miller said he had uncovered an attempt by one club — he declined to identify it — to put out a phony survey of its players. He said the players were asked one question, then the players' answer to a different question was placed on a telegram.

Miller also said the recent public statements of several players was proof that the owners were conducting a "campaign of misinformation. We can't spend our time continually putting out the fires ... I'm not complaining. I'm merely explaining the results of their action."

Miller said a major problem remaining was the owners' insistence that he retroactively strip his players of their rights won in the Seitz decision and now upheld by two federal courts.

The owners insist any basic agreement would retroactively cancel out the Seitz decision, which allows every player with a 1976 individual contract to become a free agent in 1977 if he doesn't sign for 1976 and in 1978 if he does sign in 1976 but refuses to sign for 1977.

Johnny Bench in unemployment line?

Top stars could get benefits

NEW YORK (AP) — Can you imagine Johnny Bench, Fran Tarkenton, Bobby Orr and Rick Barry standing in line, waiting for their unemployment paychecks?

Don't laugh: it's possible.

Because most of them are paid on a seasonal basis, professional athletes are technically eligible for unemployment benefits, according to an official of the Department of Labor.

Robert Seebol, associate regional administrator of the employment training administration, said that a player's income during the period he is paid by his team would not enter into the question of his eligibility for unemployment benefits.

Several Milwaukee Brewers players have been receiving benefits, according to Bud Seigel, president of the baseball team.

"Normally, yes, they would be eligible," said Seebol. "High earnings would not bar them from receiving benefits during the period when they are not employed."

The key to the whole matter is the period of paydays for pro athletes.

Most baseball players normally are paid twice a month starting from April 15 and running through the end of the season. They are not paid in the off-season. The same is true for football players, most of whom are paid over the 14-week schedule of the regular season from September until December. Almost all hockey and basketball players also receive their salaries twice a month during the season.

There are, of course, exceptions. Some players choose to be paid on a 12-month basis to assure regular income all year long. They would not be eligible for unemployment benefits. But technically, said Seebol, when athletes are not receiving paychecks from their clubs, they are unemployed.

Newcombe discloses alcoholism

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former major league pitching star Don Newcombe is telling high school students around the country how he won 149 games as a major-league baseball pitcher but then lost his career, his business, his home and almost his family to alcoholism.

Newcombe, 49, now a recovered alcoholic, told his story to the Senate's alcohol and narcotics subcommittee Monday as he talked about drinking in baseball and the climate of acceptance he believes television has created for alcohol among the nation's young.

The subcommittee is chaired by Sen. William D. Hathaway, D-Maine, who said there is some pressure to bar TV commercials for beer and wine. Newcombe said he did not endorse such a move and noted that while there are 10 million persons in the United States who are alcoholics, 90 million others are able to drink with no real problem.

Here is an excerpt from Newcombe's testimony:

"My drinking began when I was about eight years old. My family drank, and I drank right along with them. When I entered organized baseball and joined the Dodgers in 1949, my consumption of beer increased enormously.

"The fact is baseball managers encouraged the drinking of beer — and they still do. To this day, the only way to celebrate a baseball victory is for each player to knock off a six pack of beer in the dressing room after the game.

Pete Johnson of Ohio State led the nation's collegians in scoring last season. In 11 football games he tallied 150 points on 25 touchdowns.

Moore leads Tigers to district victory

COLUMBUS — Johnstown found that holding Circleville's leading scorer below his average isn't the answer to eliminating the once-beaten South Central Ohio League champs from district play.

Circleville's Biff Bumgarner scored 14 points, seven below his average, but center George Moore picked up the slack by scoring 22 points and grabbing 11 rebounds.

Moore's efforts helped the Tigers to a convincing, 70-53, win over Johnstown in the first-round of district tournament play at Columbus.

Moore did most of his damage from the freethrow line hitting 14 charity tosses. Senior guard Mike McCoy also hit in double figures for the Tigers. He finished with 15 points.

The Tigers opened up quickly scoring 21 points in the first quarter which is one point more than Johnstown had at halftime.

The loss dropped Johnstown from the tournament with a 17-4 record. Circleville will meet Columbus Bexley Friday night at 9 p.m. in the coliseum.

Bexley was a 55-44 winner over Mifflin in last night's second district contest. Bexley topped Miami Trace earlier this season by a nine-point margin.

Circleville is the district's defending champion and if the Tigers win Friday they will again head to Dayton for regional play.

Eastwick, Darcy sign Red contracts

CINCINNATI (AP) — Rookie ace relief pitcher Rawley Eastwick and righthander Pat Darcy have signed their 1976 contracts with the Cincinnati Reds who now have 35 of 40 roster players in the fold.

Players still unsigned are first baseman Tony Perez, shortstop Dave Concepcion, outfielder George Foster and pitchers Don Gullett and Will McEnaney.

Cincinnati edges Dayton Flyers, 85-84

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati basketball Coach Gale Catlett, his Bearcats still riding a crest of victories with a squeaker over neighboring rival Dayton, feels his squad is ready to begin NCAA Midwest Regional play at Lawrence, Kan., Saturday.

"This was a very big win for us since we're going into the NCAA tournament against Notre Dame," Catlett said after the Bearcats salvaged an 85-84 triumph Tuesday night.

Tom Cutter named top MAC player

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Tom Cutter of Western Michigan has joined Northern Illinois' Matt Hicks as the only two-time winners this season of the Mid-American Conference Basketball Player of the Week award.

Cutter, a 6-foot-8 junior from Lafayette, Ind., was selected this week for sinking 22 of 27 field goal tries in three games, victories over Miami and Bowling Green and a road loss to Notre Dame.

Safe Side winner of Latonia feature

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — Safe Side captured the $3,500 featured eighth race at Latonia Tuesday night by a neck over fast closing Nada's Star and paid $9, $4.20 and $2.80.

The winning time for the six furlongs was 1:14. The place horse paid $8.20 and $4 and Sellersburg Flash, third, $3.80.

The 6-1 daily double of Grandma's Only and Blair's Price paid $179 and the crowd of 3,290 bet $372,264.

District cage contests set

Record-Herald Sports Editor

Of the 14 Southeastern District teams still alive in the three classes of post-season basketball play only one, Wheelersburg, has a perfect record this season. Of course that's the team the Washington C. H. Blue Lions must beat Thursday night at Rio Grande College.

Wheelersburg owns an impressive 20-0 record, but 7 of those wins were against class A teams. Washington C. H. has a less impressive 15-6 mark, but the Blue Lions had no class A schools on their schedule this year.

Two of Washington's losses were to Circleville, a class AA powerhouse, and the Blue Lions lost one game each to class AAA Miami Trace, Wilmington and Chillicothe. Chillicothe is still alive in the class AAA district.

Nevertheless, Wheelersburg could be considered the decided favorite in the Rio Grande district tournament.

The other two schools, in that district, Ironton and Meigs, meet tonight. Ironton has an impressive 19-2 season record, but one of those losses was against Jackson on Ironton's home floor. Washington C. H. beat Jackson by five points earlier this year.

Meigs has a 12-9 mark after sweeping through three games of the Stewart sectional at Federal Hocking High School. Ironton also breezed through its sectional with three victories.

In fact, Washington C. H. and Wheelersburg were the only two teams to have trouble in the sectional taking slim victories. The Blue Lions beat Waverly by only two points and Wheelersburg edged Minford by three points.

Chillicothe will meet East Liverpool in the Marietta district Friday. The Cavaliers earned the berth by topping Portsmouth 52-48. Portsmouth was an earlier winner, 74-71, over Miami Trace in the sectional.

In the lower bracket of the class AAA district Lancaster goes against Cambridge.

In Class A district action, Adena and North Gallia were considered the favorites with 19-2 marks, but North Gallia lost to Alexander last night in first round action at Chillicothe. Alexander with a 16-5 record will meet Adena this Friday night and the winner will advance to regional play at Steubenville next week.

Adena is having its best season ever and coach Ron Hall has his Warriors riding a 13-game winning streak.

In the lower bracket of the class A district, Chesapeake will meet Valley in a first-round game and the winner will face Peebles, an upset winner over Leesburg-Fairfield in the Hillsboro sectional.

Peebles, which lost to Fairfield twice in regular season play, topped them, 69-

45, in the sectional finals. It was only Leesburg's second loss of the season. The other one was at the hands of Hillsboro earlier this year in an overtime game.

football split end, earned Southwestern honors in basketball for the second successive season.

The Middies star averaged 26 points, 14 rebounds and eight assists in his senior year.

A district panel of sports writers selected Class AAA area Co-Coaches of the Year, Will Collins of fourth-ranked and unbeaten Bellefontaine and Don Gillespie, who led Hamilton Garfield to a 14-4 regular season mark.

The selections are based solely on regular season competition.

Pat Tabler of Cincinnati McNicholas and Jeff Bentley of Mason shared the Southwestern Class AA Player of the Year laurels.

Tabler, a 6-3 senior, averaged 25 points, 10 rebounds and six assists as a guard. The 6-4 Bentley, headed for the University of Cincinnati on a football scholarship, had 21.2 points, 15 rebounds and five assists this season.

Jimmy Carter, Indian Lake's 41-year-old mentor who turned a 5-14 team last season into 12-6 this time, earned the area Class AA Coach of the Year title.

Cincinnati Lockland swept the Class A honors, Bill Phillips winning the coaching crown and his 6-6 senior hotshot, Greg Johnson, the No. 1 player designation.

Lockland, facing many Class AAA schools, still won 17 of 18 games under Phillips, twice the Southwestern District Track Coach of the Year.

Johnson, another heavily-recruited college prospect, averaged more than 32 points and 17 rebounds, connecting on 59 per cent of his field goal tries.

Minnesota put on probation

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The University of Minnesota's basketball program faces two years of stiff penalties — and three years of probation — for violating National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) rules from 1971 to 1975.

But former Minnesota Coach Bill Musselman, under whose reign the violations occurred, said there were "a lot of things where I don't even know what they're talking about."

According to sanctions announced Tuesday night by the NCAA's Committee on Infractions, Minnesota will be allowed to give only three basketball scholarships the next two years, compared with the normal six per year. The Big Ten school also may not play in post-season tournaments for two years and may not appear in televised games controlled by the NCAA.

The school will be on probation for three years and the NCAA will review the institution's athletic policies and practices before the end of that period.

University officials declined comment Tuesday night, saying they would give their views at an 8:30 a.m., CST, news conference today.

Musselman left the university last summer, right after it was announced the NCAA was investigating the basketball program. He coached the now-defunct San Diego Sails of the American Basketball Association, and coached the ABA's Virginia franchise for a short time. He no longer has a coaching job, but has said he would like to coach a pro basketball team in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area if one can be started.

Virtually all the 127 violations cited by the NCAA allegedly occurred during Musselman's tenure at Minnesota.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

ONE OF THE MOST difficult design problems facing architects is the layout of a good small home. Herman York, 90-04 161st St., Jamaica, N.Y. 11432, has tackled it in the 1,267 square feet of Plan HA890Y. There is a covered front entrance, coat closet at front door, good separation of living, service and sleep areas. The kitchen is near both the garage and family room. The laundry is separate from the kitchen. The garage has storage space and a window. A barbecue can be built at the chimney, on the rear terrace. Anyone wishing to know the cost of the blueprint can write to the architect, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Here's How Windows Made Differently

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Do-it-yourselfers who haven't done any major building for a while might be surprised at some changes that have been made in some windows and doors. They should read the fine print in the catalogs before ordering.

For example, a do-it-yourselfer building a small room pulled some new windows from cartons as his wife stood anxiously at hand. "Yuk," she said, "the frames look like plastic." The do-it-yourselfer grinned. After all, hadn't he used these windows many times? Examining them, though, he had to agree.

Back to the window catalog for clarification.

The window frames were vinyl-coated and guaranteed to last 10 years or whatever, the catalog informed the couple.

A choice had to be made. Do you return the windows and wait weeks for new ones or do you use the long weekend planned for the work and make the windows part of the new room? Then, too, the winter was setting in.

The do-it-yourselfer proceeded without his usual enthusiasm. An artist, he regretted, too, he said, "that the windows had no personality — they looked too perfectly shaped and grooved."

Another discouraging aspect was the catalog's reminder that "only special paints could be used over the vinyl parts."

A call to the lumberyard supplier another day ascertained that it really wasn't all bad — any paint could be used as long as it didn't have creosote in it "which could dissolve the coating."

Why is a vinyl finish put over the wood?

"Actually people are getting lazier and they don't want to be bothered by a lot of maintenance," said Ron Meyer, purchasing agent for a New Canaan, Conn., lumberyard that lies in a do-it-yourself belt.

"Another factor besides the no-maintenance feature is that the wood used under the vinyl does not have to be of a high-clear grade. Window companies can utilize wood that was formerly wasted.

"For example, if they cut five-foot boards and little blocks of wood are left over, they can be processed into a long board that can be used for inner cores entirely, providing a more stable product even than that made of ordinary boards, although it is not as attractive. That is why it is coated."

The process is used by several companies, he said.

There are steel doors now, too, that you can't tell from wood, he claims. These are made with synthetic insulation sandwiched within. You can paint the doors, which come with or without lights (panels of glass), and some weigh even less than wood doors.

"You must buy the frame that comes with the door, though, because the doors have refrigerator-type weather stripping — like the long thing around your refrigerator door that contains the magnets that keeps the door closed."

All the work is done at the factory, he says. Holes for locksets are put in and all you must do is insert the lockset.

It is often difficult for do-it-yourselfers to get good information about any project they might want to work on, one reason Meyer is popular. Some lumberyards just don't take the trouble. And if you are a woman, they take even less, if possible. Then, too, some counter men at the yards just aren't up on the market's offerings.

Meyer and the crew at this yard have an essential virtue that do-it-yourselfers cherish; patience — time to discuss the project you are working on. A woman can telephone and ask a few questions without being given the impression that she has interrupted a big business transaction.

Do-it-yourselfers often complain that they become discouraged at some lumberyards, supply and hardware stores when they are given short shrift. They don't necessarily know everything about how a particular piece of merchandise fits into the project they are undertaking and they think the salesman should be able to answer the questions instead of shrugging his shoulders.

WHERE ARE HITLER'S WAGNER MANUSCRIPTS?
BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Hitler received Wagner opera manuscripts as a birthday gift from the German National Chamber of Commerce. Nobody knows where he kept them or where they are now.

Carleton Smith, consultant to the Indiana University Foundation, in Smithsonian magazine suggests that they could have been "liberated" by Russians or Americans.

But he thinks there's a good chance they are hidden in a bunker in Hitler's fortress-like mountain retreat near Berchtesgarden. Cursory inspection of the bunkers suggests, Smith writes, that there are hundreds of rooms and tunnels, now sealed up, in which the manuscripts might be hidden. During 1976, a team of German technicians will use ultrasonic devices to locate all such cavities.

Total loss over $98,000

Firemen made 47 runs in February

Washington C.H. firemen made a total of 47 runs, 41 in Washington C.H. and six in Union Township, according to the monthly report prepared by Fire Chief Maynard L. (Joe) Denen.

Denen said firemen responded to nine vehicle fires, eight building blazes and four trash or grass fires. Estimated loss totaled $98,381.

The calls to Union Township included four trash or grass fires, assisting law enforcement officers on a service call and a smoke alarm incident. There was no fire loss, Denen reported.

Rescue calls made by local firefighters included one inhalation and two emergency medical situations. Firemen checked two carbon monoxide conditions, seven gas leaks or spills and one excessive heat situation.

Service calls made included one locked out person. Firemen also responded to three calls in which steam which mistaken for smoke and two other smoke scare calls.

Denen said there was one malicious false call during the month, two false calls of system malfunctions and one unintentional false alarm.

Denen reported there was an average of 10.1 regular and volunteer firemen at the 41 calls in Washington C.H. during February. He said there was an average of 10.2 regular and volunteer firefighters responding to calls in Union Township.

The total average volunteer response per fire was 5.8, Denen said, and the total average of off-duty regulars per fire was 3.8.

Fire trucks logged 22.9 hours of work in Washington C.H. and 3.6 hours in Union Township. The equipment traveled 48.3 miles in Washington C.H. and 45 miles in Union Township.

Six firefighters were injured. Three civilians were injured and one was killed during the month.

Other fire department activities during February included attendance at two sessions of the Business Industry and Education Day; a tour of the fire department by the Washington C.H. Jayettes; a fire safety meeting at the Court House Manor Nursing Home; an industrial fire brigade meeting at the Mead Container Corp. plant; eight building inspections and four training meetings.

City's future planning topic for Rotary Club

Future planning for Washington C.H. was the topic discussed at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club Tuesday in the Country Club.

Dr. Leroy Davis, chairman of the Citizens Study Committee established last November by Washington C.H. City Council, told Rotarians that it is time for the city to be planning for the future and building on the many assets the community has.

Dr. Davis, pastor of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, said there are at least five items which should be involved in the city's future planning.

They were:

— That the city should recognize and admit its problems;

— Seek alternative solutions to the problems;

— Count the blessings the city has including the strength of the community, the healthy balance between agriculture and business and tremendous leadership potential;

— Open and honest communications; and

— Debates on ideas instead of personalities.

Dr. Davis, who is a Rotary Club member, said there are several "good and concerned people in the community" who are working together in planning for the future of Washington C.H. including the 11-member Citizens Study Committee.

He noted that Washington C.H. is not alone in its problems. On the national level last year, 93 per cent of all tax levies proposed for local government were defeated by voters, he said. Dr. Davis said that the rejection of the issues indicated "a feeling of times and mistrust and lack of confidence."

"Everybody suffers when our faith in each other turns to mistrust," Dr. Davis said.

The meeting was conducted by club president William E. Williams and the program was arranged by Robert Lisk.

Visiting Rotarians were Robert Montanaro of Mount Sterling, and Jerry Ardrey and Charles Pitts, both of London. Student guests were Allan Conner of Miami Trace High School and Hugh Patton of Washington Senior High School. Guests were Leroy Barton with Richard Whiteside and William Nelson, of London, with Pitts.

greenhouse business, having owned Weller's Greenhouse for 40 years.

"People used to be able to go down south and see all the beautiful foliage, but now they don't do that so frequently so they've decided to bring the foliage into their homes," she added that she knew of people who when building a new home, had allotted a certain amount of money just for plants.

Mrs. Anders said that a lot of research had been done on the idea of talking to plants and it was found that the plants really do respond in a positive manner. "Some big greenhouses have music piped in and they experiment with the effects that the various types of music have on the plants."

Needless to say, the man who quotes love sonnets to his mother-in-law plant may not be doing it in vain after all. And for all of you die-hard skeptics, take heed of the following true story: Invision a packed courtroom where a murder trial is underway. Sitting in the witness stand is one slightly wilted philodendron. Attached to the plant is a lie detector. The plant, being the only witness to a murder, has been called upon to testify. Five students, who have nothing what-so-ever to do with the trial, walk into the courtroom. The plant doesn't respond or react in any way. Moments later the murderer enters the room and the philodendron shows "intense agitation".

The moral of this story should be: "Treat your plants nicely or else... well, who knows what could happen?"
